Sterling, Hall Win By Resounding Margins

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Jaymi Sterling unseated incumbent State's Attorney Richard Fritz, who had once been her boss, June 19 with a landslide in the GOP primary with 7,290 votes to Fritz's 2,993 while Capt. Steve Hall, a 24-year veteran of the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office handily won the GOP nomination to be the next sheriff by a large margin of 7,098 votes to the 1,908 garnered by County Commissioner John O'Connor who vied for the same office.

Todd Fleenor, a recently retired sergeant with the agency and senior K-9 handler, got just 1,148 votes in the race.

The winners of the Republican primaries for both races are the presumptive winners of each race as there are currently no Democrat challengers in the general election.

"St. Mary's County deserves better protection through harsher penalties for sex offenders, violent criminals and repeat drunk drivers," Sterling said after declaring victory. "I vow to work closely with our new sheriff, the Maryland State Police and all other law enforcement agencies to crack down on drug dealers and tackle the big city crime seeping into our communities.

"I look forward to restoring integrity to the office and protecting our county's taxpayers from wasteful spending."

Hall expressed his gratitude for the win. "I am truly grateful for our resounding victory last night," Hall said. "Our campaign was almost a year-long journey.

"Nothing of this magnitude with this level of importance is done by an individual. It was a community effort and I am thankful for everyone who participated."

Wendy Adkins, director of the county board of elections said that as of 8 p.m. the night of the election that 4,150 mail-in ballots had yet to be counted and more were anticipated to come in.

The first canvassing of the mail in ballots is set to take place July 21.

The four-way race for county commissioner president saw incumbent James "Randy" Guy take the lead with 3,754 votes; former commissioner president Thomas F. McKay had 2,625 votes, school board member Rita Weaver had 2,032 and community activist William "BJ" Hall had 1,472 votes.

Jaymi Sterling

Adkins said the number of outstanding mail-in ballots could make a difference in the commissioner president race.

McKay said the possibility was there but not likely.

"Randy Guy demonstrated that he's the right candidate for the job based on the votes cast," McKay said. "I support him 100 percent.

"I also want to congratulate BJ and Rita, they both ran good races."

Guy will face Democrat Natalie Weech in the general election.

Just under 1,000 votes separate District 1 incumbent Eric Colvin from challenger Roy Alvey in the GOP primary; Colvin has 5,126 votes to Alvey's 4,129.

The winner of that race will face Sheila Milburn in the general election.

In District 2 incumbent Mike Hewitt handily won against challenger Marcus Drake by 6,173 votes to 2,893.

Hewitt will face Brandon Russell in the general election.

In District 3 Mike Alderson has a wide lead in the GOP primary over Elizabeth O'Connor, wife of John O'Connor with 4,927 votes to her 2,676.

Dawn Murphy, the first to enter the race, got just 1,467 votes.

Alderson is the presumptive winner as there is no Democratic challenger in that race for the general election.

In District 4 Scott Ostrow is leading Dawn Zimmerman with 4,651 votes to her 3,791; the winner in that race will face Steve Tuttle in the general election.

In the District 29C delegate race term limited County Commissioner Todd Morgan prevailed over Maj. Gen. Tim Gowen in the GOP primary by a margin of 1,968 to 831 votes.

Steve Hall

Morgan also won the portion of District 29C in Calvert County with 745 votes to Gowen's 597.

Morgan will face Bill Bates in the general election.

In the District 29B Democratic primary Del. Brian Crosby easily won against Valarie Swaringer and will face former incumbent Deb Rey in a general election rematch.

District 29 Senator Jack Bailey ran unopposed in the GOP primary and so far faces no opposition in the general election; the same conditions exist for Dist. 29A Del. Matt Morgan.

Statewide, Del. Dan Cox, who has been endorsed as the Make America Great Again (MAGA) candidate by former president Donald Trump for Maryland governor, won the GOP primary by a comfortable margin.

The defeat of Kelly Schulz, who was Gov. Larry Hogan's political heir and commerce secretary in his administration, could put his legacy in jeopardy and likely dampens his prospects for a potential presidential run in 2024.

Hogan has long been a vocal critic of Trump's presidential tenure but the election day vote shows that Maryland Republicans affiliate more with Trump's vision of the GOP.

In the Democratic governor's primary, Wes Moore is in the lead ahead of former Obama-era labor secretary Tom Perez and Comptroller Peter Franchot.

Election returns show that Moore has 36.7 percent of the Democrat vote with 137,118 ballots as of Tuesday night with Perez holding 102,278 votes.

Franchot, who has worked to establish himself as more fiscally conservative despite having other more liberal stances on issues, has just 73,301 votes.

There are an estimated more than 100,000 mail-in votes yet to be counted in that race.

Hollywood Carnival Opened Early for Special Guests

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Clients of the Center for Life Enrichment (CFLE) were treated to a special event held just for them at the Hollywood firehouse the morning of July 17 when membership there opened up the carnival rides.

“Not counting the past two years of lockdowns this is probably the seventh year we’ve done this,” said Bill Mattingly, president of the Hollywood Volunteer Fire Department.

Mattingly estimated between 50 and 75 CFLE clients came to the event, enjoying the grounds as well as lunch and snow cones provided by the membership.

The event started when the leadership at CFLE reached out to the firehouse members several years ago, Mattingly said, to see if the members were interested in helping.

“The membership responded very positively to the idea,” Mattingly said. “We enjoy doing it as a membership.”

The Center for Life Enrichment’s mission is to provide programs and support services that will increase the vocational and personal potential of individuals with disabilities. Their goal is to provide these services in an individualized manner to improve overall quality of life for their clients.

“Increased independence, integration into the workforce, and the opportunity for social interaction is the focus of our services,” according to the organization.

Board of Appeals To Hear Charlotte Hall Royal Farms Case

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

In March the county planning commission denied a developer's application to build a Royal Farms convenience store and gas station as well as a Starbucks coffee shop at the intersection of Charlotte Hall Road and Route 5 at the old Wentworth Nursery property.

Now, the county board of appeals is taking up the case today, July 21 at their meeting in Leonardtown.

The planning commission by a majority vote denied Three Notch Commercial's proposed concept site plan over concerns that the project would increase vehicle trips and further complicate traffic flow at already dangerous intersections.

Three Notch Commercial is owned by ARLS Properties LLC of Baltimore, a property development company that has made significant purchases of land in the Charlotte Hall community, particularly the old farmers market on the north-bound side of Route 5, for redevelopment.

The appeal was made on behalf of the developer by attorney Christopher Longmore of Dougan, McKissick and Longmore, LLC.

Longmore argues that: "The Planning Commission failed to accept the the clear evidence that the project may meet the requirements of the Adequate Public Facilities provisions of the St. Mary's County Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance, despite the fact that there was no credible, relevant or substantial evidence in the record to rebut this finding."

Longmore continued in his request for appeal: "The Planning Commission, in denying the application, took actions that went beyond their authority and role in reviewing a concept site plan, including but not limited to making determinations regarding traffic and other adequate public facilities criteria despite the fact that the St. Mary's County Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance expressly designates that these decisions are to be made by the Planning Director as part of the final site plan approval."

The concept plan calls for a 5,380 square foot Royal Farms and fuel canopy and a 2,365 square foot Starbucks with a drive-through, according to county planning documents.

Hollywood Carnival Postponed

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The membership of the Hollywood Volunteer Fire Department has voted not to hold the second half of their annual carnival this weekend after an apparent gang-related shooting took the life of a 16-year-old during the festivities of the night of July 15.

The carnival was immediately shut down.

William Mattingly, president of the volunteer fire company, said the membership came to its decision at a special meeting July 17.

The membership has not abandoned the idea of holding the remainder of the carnival, however, Mattingly told The County Times.

“We are going to have the carnival but it’s just not going to be this weekend,” Mattingly said. “We need to develop a better plan if something like this happens again.

“We can’t do that overnight.”

The Hollywood firehouse carnival is the main fundraiser for the organization each year and brings thousands of residents out for late night games, concessions and rides.

The carnival has been held for decades without being marred by such violence.

According to police reports the shooting started in the parking lot of the fire station just a few minutes before 11p.m. Friday night and left Syncere Kovey Smith suffering from multiple gunshot wounds.

Smith was evacuated to Med-Star St. Mary’s Hospital where he died from his injuries.

Sheriff’s deputies got descriptions of the alleged shooter, a six-foot-tall black male wearing dark clothing with dreadlock-type hair, and found a person matching that description at the Birdies convenience store located at the intersection of Three Notch Road and Hollywood Road south of the fire station.

Deputies reported giving commands to the subject — later identified as Devron Ny’quez Murray, 19, of Lexington Park — who was sitting on the curb.

According to police charging documents, Murray did not comply; instead he stood up and went behind a shed in a grassy area and revealed himself moments later.

Police arrested him and found a 9mm Smith and Wesson handgun behind the shed where Murray had been with the slide locked back and the magazine depleted of ammunition.

Police have said only that the shooting was the result of a rivalry between “two known rival groups of youth offenders.”

Witnesses at the carnival said they observed groups of young men come into the parking lot of the carnival between 9:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. wearing hoodies and facemasks; a fight between two groups broke out, they said, before the shooting incident.

Mattingly said there were four St. Mary’s deputies providing security at the carnival the night of the shooting.

“I think everybody is still trying to process everything,” Mattingly said of the firehouse membership. “Emotions are running high.”

Sheriff Timothy K. Cameron said a Criminal Intelligence Unit he had created as part of the larger Criminal Investigation Division within the agency had no information that gang related elements would come to the Hollywood carnival.

The unit was activated in May, Cameron said, and is targeting the gangs identified by the sheriff’s office involved in the recent shooting.

“They’re supported by the rest of the agency,” Cameron said. “And they’re tasked with... dismantling any criminal organizations in the county.”

The unit has been “very successful,” Cameron said.

“They’ve arrested lots of people who are still being held,” the sheriff continued.

But law enforcement can only affect change in the short term, Cameron said.

He said he had high hopes that a program affiliated with John Jay College known as the National Network for Safe Communities (NNSC) could work in St. Mary’s County.

The NNSC’s Group Violence Initiative is a collaborative effort to bring together law enforcement, government-based social services and community leaders’ efforts to target gang violence and divert those who may commit it to legal activities.

“We can affect the short term,” Cameron said of law enforcement. “But they [the three working together] can affect long term change.”

The GVI messages are simple: “Community members with moral authority over group members deliver a credible moral message against violence,” NNSC explains. “Law enforcement puts groups on prior notice about the consequences of further group-involved violence for the group as a whole.

“And support and outreach providers make a genuine offer of help for those who want it. A central method of communication is the call-in, a face-to-face meeting between group members and the strategy’s partners.”

As the investigation into the Hollywood carnival shooting continues, Cameron said the agency’s intelligence unit’s work was just getting started.

“The next discussion has to be the [county] fair,” Cameron said. “We want to make sure that community events are safe for everybody to attend.”

CIU members will be at the county fair, Cameron said, to surveil the event and identify local gang members who are in attendance.

Uniformed police officers will also be in greater force at the continuation of the Hollywood carnival — whenever that may be — along with plain clothes officers to monitor it.

Cameron said he wanted criminal elements to know the increased police presence would be there.

“The world’s changing and we’re changing with it,” Cameron said.

First Human Monkeypox Case Reported for St. Mary's County

The St. Mary's County Health Department has been notified of a human monkeypox virus infection in a St. Mary's County resident. The individual is isolating from others and recovering. SMCHD has begun the process of public health contact tracing and notification. The risk of transmission to the general community at this time is believed to be low.

Human monkeypox is in the same family of viruses as smallpox but generally causes a milder infection. It typically spreads between people through direct contact with skin lesions or contaminated materials such as clothing or linens. It can also be spread via respiratory droplets through close contact, such as face-to-face close contact. Learn more at smchd.org/monkeypox.

SMCHD encourages community members to seek health care evaluation if they are experiencing new skin lesions or have had close contact with a person known or suspected to have monkeypox infection. While any person could get infected with monkeypox once exposed to the virus, some individuals are considered at higher risk for exposure under the current conditions of the global monkeypox outbreak of 2022. Persons who may be currently at higher risk of exposure to the virus include those who recently:

- Had contact with someone who had a rash that looks like monkeypox or with someone who was diagnosed with confirmed or probable monkeypox
- Had skin-to-skin contact with someone in a social network currently experiencing multiple cases of monkeypox infection; this includes men who have sex with men who meet partners through an online website, digital application ("app"), or social event (e.g., a bar or party)
- Traveled outside the US to a country with confirmed cases of monkeypox or where monkeypox activity has been ongoing
- Had contact with a dead or live wild animal or exotic pet that exists only in Africa or used a product derived from such animals

(e.g., game meat, creams, lotions, powders, etc.)

Symptoms of monkeypox typically include fever, chills, new swelling of lymph nodes, and a distinctive rash with skin lesions that go through different stages and may appear in different parts of the body; however, onset of skin lesions only in one area of the body and in the absence of other symptoms has been reported in the current outbreak. Symptoms generally appear seven to 14 days after exposure to the virus and, for most people, clear up within two to four weeks. Individuals identified as having been potentially exposed will be monitored for symptoms for 21 days after exposure.

"Human monkeypox virus is an emerging global public health issue with cases increasing rapidly across the United States. However, thus far the monkeypox virus appears to be much less contagious than the COVID-19 virus. We also have tools available early in this outbreak to get people treated and help control spread of monkeypox infection," said Dr. Meena Brewster, St. Mary's County Health Officer. "As anyone could get infected when exposed to the monkeypox virus, all community members should stay aware and get medically evaluated if they are having symptoms of monkeypox illness or have had known exposure to the virus. The health department team has been preparing for new cases and is already working with local health care providers regarding testing and treatment."

Local health care providers who encounter a patient with illness or rash suspicious for monkeypox, or who identify exposure to a confirmed/probable monkeypox case, should immediately contact the St. Mary's County Health Department even if testing will be conducted outside the public health laboratory system. Testing and reporting guidance has been issued to local health care providers via the St. Mary's County Local Health Alert Network and are available online at: smchd.org/monkeypox/providers.

Search For Slave Habitation Continues in Newtowne Neck

Dr. Laura Masur looks over a piece of pottery found by Haylee Backs

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The site of the oldest Catholic Church in Maryland, St. Francis Xavier in Newtowne Neck is slowly giving up its secrets.

One anthropologist is working to find the underground remnants of buildings that once stood in the mid 1600s on land owned by the Jesuits.

The buildings Dr. Lauren Masur, of Catholic University, and many archaeology volunteers working there now on the project are looking for could have housed another property of the Jesuits; their slaves.

Masur and volunteers working with her until July 23 have dug pits on the property surrounding the church and the manor house that has long stood in the isolated community outside of Leonardtown.

They have found building materials such as old bricks and shards of pottery in their excavations and one particular pit seems to show the remains of a fireplace that was made of inferior materials to what would have been used in the old manor house used by the Jesuits.

This has led her to believe that the building which once stood there, erected close to the original manor house, likely housed African American slaves owned by the Jesuits.

Masur is cautious, though, not to make any conclusions from the field work.

Much work remains to be done on artifacts found at a lab where facts can be separated from supposition.

"Our goal is to identify buildings that are not still standing," Masur told The County Times. "We're examining the landscape through time."

Little history is recorded about the enslaved people compared to the members of the Society of Jesus who came with the first English settlers.

Far less is recorded about the indigenous people who lived there before both as they had no written language.

All that is left to do is find what they left in the earth and try to reconstruct their history, she said.

"It's a really hard thing to do," Masur said. "But that's always my goal."

Reconstructing the history of those whose story has remained largely untold expands knowledge for academics but also for those descendants of the enslaved.

"We can enable people's connections to places like this," Masur said.

The results of their research will also be available for all to see.

"We'll be posting pictures of the artifacts we recover after they've been to the lab," Masur said.

The number of habitations for the enslaved who once lived at Newtowne Neck is still unknown and Masur and the volunteers working with her are the latest in an intermittent effort to find them all.

"It's a little early to tell" what the excavation will reveal, Masur said. "We'll open a few more sites this week and find out."

High Schoolers Can Journey To Discover Faith, Community

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

St. Mary's County is full of history and community resources that make it a special place, says local youth minister Theresa Friess, and she has been on a mission to help high school-aged to become as passionate about her home — their home — as she is.

On Sept. 24, in cooperation with four local Catholic parishes, the St. Clements Hundred and the 7th District Optimists Club and several other county government agencies, high school students will get the chance to take a journey to St. Clements Island to understand where St. Mary's County began.

"We want them to fall in love with their home," Friess told The County Times. "It's bringing God and country together."

"It's going to be an exciting day."

The day will take participants to the island to learn about its history and to become familiar with local churches and religious groups as well as see fire/EMS, Department of Natural Resources and law enforcement personnel in action while they demonstrate their capabilities.

Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church is the main sponsor of the event, Friess said, but it is a collaborative effort.

"It's a four-parish event," she said.

Friess said she has been working to get this event moving for the past three years; the COVID-19 pandemic kept it from gaining its full effect, but now it is ready to reach its stride.

"I believe in preserving our history," Friess, a life-long resident of the county said. "I believe in our community."

"I want to talk to the high school-aged kids and reach them on their level."

Though the event has a decidedly Catholic aspect to it, Friess said high school students of all faiths could take part.

"Everyone is welcome," she said. "We want them to connect with their families, their community, their faith and their heritage."

For more information on the event visit <https://www.southernmarylandroots.org/the-journey>.

The deadline to register for the event is Aug. 1.

Missing 10-year-old Found Deceased

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Sheriff's office representatives say that a 10-year-old girl who had gone missing with two others, another child of the same age and an adult male, while swimming at Camp Merrylande on St. George Island has been found deceased.

A 911 caller told police they had found the young girl's body at about 2:45p.m. today, July 18, on the St. Mary's River side of St. George Island, sheriff's office representatives told The County Times.

The sheriff's office is still waiting on official confirmation of the girl's identity, officials said.

Preliminary investigation indicates the group were in the water July 17 at about 1:05 p.m. when the current pulled them further out into the Potomac River. The adult made it to shore safely, and the other of the two juveniles was rescued from the water by citizens nearby.

Society Hill Garden Club Holds Annual Picnic

Members of the Society Hill Garden Club of Breton Bay met at the lovely home of Julie Hartshorn located on Breton Bay for their annual picnic and induction of officers on June 7.

Melissa Georgiou, Membership Chair, conducted the induction ceremony, swearing in Hartshorn as president, Jenny Matlock as vice president, Sandy Payne as treasurer and Beena Khetpal as secretary.

Club members recognized and thanked outgoing president, Brenda Songy, after leading the club for the last four years. Hartshorn presented gifts of beautiful Wall Art displaying colorful butterflies in a garden and a book entitled, "Emily Dickson's Gardening Life," signed by members. During this period, Songy and club members, along with the St. Mary's County Garden Club, and Chaney Enterprises donated funds and time renovating the gardens in the St. Mary's County Health Department courtyard to show appreciation for the local COVID-19 pandemic response.

Under the leadership of the incoming president, Hartshorn, the club plans to continue community beautification projects next year as well as their annual mulch and plant sales.

The mission of the club is to promote beautification through landscaping and gardening projects within the Breton Bay community in Leonardtown. One project is the row of Yoshino cherry trees that line the Breton Bay golf course along Society Hill Road. The Breton Bay community enjoys the beautiful cherry blossoms each spring right here in Southern Maryland.

Members look forward to monthly meetings including guest speakers who provide horticultural and gardening information beginning in September and the club welcomes new members from the Breton Bay community.

Press Release from Society Hill Garden Club of Breton Bay.

Local Housing Market Strong Amid National Economic Uncertainty

As fears of a recession loom across the country, the Southern Maryland housing market has already begun showing some new trends.

Although the market is still busy, as would be anticipated at this time of year, it appears that the impacts of economic uncertainty have started to impact our region.

Based on the most recently available data provided to the Southern Maryland Association of REALTORS® (SMAR), the Southern Maryland region saw a total sold dollar volume decrease of approximately 2.84 percent year-over-year, for a total of $272.4 million sold.

The region has also begun to see active inventory grow, but new listings have slightly slipped. Year-over-year, active listings are up approximately 8.45 percent, and new listings are down 9.96 percent.

Approximately 624 units were sold over the last month in Southern Maryland.

Months of supply indicate that we are still in an unhealthy seller's market, with approximately 0.81 months of supply available. The amount of supply will likely continue rising and reach healthier levels as new regulations begin to drive the market.

Homes are still moving relatively quickly from the market, as the average days across the region saw a slight drop from last year, down from 12 to 10 days on average.

Over 87 percent of all homes that sold last month were on the market for 20 days or less.

One sign that the market is slowing is seeing a decrease in the sold price to original list price ratio. This variable helps illustrate how much flexibility is in the market between buyers and sellers, and it decreased year-over-year from 102 percent to 101.4 percent.

The average sold price and median sold price both saw increases, up 8.95 percent and 9.93 percent, respectively.

This could be the result of numerous factors, however, economic uncertainty paired with higher interest rates often leads fewer people to buy or sell homes. Seeing inventory begin to sit for lengths of time we saw pre-pandemic might become more common in the coming months.

As interest rates rise, consumers will not be able to afford nearly the same home price that they used to. Experts from the National Association of REALTORS® have emphasized the need to increase oil supplies to help tame inflation and prevent mortgage rates from rising more.

"While our economy struggles with recession and while interests are increased to curb that economic factor, buyers should not wait to enter into homeownership," SMAR's 2021-2022 President Gregg Kantak said. "The impact of higher interest rates may result in potentially less purchase power, but the power still exists, and the time to purchase remains now. This is not a wait-and-see moment, but it is ripe with opportunity, and your Realtor® can help you achieve your homeownership goal."

Legislators Urge Halt of Nice Bridge Demolition

Seek Study of Recreational Use

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (MD-05), and Senators Ben Cardin (D-MD) and Chris Van Hollen (D-MD) have urged the Maryland Department of Transportation (MDOT) to pause its plans to demolish the existing Governor Harry W. Nice Memorial Bridge until an independent review is conducted to determine the feasibility and cost of repurposing it for recreational use. The lawmakers requested an independent study to ensure that this is not a wasted opportunity to provide taxpayers with bicycling and pedestrian transportation options at a competitive cost or potentially lower cost than demolition.

“With the work on the new Harry W. Nice/Thomas ‘Mac’ Middleton Bridge across the Potomac River proceeding rapidly, we urge the State to reconsider plans to demolish the old bridge, and halt any immediate efforts to do so. These plans should not proceed until a study can be conducted on the feasibility as well as the financial and environmental costs and benefits of converting the old bridge to a non-motorized trail that could be used by pedestrians and bicyclists,” the lawmakers said.

“An independent study, conducted by an entity with experience in similar bridge repurposing projects, is in the taxpayer’s interest to ensure that we are not wasting an opportunity to provide bicycling and pedestrian transportation options at a competitive cost or potentially lower cost than demolition,” they continued. “Premature demolition would squander the opportunity to repurpose the bridge if it is in the taxpayer and community’s best interest. We strongly urge you to undertake this basic due diligence before moving forward on demolition.”

We would appreciate a response by July 22, 2022 regarding the State’s position and plans to secure an independent study and pause in demolition until this study is published.

Governor Announces $18.8 Million for Chesapeake Bay Restoration Projects

Governor Larry Hogan and the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) today announced the award of $18.8 million to 22 ecological restoration projects that will improve water quality and habitat in the Chesapeake Bay watershed, while building local resilience to climate impacts. These awards encompass 77 unique sites that will be restored using best management practices, including riparian buffer and reforestation plantings, stream restoration, stormwater management, and wetland creation.

“Our administration’s commitment to environmental stewardship has included making record investments in Chesapeake Bay restoration, and fully funding the Chesapeake and Atlantic Coastal Bays Trust Fund,” said Governor Hogan. “Each of these projects plays a critical role in improving the quality of the bay and making our ecosystem more resilient.”

Grants are made possible with funding through the Chesapeake and Atlantic Coastal Bays Trust Fund, which targets the most cost-efficient and effective non-point source pollution reduction projects. The projects awarded this funding round will benefit local waterways and the Chesapeake Bay by removing more than 41,083 pounds of nitrogen, 4,332 pounds of phosphorus, and 7,967 tons of suspended solids.

“We are grateful for the governor’s continued leadership in fully funding the Trust Fund, which is one of the most important water quality financing programs in the Chesapeake Bay watershed,” said DNR Secretary Jeannie Haddaway-Riccio. “This program allows us to identify the most meaningful and cost-effective projects in communities across Maryland to improve water quality and meet our Bay restoration goals.”

This year’s awards were selected from 51 proposals that were received. Proposals were prioritized based on cost-efficiency (state dollar per pound of nutrient and sediment reduced), project readiness, scientific rigor, geographic distribution, and overall quality.

The projects are listed on the

Governor Larry Hogan

DNR website along with other programs that are accessible through the department’s Grants Gateway application process. Through the improved connections across similar grant programs, the department seeks to support more comprehensive and integrated projects that achieve at least one of the following outcomes: fostering healthy ecosystems, building resiliency, or providing outdoor learning experiences.

Free Screenings of the Film Paper Tigers Offered at Lexington Park Library

The Violence, Injury, & Trauma action team of the Healthy St. Mary's Partnership (HSMP), in partnership with the St. Mary's County Library and the Early Childhood Advisory Council is hosting two free showings of the film Paper Tigers, a documentary about a high school that has radically changed its approach to disciplining students, and in the process has become a promising model for how to break the cycles of poverty, violence, and poor health.

A screening will be offered Saturday, July 30, 2022 at 1:00 p.m. at the Lexington Park Library, located at 21677 Franklin Delano Roosevelt Blvd in Lexington Park. Each showing will include a guided discussion for attendees after viewing, refreshments, and local resources on adverse childhood experiences.

To register, please visit <https://paper-tigers-SMC.eventbrite.com>

Paper Tigers is a close look into the lives of students at a school that specializes in educating traumatized youth. Set in the rural community of Walla Walla, WA, the film examines the inspiring promise of Trauma-Informed Communities in healing youth struggling with Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs). Using a combination of verite and revealing diary cam footage, Paper Tigers is a testament to how caring adults can help break the cycle of adversity in a young person's life. The film is directed and produced by James Redford with executive producer Karen Pritzker through KPJR Films, LLC.

"This powerful documentary spotlights the impact of adverse childhood experiences and the vital role a community has in fostering resilience in its young people," said Dr. Meena Brewster, St. Mary's County Health Officer and HSMP Co-Chair.

Enslaved Peoples Commemorative Earns National Awards

The Commemorative to Enslaved Peoples of Southern Maryland has earned two national awards in 2022.

The immersive art experience, constructed on St. Mary's College of Maryland's campus, honors the story of resilience, persistence, and creative problem-solving that defined the lives of the enslaved individuals that lived in St. Mary's City between 1750 and 1815.

This summer, the commemorative was named to the Top 100 public art projects by CODAworx, a global online community that celebrates design projects that integrate commissioned art into an interior, architectural, or public space.

Secondly, the Society for Experiential Graphic Design (SEGD) named the commemorative an honor award winner in its annual competition to recognize and promote excellence in contemporary experiential graphic design. One of the judges remarked, "This project is stunning in the most delicate and refined of ways. It is refreshing to see a memorial of names reflected in the shape of a home. The shape and scale allow visitors of all ages a more intimate connection to the lives of enslaved peoples. The house is a beacon of light during the day and the night, with its reflective surface catching sunlight and light shining within the night. A beautiful commemorative creation!"

Additionally, for its work on the single-day special event that observed the first anniversary of the dedication of the commemorative, St. Mary's College of Maryland's Office of Institutional Advancement won a 2022 Circle of Excellence gold award from the international Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE).

Constructed on the College's campus, the commemorative provides visitors with the space to acknowledge and learn from the lives of those who once toiled there, while providing a place for reflection and introspection about the nature of slavery and its connections to modern society. Seventh District Group Provides 'ACTS' of Kindness

Cody Hanks and Jacob Turner are missionaries from the Mormon Church from Utah. They use their mechanical abilities to repair and maintain medical equipment which has been donated to ACTS.

By Florence Ballengee
Contributing Writer

Far from the traffic and race-track called Route 235 is a peaceful little place which most of us who have been here a long time call "the Seventh." Years ago, most of us in these parts referred to areas by their election district numbers. Thus, "the Seventh" is the area around Bushwood and Colton's Point which is the Seventh Election District.

The Seventh is home, among others, to many old St. Mary's families, many watermen and an organization called the Seventh District Optimist Club.

The Optimists were instrumental in the very beginnings of the 1984 start of Project Graduation. They remain active today. Project Graduation has operated steadily for nearly 40 years. They are well known to long-time residents as a group that gets things done. And one of the things they got done was to form an organization called "A Community That Shares." The program goes by the acronym of ACTS.

Once just the seed of an idea, ACTS was an offshoot of the Seventh District Optimist Club but is now a busy and thriving organization of its own with a board of directors and more than 30 volunteers. The whole idea of ACTS was to provide by loan and ownership, medical equipment needed by folks in the community who were undergoing medical issues. This organization has loaned thousands of pieces of medical equipment like walkers, rollators, crutches and even larger medical equipment like recliners to senior citizens and others in need of them to remain as physically functional as possible.

ACTS is currently housed in a large structure on land leased from the Seventh District Optimist Club for the price of $1. per year. By having chicken dinners and through determination and hard work, the group erected a substantial building which was later added on to. Today over 5,000 pieces of medical equipment are housed in the building which is totally operated and maintained by volunteers.

ACTS has attracted volunteers from all over the area. In fact, it has attracted two volunteers who are missionaries through the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (the Mormons). The young people are committed to provide service for a period of time and two of them are volunteers at ACTS. The two young men and other volunteers come through the RSVP Program which is organized and led by the county Department of Aging and Human Services. Still others come from the community at large.

Jim Stanley and Bruce Maynard are long-time volunteers at ACTS. They work in a small shop within the building repairing equipment which has been donated or used then returned.

Sam Brown, a retired electrical engineer, is the president of Acts. He works with a five-member board of directors who oversee the program and the functioning of the volunteers who provide a myriad of services that culminates in helping people with medical equipment they need to live day to day.

During March of 2022, volunteers logged 489 hours and traveled 3234.8 miles in service to ACTS. Volunteers come from all over St. Mary's County and a few from adjoining counties. One of the busiest volunteers is Jimmy Stanley. He volunteers twice a week and has been working at ACTS since 2008.

Bruce Maynard started volunteering in 2013 and travels from Lexington Park.

JoAnn Wurmlinger, a retired IT person from the St. Mary's Board of Education volunteers doing computer work in the office and trains new people.

Two of the volunteers, Cody

Hanks and Jacob Turner are Latter Day Saints volunteers from Utah. Cody has been at ACTS for four months and has seven months left on his mission commitment. Cody says that he loves ACTS, loves the people, and loves working with his hands.

ACTS is always in need of volunteers. If you would like to find out more about ACTS, contact the St. Mary's County Department of Aging and Human Services at 301-475-4200, Extension 1650. ACTS relies completely on volunteers and on donations from the community. It has been granted tax exemption by the IRS and is a 501-C3 organization so donations are tax deductible. They may be mailed to ACTS at 21808 Colton's Point Road, Avenue, MD 20609.

People who would like to give some time to this worthy organization may contact the Department of Aging and Human Services or may call ACTS directly at 301-769-4199.

Navy's F-5 Modernization Program Moves Into Production and Deployment

The Navy's Specialized and Proven Aircraft program office (PMA-226) F-5N+/F+ Avionics Reconfiguration and Tactical Enhancement/Modernization for Inventory Standardization (ARTEMIS) program successfully reached Milestone C decision June 28, effectively moving into production and deployment.

To meet the Navy and Marine Corps requirement to increase fleet adversary training capacity with high-altitude tactical fighters, the PMA-226 Adversary Team is inducting 22 repatriated, former Swiss Air Force F-5E/F aircraft into the ARTEMIS modification program. This program will reconfigure the airframe and incorporate a block upgrade consisting of emerging and existing commercial technology while capitalizing on industry's private investment and lessons learned to upgrade necessary safety and capability features on the aircraft.

The program office will reconfigure the airframes and convert the F-5E/F engines to the Navy and Marine Corps standard F-5N/F. Once that is complete, the program will integrate the block upgrade, which consists of a new glass cockpit and avionics suite that uses technology found in more modern aircraft to improve safety and capability. Subsequent to this upgrade, the 22 aircraft will be in the F-5N+/F+ baseline configuration.

The Adversary Team and industry partner Tactical Air Support, Inc. (Tactical Air Support) will execute the F-5N+/F+ ARTEMIS program. Tactical Air Support owns and operates F-5AT aircraft currently supporting PMA-226 tactical fighter training and has performed similar modernization and safety upgrades on its own fleet of aircraft. Tactical Air Support assisted in the validation of the block upgrade F-5N+/F+ configuration on two of the prototype Navy F-5Ns completed earlier this year.

Capt. Gregory Sutton, PMA-226 program manager said, "This program will provide a fleet of upgraded, safe and modernized adversary aircraft, providing the realistic and relevant tactical training that our aviators need to win in the fight."

To improve and enhance aircraft safety and mission effectiveness and to meet existing and emerging requirements and obsolescence issues, the ARTEMIS program integrates fully digitized avionics instrumentation and provides increased safety and capability upgrades. These upgrades will also add tactical capabilities designed to improve air-to-air training.

"PMA-226's Adversary Team drove to a successful milestone decision by challenging norms to tailor the program requirements using a blend of commercial solutions and the lessons learned by our industry partners with a focus on desired outcomes and risk mitigation," said Boyd Forsythe, PMA-226 F-5 Adversary Team lead.

Given the significant use of commercial-off-the-shelf components with well-defined maintenance and support equipment requirements that are used for the F-5N+/F+ configured aircraft, the product support strategy will be to execute Navy and Marine Corps maintenance procedures at the original equipment manufacturer (OEM) maintenance facility, with fleet support teams within close proximity to the OEM facility to assist. The program's preventive maintenance will consist of inspections, cleaning and scheduled maintenance tasks.

The Navy's Specialized and Proven Aircraft program office (PMA-226) Avionics Reconfiguration and Tactical Enhancement/Modernization for Inventory Standardization (ARTEMIS) program successfully reached Milestone C decision June 28. The ARTEMIS program will blend commercial-off-the-shelf solutions and industry partner investments to reduce potential safety risks by adding necessary upgrades to instrumentation increasing safety and capability. CSM Modifies Vaccination Requirements

The College of Southern Maryland (CSM) Board of Trustees voted on July 11 to modify the college's current vaccine requirement for students, allowing unvaccinated students to attend Hy-Flex classes effective with the Fall 2022 Semester. Students enrolled in Hy-Flex classes have the option of attending class sessions in person or via Zoom. This change will occur Aug. 1, 2022 to allow time to transition.

CSM offers classes in five instructional modalities. Unvaccinated students are able to attend classes in three of those modalities: web-based, Real-Time Technology (Zoom), or Hy-Flex classes, which make up 45% of the college's total offerings. Hy-Flex classes are face-to-face classes that offer students the option of attending simultaneously through Zoom. Unvaccinated students who choose the Hy-Flex option will be required to provide a signed statement that they understand their risk, and that they may be required to take the course online only (via Zoom) if there is a spike in COVID-19 cases.

College administration will convert several currently scheduled face-to-face and Hybrid courses to the Hy-Flex learning option. By Aug. 1, a schedule listing the courses converted to Hy-Flex will be made available, as well as more information on how to submit the signed statement.

A View From The BLEACHERS MOSTLY GOOD

By Ronald N. Guy Jr.
Contributing Writer

A Washington D.C. media luminary fired off a tweet. That alone isn't news; it is a routine act occurring hundreds of times daily in this time of supercharged communications. This one was short, even by tweet standards, but it efficiently cut through the random nonsense, political insanity, self-aggrandizing and mindless star-worship that typically dominates a Twitter scroll by posing this simple question to D.C. sports fans: "When did you know for sure that Snyder was the problem and your favorite team was in deep trouble?"

Kevin Sheehan, veteran voice of D.C. sports radio, was the tweet's source. The "Snyder" it referenced is, of course, Washington Commanders owner Dan Snyder. The power of Sheehan's query was its casual lack of qualification. There was no "if you believe Snyder is a fatal franchise flaw"; Sheehan asked matter-of-factly "when" fans realized Snyder was an overwhelming force under-cutting any hope of success. The unspoken (or untweeted) – that there simply is no reasonable doubt about Snyder's organizational malignancy – speaks loudly about Snyder's dysfunction and ruinous 23 years of ownership.

The comments to Sheehan's tweet were validating. It was a scroll of dubious (and depressing) football decisions and embarrassing headlines across two decades. Most telling: No one challenged Sheehan's question or defended Snyder.

Like all long-time burgundy and gold fans, I have my own answer to Sheehan's question. Admittedly, I was late to the party. Fellow fans as far back as the early 2000s had concluded the impossible coexistence of Snyder and a winning football team. But I kept nibbling at the cheese, hoping "Dan the fan" and his willingness to spend (frivolously) would yield results. Things started to break down for me after Mike Shanahan was fired and a talented staff, one that included three future NFL coaches (Kyle Shanahan, Sean McVay and Matt LaFleur), was disassembled. Full stop came more recently with the embarrassing off-field controversies and the arrogant defiance and vindictiveness of the owner himself.

Now it is all too much. The rose-colored glasses have been removed, tossed to the ground and stomped under foot. My stubborn mind has been convinced: Snyder is Washington football's fait accompli, hope's great kryptonite. There is nothing profound in that conclusion. In some ways, Snyder is just another name on a long and ever-growing list crossing all aspects of life. It's a dubious and unfortunate scroll, and we all have our own.

Live long enough, cobble together numerous diverse experiences, and fellow humans will inevitably deliver a recurring emotion: disappointment. The church won't practice the basic morality it preaches. Politicians will be exposed as more ego-centric, special interest operatives than public servants. Most social media friends will prove to be otherwise. Spouses will fall short of vows. Many fellow Americans will value political identity over shared national origin. Companies who claim to care about their people will confirm a greater concern for their financial health. Left to reconcile such irreconcilable hypocrisy and character deficiencies – like a self-proclaimed fan-owner hoodwinking everyone (for various lengths of time) and turning his asset into the embarrassment of professional sports – well, that's why we grind our teeth at night.

It's enough to drive the most ardent optimist to exclaim, as Buddy Guy crooned, "Damn right I got the blues!" Enter This American Life podcast episode 775: The Possum Experiment, to save the day. The episode starts with a story about a woman who posted a few "Lost Cat" flyers around her home. The catch: The flyers included downloaded pictures of a possum. She did it as a joke, something of a social experiment. She bucketed the return calls into three categories: the mean ones that took pleasure in her idiocy, those who knew it was a joke and offered a humorous reply, and kind-hearted people who expressed genuine concern for her and the "cat's" well-being.

What surprised her was the distribution of calls. Just 10 percent were mean. Another 20 percent were the fellow pranksters. And 70 percent were folks simply trying to help. Is the world soured by swindlers, dark hearts and Dan Snyders? Sure - but a "lost" marsupial offered a timely reminder that people are still mostly good.

30th Annual Screwpile Lighthouse Challenge Held

The crew of the sailing yacht Whirlaway poses with the Calvert County Trophy after last weekend's Screwpile Lighthouse Challenge Regatta. The trophy is awarded to the boat that wins the most competitive class of the three-day racing event which is hosted by Southern Maryland Sailing Association, and is based out of Safe Harbor Zanhiser's Marina in Solomons. Whirlaway is a Hobie 33 owned by Jackson Montague of Alexandria, Va., and sailed out of Fishing Bay Yacht Club in Deltaville, Va. This year marked the 30th annual Screwpile Lighthouse Challenge and was sailed July 15 – 17 in Chesapeake Bay off Solomons Island.

L.G. Raley of Hollywood was honored at Sunday's Screwpile Lighthouse Challenge Regatta awards ceremony for his 27-years of service as a co-founder and volunteer for the Solomons-based sailing event. Raley spent 25 of those years as Chairman of Screwpile and is credited with turning it into a major regional sporting event. Above, Raley (center) acknowledges the applause of the crowd at the awards event, held at Safe Harbor Zanhiser's Marina, where he received a trophy and several gifts. Pictured with Raley are his wife, Merry Ruth, and current Screwpile Chairman Jim Keen of Solomons. L.G. Raley and Keen are both past commodores of Southern Maryland Sailing Association, the sponsor of the Screwpile Lighthouse Challenge. This year's Screwpile was raced July 15 – 17 in the Chesapeake Bay off Solomons Island.

Maryland Sport Fishing Achievement Awards Presented

Captain Bruno Vasta Honored

Captain Bruno Vasta

The Maryland Sport Fisheries Advisory Commission and Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) are proud to announce Captain Bruno M. Vasta and the late James W. "Jim" Gracie each as recipients of Maryland Sport Fisheries Achievement Awards for 2022.

The Maryland Sport Fisheries Achievement Award was established by the commission to honor individuals who have provided sustained efforts in habitat management, conservation, education, research, or other meaningful contributions that benefit recreational fishing in Maryland.

Vasta, an accomplished federal civil servant, has served in various capacities with the Maryland Saltwater Sportfishing Association, including as its statewide president and Southern Maryland Chapter president. He also represented Maryland as a governor-appointed member of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission.

Throughout Vasta's diverse professional and volunteer positions, he has advocated for tougher laws to protect native fish species and bolster Chesapeake Bay restoration. Vasta led the charge for creating an artificial reef off Solomons Island and developed lasting partnerships with local governments to establish fishing and aquatic education curriculum.

"After decades of working for the fish and recreational fishermen, Captain Bruno is known and respected for all that he has done for fishing in the Chesapeake Bay," said Dr. Jerry Gaff, past president of Southern Maryland of the Maryland Saltwater Sportfishing Association. "Like star entertainers who need only to use their first name – Cher, Madonna, and Prince – 'Captain Bruno' is a superstar name known all around the Chesapeake Bay."

The commission also recognized Baltimore native Jim Gracie for his lifelong support of trout fishing and championing water quality and restoration. Gracie, a chemist by trade, used his expertise with both federal and state agencies to advocate for stream restoration and he was considered an expert on the Clean Water Act.

Jim was a founding member of Maryland's chapter of Trout Unlimited and also served two terms as president of the national organization's board. Aside from Gracie's environmental policy work, he also pioneered Baltimore's City Catch program teaching Baltimore youth about fishing and aquatic education. Lastly, Jim was one of the longest serving members of the governor-appointed commission and had served as its chair. Gracie passed away in 2020.

"Jim never rested on his accomplishments," Commission member Jason "JP" Andrick said. "'Grit' is a good word to describe him."

Gracie and Vasta will be honored in a presentation later in the year.

The commission will begin accepting nominations Dec. 1, 2022 for the 2023 award, with a deadline of Jan. 31, 2023.

Carmel McCadden

On Monday July 11, 2022, Carmel McCadden, beloved wife, mother, and dear friend to many, passed away at age 71. Carmel was born on January 31, 1951 to Ralph and Lucy (Rogers) Masters in Baltimore, MD. She was raised in Sparrows Point, MD, a place that she was very proud to hail from and would discuss at length with anybody who was even remotely familiar with it.

Carmel was a devoted friend to many. She never met a stranger she didn't grow to love. She was quick to love, loved with her whole heart, and wore her heart on her sleeve. Carmel had many "adopted" children, as she treated all her children's friends as her own. Carmel had a passion for the Baltimore Orioles (Specifically Cal Ripken, Jr.) and the Baltimore Ravens. She was quite possibly the loudest person in attendance at games!

Carmel was a very meticulous person who took an enormous amount of pride in making her home beautiful, both inside and outside. She enjoyed "crinking" with her special friends, specifically making beautiful hand-made cards for every special occasion. Carmel was preceded in death by her first husband Donald McCadden, Sr., her father Ralph, her mother Lucy, her sister Mary, and her brother Bob. She is survived by her loving husband, Gene, her son Donald (Pam), her daughter Melanie (Mike), her granddaughter Emily, her grandsons; Trey, Trenton, and Austin, her brother Duane (Linda), as well as several cousins, nieces, and nephews.

A private service will be held with the immediate family.

A Celebration of Life will be held at The Belmont Farm in Clements, MD on Friday, July 22, 2022 from 4:00 PM to 7:00 PM. Please dress casually and comfortably, and we encourage any of you who share her passion for the beloved Baltimore Orioles and Ravens to wear your favorite Team Gear.

sisted of serving in the Navy on the greatest ship, the USS Yorktown. He would say he served with the finest officers and sailors in World War II. Andy received many medals and ribbons including the Victory Metal, American Campaign Metal, Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Metal and ribbons with five stars, as well as a Presidential Unit Citation, one star.

Following his discharge from the Navy, Andy married his high school sweetheart, Virginia. They were married for 70 years until Virginia passed away in 2016. He was usually the last to leave those events, telling his stories and shaking hands with those who wanted to meet him. There was nothing he loved more than sharing his stories. When people would say to him "thank you for your service," his response would be "For you, I would do it over again."

SMALL BUSINESS TIPS

Contributing Writer:
Lynda J. Striegel

Small businesses are the backbone of our economy. They provide jobs, pay taxes and contribute to our society. For any of you contemplating setting up your own small business, I applaud your courage and offer some basic tips for you:

1. Start with the professionals.

When you set up a business or enter into a lease or create a contract or agreement between your business and landlords, vendors, suppliers, bankers, etc. you need to obtain professional advice from attorneys and accountants. Yes, this will cost your business money up front, but it will be worth it to avoid mistakes.

2. Structure.

Incorporating your business is important to avoid personal liability. If you incorporate, either as an LLC (limited liability company) or a corporation, and you are sued, the corporation is liable, not you personally. The contrary is also true—without incorporating, any business you run can be sued and you can be held personally liable. Exposing your personal assets, or your family's assets, to liability for a business you run is simply taking too much risk.

3. Documentation is Critical.

Before you run to Legal Zoom or some similar forms service to create your articles of organization or incorporation, think about your business structure. This is not the time to choose a "one size fits all" form. If you have partners or shareholders, you cannot use the types of basic documents provided by a forms service. You need professional guidance.

4. Small Business Pitfalls.

There are three areas of potential difficulty every small business person must figure out: employees, leases and other agreements and ownership.

a. Employees. Be very careful about classifying your employees either as employees or independent contractors. The Internal Revenue Service now uses an 11 factor test to determine whether an independent contractor is truly independent. As a business owner, you are responsible for withholding taxes on employee salaries. Independent contractors pay their own taxes. Don't get into difficulty by misclassifying. If the IRS determines you should have classified someone as an employee rather than an independent contractor, your business could be liable for paying back all the withholding taxes you should have taken out since the employee was first hired. Multiply that by several misclassified employees and you see the problem. Understand the rules.

b. Leases and Other Agreements. The type of lease you sign for commercial space can be very confusing, especially when it is 30 pages long and full of legalisms. There are gross leases, net leases and percentage leases. You may receive a low rent in a triple net lease but you will be responsible for paying taxes, insurance and repairs on the space. If the space needs a new roof, that could be a major expense. Every business has different needs and will use different types of contracts and agreements, but all businesses use contracts and agreements with customers, vendors, bankers, etc. Make sure you get professional advice on handling your contracts and agreements.

c. Ownership. One important tip—never enter into a 50-50 partnership. This simply doesn't work in the event of a dispute. Make your structure 51-49 or something else, but put one person in charge. Don't make your spouses or children the owners of the business if they are not involved in the business. Divorce can wreak havoc on a business with married couple owners.

5. Free Advice.

One of the best tips I have for small business is to structure an Advisory Board. Unlike Boards of Directors, members of an Advisory Board have no liability for the advice they give your business. There is no need to pay Advisory Board members if you cannot afford it. Call on friends and advisors who understand your type of business and can give you practical advice. Those Advisory Board members may very well become your future investors.

6. Buying a Business.

One word—investigate. You must have as complete an understanding of what you are buying as possible.

7. Selling a Business.

Sellers of a business want to sell stock. That allows them to charge the buyer for goodwill that has been built-up in a business. Buyers of a business want to buy assets—they want to stay away from the liabilities that come with stock ownership. Whether it is a sale of stock or assets, valuation is an issue and there are many ways to approach a sales price for your business.

Running a small business is not for the faint of heart. But, there are resources to help you. Take advantage of them—attorneys, accountants, cyber security specialists, financial advisors, the internet, business books, classes at the College of Southern Maryland, the Calvert County Dept. of Economic Development and many other resources. And, best of luck to you!
