County Defends Transportation Plan

Critics Call Conclusions 'Fuzzy'

By Dick Myers
Editor

The Calvert County Department of Planning and Zoning has released a draft update of the Calvert County Transportation Plan. They are seeking citizens comments on the draft which is available online at www.CalvertCountyMd.gov/TransportationPlan.

Citizens may submit comments online or through the U.S. mail to the Department of Planning & Zoning at 175 Main St., Prince Frederick, MD 20678. Comments must be received by Friday, Sept. 6 at 4:30 p.m.

According to a press release. "The transportation plan will set a vision to integrate multimodal transportation planning with land use, historic preservation, open space and community facilities. The draft plan was prepared by consultant firm Sabra & Associates."

Following a workshop on Aug. 14, a press conference was held Aug. 21 by Commissioner President Tim Hutchins and Vice President Kelly McConkey at which the plan was defended. But critics of the just-completed comprehensive plan, Keep Calvert Country, quickly jumped in to allege the plan used "Fuzzy math, fuzzy maps, fuzzy conclusions."

Hutchins at the press conference noted that the plan included "easy to do traffic management issues" to help traffic flow, in addition to major road projects. They include turn lanes, traffic monitoring and signing.

He noted that the transportation plan isn't a static document. He said, "Obviously it's a base document for us to begin with. It hasn't been updated in 20 years, so we've got it and it's dynamic. It can be relooked at, revisited, readjusted." He said the town center master plan and zoning ordinance updates to follow could impact the transportation plan.

While Hutchins stayed home to attend the plan workshop and attend to county business, the other four commissioners attended the Maryland Association of Counties annual convention in Ocean City. McConkey said they had a chance to sit down with Maryland Transportation Secretary Pete Rahn.

Commissioner President Tim Hutchins, Vice President Kelly McConkey and County Administrator Terry Shannon at the Aug. 21 press conference.

McConkey said they discussed the county's transportation priorities, including No. 1 - The Gov. Thomas Johnson Bridge. "This bridge is critical to homeland security, serves Maryland's only nuclear power plant and international liquefied natural gas transport facility and a major U.S. naval base. The bridge is essential to safety, security, and efficient flow of transportation for our entire region," McConkey said.

He said they asked that Rahn include the bridge in the Maryland Consolidated Transportation Plan. McConkey said, "State staff let us know that the bridge project is on the state/federal priority list. This is important because it demonstrates to the federal government how important this project is."

They also talked about Route 231. He said, "We asked the state to assess the recent SHA (State Highway Administration) evaluation for safety and level of service improvements for this roadway. We also asked for design improvements and construction at critical intersections. Two intersections that need immediate attention are Stafford Road and Adelina Road."

He said the Maryland State Police and sheriff's department have been asked to step up enforcement along the Route 231 corridor.

He said Rahn was also asked to increase monitoring of accidents along Routes 2/4 and consider additional commuter bus routes.

The transportation plan assumes that the county will grow in the next 20 years at the same rate as the previous 20, which will be three-quarters of a percent per year or 12 percent total by 2040. The plan also assumes only two major state projects, completion of 2/4 in Prince Frederick and the bridge.

Keep Calvert County (KCC), in a missive published last week, called the projections "fuzzy." They wrote: "KCC took the time to look back 20 years to 1999, finding the population was 69,300. The average growth rate needed to reach 93,000 in 2019 is 1.5%. If you project the same growth rate to 2040, the population will be 127,000, not 101,737 as the consultant reported. And that is a 36 percent increase in population not a 12 percent increase."

Numbers matter, particularly for a highway system so close to its carrying capacity.

"However, you could not tell that to be the case based on the presentation slides, which even the presenter could not always read because of size of the print. The maps and numbers were a blur. The only thing that you could read was the messages that the county wanted you to read. "Don't worry. Be happy."

"However, that is not the case for the drivers coming home every day on Maryland 4. I am sure that they were surprised that it was a matter of perception that traffic regularly stops over one mile before the Stoakley Road intersection. And yet the average speed reported for that corridor between 4 and 6 p.m. was 30-40 miles per hour. Who knew?"

During the press conference, the county officials in attendance were asked about the deteriorating conditions projected at intersections, such as the 2/4 split and at Stoakley and Dares Beach roads intersections.

Hutchins defended the traffic management options presented in the plan as ameliorating some of the problems, although the plan assumes those options in making its predictions for worsening intersections.

Director of Planning and Zoning Mark Willis said, "We're working on a 22-year-old plan.

"Once we get that up to date, it'll be visited much more often. So, just consider that part that we won't have such a long span in considering why or how to correct some of these issues."

Willis said his office had purchased traffic modeling software to allow them to react faster to changing road conditions.

Shannon: County Prepared for Economic Downturn

By Dick Myers
Editor

Some economists are predicting an economic downturn, possibly even a recession for later this year or early next year. Fingers are pointed at a declining stock market and a trade war with China in this era of a global economy.

Those concerns prompted County Administrator Terry Shannon to address what the county is doing to buffer itself for the eventuality. Shannon made her comments at an Aug. 21 press conference at the Harriet Elizabeth Brown Community Center in Prince Frederick.

She comes at the subject from the unique perspective of having formerly been the county's finance director. "I've been with the county over 30 years and over that 30-year window I've seen at least three recessionary periods."

A recession could mean declining income tax revenues for the county. And she said, "They're seeing a lot of money going into bonds," and "With the stock market coming down, we could see lower capital gains being realized by folks when they sell their stocks and bonds."

It may not all be bad news for the county. She said, "On the positive side we may see lower borrowing rates for Calvert County government" And as for its citizens: "They may be able to acquire things at lower interest rates."

Shannon said the Maryland Board of Estimates, which predicts state revenues, will be meeting next month. "Just as Tim Hayden, our finance director, they have a wide variety of metrics that they look at and do their best estimates of the Maryland state revenues, how they look. That might provide us some insight locally."

She said some of the signs include a creeping increase of cost of living, 1.6 percent to 1.8 percent over the past 12 months. She said it's not a big increase yet, and still lower than a year ago.

She noted, "The Goldman Sachs Group economists, they're seeing the recessionary risks and that's associated with the U.S. and China trade war. Recently at the Maryland Association of Counties conference, there were three highly-regarded analysts there and they were cautioning the counties to be prepared for a recession."

She said the county is preparing. "Tim Hayden, the finance department, they look at a lot of metrics and they do a lot of forecasting. They look ahead and prepare the county for these steps so that we won't be caught off guard."

She also talked about how the stock market drop was affecting county investments. She explained, "We really have two categories of investments. We have what's known as operating cash reserves and more on the long term, the pension plans, because we have long-term liabilities."

She said operating cash investments are mandated to have less-than-a-two-year maturity. "So that by and of itself helps us to minimize our effect of a drop in the stock market." They invest in short-term U.S. government securities like U.S. Treasury bills

"So, between the short-term maturity and the investments that we hold, the risk is minimal, I believe, in an economic recession."

As for the pension plans for county employees and the sheriff's office, "We have a long list of a variety of assets both in the stock market and the bonds and a wide variety for each of those investment types."

She said, "There are professional paid managers that monitor those investments daily. They're very actively managed. One of the guidelines that we look at to see how we're doing in managing those investments is the percentage of those investments to those liabilities and if the percentage is at least 80 percent on up, that's in pretty good shape. And I'm pleased to say the sheriff's plan is 100 percent funded and the employee's plan is 91 percent funded. So, we're in very good shape on that."

She concluded, "If the stock market's going down, we'll likely see those assets drop in value. But I believe it will be a moderate decrease because we are well diversified."

Liquor Board Delays New Restaurant License

By Dick Myers
Editor

The Calvert County Board of License Commissioners (liquor board) has delayed granting a liquor license for a new restaurant in the middle of Solomons in the spot formerly occupied by the Striped Rock and before that Catamarans.

The three-member board was reluctant to break historic precedent of limiting license holders to one license. In the past, licensees have gotten around that requirement by designating another person as the resident agent for the second and subsequent licenses and giving that resident agent a financial stake in the operation.

James Kirakian already owns and operates Charles Street Brasserie in Solomons just down the street from his proposed new location. He told the board that he would prefer to have total control over his operations.

He explained to the board that Charles Street Brasserie is a tapas and traditional American restaurant, but he is proposing the new restaurant to be more locally themed, thus picking the name Bugeye Grill after the historic sailing boats used for oyster dredging.

Kirakian's attorney Charles Donnelly argued that legislation passed by the Maryland General Assembly last year simplified the state's cumbersome alcohol regulations and allowed liquor boards to grant more than one license. He said the courts have upheld similar situations in other counties.

Board Chairman Robert Arscott seemed to agree they had the authority but also noted his board wasn't required to approve multiple licenses. Arscott observed that other local chains, such as Mamma Lucia's and Stoney's were required to have separate resident agents.

"We don't want to set a precedent," he said, noting approving Kirakian's application would "open the floodgates." They told him to come back with another resident agent.

Kirakian told The County Times he had hoped to open soon. If he wants to open with that liquor license in hand, he'll have to wait at least until the next board meeting.

In other business at the Aug. 22 meeting, the board approved a liquor license for Good Day Market on Dares Beach Road in Prince Frederick after the owners Kanchan and Vipin Sharma presented a petition with 400 signatures. The board had delayed a decision from their July meeting and required a petition with at least 100 signatures.

Arscott said a cursory glance of the signers of the petition showed at least some did not meet the requirement of being within five miles of the store. The licensees were warned that if a check with the election board revealed they did not meet that 100-signature requirement, they could be called back to explain.

The board also fined Breezy Point Bait and Tackle Store $250 for moving the premises where the alcohol was sold from one building to another on the property. Licensee Laura Herschfeld said she was not aware that she had to come to the board for that.

Goodbye Ruby Tuesday, Hello, Panda Express

By Dick Myers
Editor

One restaurant option is replacing another in Prince Frederick. The Calvert County Planning Commission has approved a site plan for a new Panda Express on Routes 2/4 to replace the Ruby Tuesday, which will be demolished.

The new restaurant will be 2,300 square feet with a drive-through window.

According to Principal Planner Rachel O'Shea, "The site plan also indicates a future pad site for a 6,500-square-foot, multi-tenant retail commercial building that will be submitted in the future as a separate site plan submittal for review and approval."

The official street address for the new restaurant will be 815 N. Prince Frederick Blvd. O'Shea said, "The old Ruby Tuesday's site provided access via Prince Frederick Blvd. as well as a right-in only via Trasker's Blvd. The proposed redevelopment did away with the right-in access via Trasker's Blvd. and is maintaining the original access via Prince Frederick Blvd."

Before appearing before the planning commission at their Aug. 21 meeting, the applicant secured approval from the planning commission administrator for a reduction of the side setback to the adjacent Chick-fil-a parcel from 20 feet to zero feet.

The site plan was unanimously approved by the planning commission.

Also, at the Aug. 21 meeting, the planners:

- Approved the site plan for 96 units in several three-story apartment buildings as the first phase of the Calvert Hills project off Prince Frederick Blvd. It will also include a community center.
- Approved the replacement of fuel pumps with extended canopies for the Gott Shell Station at the corner of Routes 2/4 and West Dares Beach Road. The canopies will have the same Shell logo as the existing canopy.

Press Release from Calvert County Government

Calvert Democrats Honor Labor on Labor Day

President Barack Obama once explained, "It was the labor movement that helped secure so much of what we take for granted today. The 40-hour work-week, the minimum wage, family leave, health insurance, Social Security, Medicare, and retirement plans. The cornerstones of middle-class security all bear the union label."

The Calvert County Democratic Party is determined to keep fighting for workers and their families. As we enjoy this unofficial final weekend of summer, let's recognize the debt of gratitude we owe labor unions and remember that labor needs our support now more than ever. To our electricians, steamfitters, laborers, teachers, hospitality workers, Teamsters, food workers, and other union members, thank you for building America, caring for families, and keeping us safe.

Happy Labor Day!

A SPECIAL PULL-OUT SECTION

Curry: The Schools are Ready

BY DICK MYERS
EDITOR

Calvert County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Daniel Curry says it's been a busy summer for him and his staff, but everything will be ready when the doors of the schools swing open on Tuesday, Sept. 3. "Every summer goes faster and faster. I'm not sure why. Maybe it's just when you get older," Curry said. Students not age challenged would probably still agree it went much too quickly.

The days before school open are filled with activities for teachers, parents and children. On Aug. 22 and 23, new teacher orientation was held. "New teachers from all backgrounds and grade levels get together and get some training on the basics. That is important to everyone," he said.

This year the school system has 85 new teachers, of which 25 are starting their first teaching assignment. All take the orientation together, although the newbies are also assigned a mentor to help them through their first year.

After the combined orientation, Curry said the brand-new teachers "have time to work in their room and meet with their mentor teacher who is generally someone from their school who has more experience, who can guide them and help them."

Parents will have the opportunity to attend open houses at the home school of their child or children. The open house schedules appear elsewhere in this special section.

Also, the 6th and 9th grade optional orientations for new middle and high schoolers will be held on Friday, Aug. 30.

Dr. Curry said there were two things new this year that he would like to bring to everyone's attention. He said, "This is year-two of our three-year plan to put technology in every student's hand. So, last year we began with third grade, sixth grade, and enough for about one third of our high school students. This year it will be fourth grade, seventh grade, and two-thirds of our high school students."

He said some schools already have computers in the hands of almost everyone, but "Our schools were able to be brand new for fourth graders and it will be brand new for all seventh graders."

He explained: "Another thing we're rolling out that's kind of unique is we've just concluded from surveying our kids and from anecdotal evidence that our students aren't real nice to each other."

He said, "In their casual time on the bus or hanging out, they can be really mean to each other."

The surveys show that 85 percent of students feel their principals respect them but only 45 percent say their classmates respect them.

Why that is true, Dr. Curry isn't sure. He said, "There are certain words." He has observed students at club or community activities helping out. "When they weren't helping, they were interacting with each other and I walked away just thinking their way of interacting with each other is to poke at each other and insult each other using the 'r' word or using 'that's so gay.'

In today's hip-hop culture, it seems like the racist 'n' word is used casually in reference to your friend."

He added, "Black to black. But sometimes we'll catch a white kid to a white kid using that word toward their friends."

So, he said, "We are aiming to put a stop to that. And we are introducing a program called 'Speak Up' at school and it's intended to respond to everyday stereotypes and biases. We're going to roll it out to the teachers next week (the week of Aug, 26), and what we want all teachers to do is to know that we expect them to stop in their tracks when they hear such talk and say 'No!'"

He said of the teacher training, "For the most part, it's pretty simple and straightforward. No. 1, say 'no,' that is not acceptable. So, you interrupt. But another approach after that interruption is to ask questions. Do you know what that means? Do you know how that hurts people? And often, especially for some of the younger ones, we're going to find that they don't really know what they're saying. They don't really know what the words mean.

"So, then there's the opportunity to educate. Well, 'let me tell you how hateful that is for you to ever to use that word.' We want to give the students the same tools so that they can use in their social groups because some of the students share with us how uncomfortable they are with the words some of their peers talk."

Regarding the technology, Dr. Curry said, "All of us in the workplace are using technology on a regular basis to get the job done. And the more students are going to be able to use technology to get the job done, that includes collaborating with other students, from other countries, from other schools, from other states."

The school system wants students to have access to high-speed internet, and that, he said, means expansion to parts of Calvert County that don't have it. That would give students access to technology at home.

"It changes the face of how we look at things, like snow days."

He also said they are doing more teaching on a platform called "Schoolology." In the future parents, he said, "could also log on and they can see the child's work that was submitted digitally."

CALVERT COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT DR. DANIEL CURRY

All school buses will also have a new GPS system that should be fully functional after about a month of testing. He said, "Then we're going to be connected to a system where parents can download an app and they will be able to look on the app to see where their kid is."

He added, "My kid rides Bus 15. It's usually here by now. Whereas they can bring it up on the app and say, okay, it's a half mile away. That can be helpful to parents who might be a little anxious when a bus might be in a delay for one reason or other."

The school system is also continuing to roll out security measures, particularly in the vestibules, requiring visitors to go to the office instead of just wondering into the lobby after being buzzed in.

Curry said, "Our goal with vestibule redesign is to change that. And we have made the changes this summer at Huntingtown High School, Southern and Plum Point middle schools, and Calvert Career Academy. Each of those has a new entry design."

The unfinished schools, four or five he said, are expected to be completed next summer.

Also, there have been some not-so-visible security improvements. He said, "When I first moved here to Calvert County in 2014, we had no security cameras in any of our schools. This year we have finished up all of our elementary schools. Now we have security cameras monitoring all the common areas, the hallways, the entryways. All 24 schools now have security."

Those improvements have been made with the help of extra monies from the county and state. And the state has ponied up extra monies so the teachers' first paycheck will be larger as the school year begins.

Is Your Dental Office Safe?

Untreated waterlines in the dental office can affect your health.

The next time you go to your dentist's office, before you let them spray water in your mouth, ask them how, and where their water lines are treated.

The Problem: The flexible lines that go from the water pipes in your dental office to the delivery system at the chairside are made of materials that are the perfect environment for the growth of biofilm. Biofilm is made up of bacteria colonies that adhere to the inner walls of the dental hosing. When not properly treated, these water lines and valves become coated with bacteria that grows exponentially at room temperature and contaminates the water that is used to irrigate and rinse your mouth. This water can be unsafe!

City water, often considered to be safe for consumption, reaches the dental office in potable form. Dental offices, aware of the need for added water quality and safety may even have a water treatment system at the source where the water enters the building.

While this proactive measure helps reduce risk, what most dentists don't realize is that the water that sits in the lines for long periods of time, such as over a weekend, will still grow this dangerous bacterium.

The Risk: Microbacterium Abscessus, a bacterium with a distant relation to the ones that cause tuberculosis and leprosy, can cause infections in patients when contaminated water supplies are used to irrigate the mouth. A simple google search of "dental practice, water, illness" will result in many articles about lawsuits and unfortunate outcomes to patients including children in Georgia, New Jersey, Virginia, and California.

The Solution: It is not enough to treat the water lines in a dental office as the bacterium can still grow after the fact. Each dental operatory must be treated at the instrumentation that is used on the patients to ensure safety. One such company at the forefront of treating water effectively, above and beyond the EPA, CDC and ADA minimum standard of water quality compliance is Sterisil, Inc. Using Sterisil's latest and best products a dental office can achieve results of < 11 CFU/ml HPC water purity. These are virtually the lowest levels achievable today, and they are well beyond the EPA's recommendation of less than 500 colony forming units (CFU) per milliliter (ml).

Sterisil's solution is a combination of treating the water at entry to the practice and at the dental chair where the instrumentation connects to the flexible water hosing. This takes virtually all risk out of the water supply, ensuring safe water while treating the patient.

Proof: It is your dental office's obligation to ensure all measures are being taken to assure your safety while in the care of your dental provider. Dentists are to follow guidelines on safety, sanitation, standard of care and product quality. It is your right to know what your dentist is doing to assure your safety. Don't be afraid to ask your dentist how they treat the water in the office. Ask them where it is treated (at the chair and/or at the utility hook-up). Ask them if they test their water for consumable quality and how often. They should be able to supply test results.

Tidewater Dental a leading provider of dental care in southern Maryland has made it their mission to ensure the safety of their patients through the use of quality equipment, systems, services and procedures that put the patient first. Yes, it costs more. Yes, it may take more time. But, patient safety and experience are paramount to ensuring our patients leave our offices healthy and happy. For this reason, Tidewater Dental has partnered with Sterisil, Inc. to provide the purest and safest water possible at all of our locations.

Ground Broken for CSM Health Services Building Will Be Second Building at Hughesville Campus

An artist's rendering of the new facility

The College of Southern Maryland celebrated with local dignitaries and regional health care officials during the Aug. 27 sod-turning ceremony that signaled the ground breaking for the new Center for Health Sciences Building at the Regional Hughesville Campus.

Beautiful weather greeted the field of regional leaders, health care providers, College of Southern Maryland officials and guests during the ceremonial groundbreaking for CSM's new Center for Health Science at the college's Regional Hughesville Campus Aug. 27. The center – projected to be completed in March 2021 – will be approximately 50,000 square feet, designed to LEED standards and will feature specialized health sciences laboratories for CSM's programs in nursing, emergency medical services, rehabilitation, wellness and fitness, massage therapy, pharmacy technician, medical assisting, health information management and medical coding, and medical laboratory technology.

"The college has been offering practical nursing training since 1975, and this year, 2019," she continued, "represents the 40th anniversary of the college's associate degree in nursing program. We look forward to continuing this strong tradition and to train our health care workers well into the future within this space at the Regional Hughesville Campus. The Center for Health Sciences will be regional in nature, central in location, and accessible for all whom we serve."

Harwood said that the trustees are thrilled to have the master plan – designed by Grimm & Parker Architects – moving forward to provide a centralized campus designed to create a sense of community.

Joining in the morning's ceremony to offer greetings were Secretary of the Maryland Higher Education Commission Dr. James Fielder; Southern Maryland Delegation Chair Delegate C.T. Wilson, Charles County Delegation Chair Delegate Edith Patterson, Charles County Board of County Commissioners' President Reuben B. Collins III, St. Mary's County Board of County Commissioners' President James R. "Randy" Guy and Calvert County Board of County Commissioners' President Thomas "Tim" Hutchins.

Fielder's announcement that "this is a tremendous day," was met by applause from the packed room at the Center for Trades and Energy Training – the first phase and building at the Regional Hughesville Campus. The Center for Health Sciences will mark Phase II.

"CSM takes care of the needs of our population's increasing demand for highly able and committed health professionals," offered Patterson. "Attend any graduation and those of you who have attended know what I am going to say. Winter or spring, you will visually witness the number of health professionals and graduates who have purposefully chosen this college. They are spirited – first of all. They are smart, they have been selected and they are ready to take on the world."

The St. Mary's County Board of County Commissioners took the opportunity to present Murphy with a proclamation during the event to commemorate the region's support.

Hutchins recalled for the crowd, when two decades ago, as a graduate of then Charles County Community College, he returned to CSM to deliver the keynote address at the January 2000 graduation.

"In my remarks that evening, I recall speaking directly to the graduates' future successes and to a specific duty of the academic society that they were about to join; that is the duty to humankind," Hutchins shared. "Thus, we celebrate today another new addition to CSM's educational acumen, which continues to strengthen the entire region economically and provides our population with a local world class college."

Hutchins went on to call CSM "an inseparable part of Southern Maryland's great heritage and key component of who we are as a region."

According to CSM Vice President of Academic Affairs Dr. Eileen Abel, the new center will encompass credit degree programs like nursing, emergency medical services, rehabilitation, wellness and fitness, massage therapy, pharmacy technician, medical assisting, health information management and medical coding, and medical laboratory technology.

"The Health Pathway at CSM offers such an extensive choice of medical training for a number of different careers," said Abel. "Some health care professionals such as nurses, health information managers, and medical laboratory technicians can expect to get started in their careers after two years; others like medical assistants, pharmacy technicians, and phlebotomists can become certified in a matter of weeks or months. It is for these students that this facility has been designed."

"I am proud to be a graduate of this institution," said special guest speaker Vice President and Chief Nursing Officer at MedStar St. Mary's Hospital Dawn

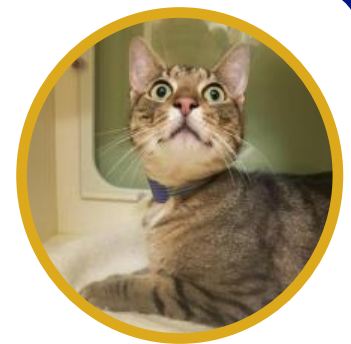

Yeitakis, MS, RN, NEA-BC, CEN and CSM '96 alumnus. "The foundation I received at the College of Southern Maryland shaped who I am as a professional and who I am as a person."

Described by the architects as a forward-thinking and flexible science building, the center will include a clinical simulation center, classrooms, computer lab, collaborative learning spaces, Health Sciences faculty and staff offices, a student success suite and a large multi-purpose meeting room.
