Title IX Violations Alleged in School System

Complaint of Inequality in Women's Sports

By Dick Myers Editor

The Calvert County Board of Education has been accused of violations of Title IX of the civil rights act for alleged unequal treatment for several girls' sports activities at Northern High School (NHS). The allegation was filed by Beth Bubser of Dunkirk.

Title IX, now known as the Patsy T. Mink Equal Opportunity in Education Act, after the congresswoman who cosponsored it, says: "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance."

Bubser and her husband John have been frequent critics of the school system's scaled-down plans for tennis courts for the Northern High School teams at the new facility under construction. The couple and other parents, faculty and students allege the four courts (soon to be six with renovation if abandoned courts at Northern Middle Schools) do not match their neighbor at Huntingtown High School.

School Superintendent Dr. Daniel Curry said the original plans for the courts had to be scaled down to bring the Northern High School construction project within budget.

The Title IX complaint extends Bubser's concerns. She said, "We believe NHS is not in compliance with Title IX regarding Girls Tennis and there seems to be a pattern...softball and field hockey."

Bubser asked in an email to The Country Times, "Why were the geothermal wells built under the baseball field instead of the softball field? So the baseball team would receive new sod, a new irrigation system and a new privacy fence which was at the discretion of the principal, supervisor of athletics and activities director." She said that was also a carrot to help the school keep its former football coach as the new baseball coach instead of taking a job at prestigious DeMatha High School.

She said, "The softball team has won eight state championships and plays on a rinky-dink field which would have been more deserving an up-grade to place the geo-thermal wells on that field. The baseball team has never won a state championship."

Bubser alleges the field hockey team has been likewise discriminated against.

She met with the school system's Title IX coordinator Kim Roof. Bubser said Roof denied her allegations.

She has thus filed a complaint with the school board and also notified the Maryland State Board of Education's Title IX coordinator, Director of the Equity Assurance and Compliance Office Kim Johnson.

Johnson told The County Times that Bubser's complaint must be fully adjudicated by the school board. They have yet to hear the case. Johnson said the school board, if they deny the complaint, will give Bubser appeal options.

Bubser filed an 18-page formal complaint, which Curry has answered in an eight-page response. Instead of addressing the allegations, Curry writes that Bubser "lacks stranding for appeal" since both of her daughters have graduated and thus could not be harmed by what the school system is now doing.

He wrote that case law requires the appellant "be personally and specifically affected in a way different from the public generally ... and therefore aggrieved by the final decision of the (local) board."

He also said the appeal is "moot" as to any allegations about last year's teams, because "there is no longer any effective remedy."

Three NHS coaches have joined Bubser in her effort. They addressed concerns about the upcoming spring season. Curry wrote that they had failed to complete the formal process, and thus "the appeal is not ripe for review."

Bubser said she is preparing her counter response to Curry's response.

Local USM Branch Faces Major Funding Cuts

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

The head of the board of advisors at the University System of Maryland at Southern Maryland (USMSM), formerly the Southern Maryland Higher Education Center, is warning that the newly minted facility's budget is facing a 20 percent cut to its current budget as well as next year's spending plan.

"The Department of Legislative Services has recommended a $500,000 cut to our fiscal 2020 operating budget, to be taken from awarded Workforce Development Funds and a $300,000 reduction in WDI funds from our budget request for fiscal 2021," Joe Anderson wrote to the Commissioners of St. Mary's County. "If approved, these cuts will seriously hamstring our efforts to recruit and implement high quality, workforce relevant undergraduate and graduate degree and training programs from our college and university partners.

"[It will] surely discourage quality applicants for our executive director position that we hope to hire this spring."

The local university system branch is also the planned home of a third autonomous systems research and development and teaching building currently under construction; the building is widely anticipated to be a hub for advanced technology development that can be taken to the civilian marketplace.

Anderson's letters purpose was to ask the commissioners to voice their opposition to the proposed cuts; the commissioners voted unanimously in favor of Anderson's request at their Feb. 25 meeting.

The proposed cuts come at a time when the Democrat-led legislature in Annapolis is considering lowering the sales tax back to five percent but expanding the sales tax to include nearly all manor of services, from landscaping to tax preparation and accounting.

The estimated $2.6 billion in extra revenue raised would supposedly be used to fund the massive expenditures recommended by the Kirwan Commission to improve public education in Maryland.

Gov. Larry Hogan has said he will not allow such a vast tax increase.

Commissioner Todd Morgan said the cuts he and the commissioners were asked to oppose were due to the Kirwan Commission.

"They're scooping up everything to pay for Kirwan," Morgan said. "That's the bottom line."

Route 231 Rises to Top Road Priority

TJ Bridge Downgraded to Number 3

By Dick Myers Editor

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) will tell the state they now consider Route 231 to be the county's Number 1 road priority. For the past few years, the replacement Gov. Thomas Johnson Bridge has made the top spot

The change is a recognition that the bridge, with its hefty price tag, has dropped off the state's radar screen.

"I don't think my great grandkids will see it," quipped Commissioner Mike Hart. Every year the county sends a letter listing its road priorities to the Maryland Secretary of Transportation and the Tri-County Council follows up with a letter of regional priorities. Last year, St. Mary's County demoted the bridge for the same reason – lack of stare interest.

The letter drafted by staff says of Route 231: "MD 231 Corridor Improvements --Based on study findings, the County requests necessary design improvements and construction thereof to help move the traffic safely and efficiently. These improvements to this corridor are critical, for not only the safe movement of daily commuters but will also act as an important emergency evacuation route out of the area. This highway is a major artery linking Southern Maryland. It is one of the most heavily traveled single lane highways in the area. MD 231 is part of the triangle of highway connections consisting of MD 2/4, MD 235 and MD 5. This triangle connection is a potential commerce zone for the Tri-County area. This entire corridor should be assessed for safety and level of service improvements at various intersections from MD 2/4 to MD 5. The upgrade of MD 231 will be vital to Southern Maryland's Regionally Significant Project to enhance Commuter Bus Services and further Park and Ride development in Charles, Calvert and St. Mary's counties."

Commissioner Tim Hutchins, a strong advocate for Route 231, took note of its importance as an alternate evacuation route. But he also emphasized the continuing need for a new Gov. Thomas Johnson Bridge and its importance to the Patuxent River Naval Air Station and national security. He said the need should continue to be brought to the attention of the area's federal representatives.

Hutchins said the county's top three priorities were all important. The second priority is the completion of Routes 2/4 in Prince Frederick.

Hutchins also emphasized the need for a corridor study of the entire length of Route 4 from the White House to over the bridge into St. Mary's County.

National Board Recognizes CSM's Pharmacy Technician Program

The College of Southern Maryland (CSM) Pharmacy Technician Program has been recognized by the nation's leading certifying organization for pharmacy technicians as ready and prepared to meet significant Certified Pharmacy Technician Program (CPhT) changes taking effect Jan. 1, 2020.

The Pharmacy Technician Certification Board (PTCB) announced in January 2019 that it was changing eligibility requirements for CPhT programs and updating its Pharmacy Technician Certification Exam (PTCE) next year to make the requirements more rigorous.

"PTCB relies on data and pharmacy stakeholder conversations in all we do with the goal of advancing medication safety," PTCB Executive Director and CEO William Schimmel was quoted as saying in a recent press release. "The new eligibility requirements are based on input from pharmacy professionals that certain knowledge, skills and abilities are acquired most effectively through education/training or work experience. Pharmacy employers can be confident that PTCB-certified pharmacy technicians have demonstrated they have the knowledge to advance patient care in today's pharmacy."

"We are thrilled that CSM's Pharmacy Technician Program is recognized as already fulfilling the more demanding training eligibility requirements that CPhT applicants will have to meet in January 2020," said CSM Assistant Professor and Alllied Health Program Coordinator Sharon Baker, P.D., M.S. BSPharm. "We have always felt our technician program delved into the intricacies of pharmaceutical demands well beyond standard requirements and this diesignation proves that."

CSM's Pharmacy Technician program is part of the college's Health Pathway course of study. To help focus students as they begin their coursework at CSM, the college's 92 programs are placed within six program clusters called 'Guided Pathways.' The six pathways include: art and humanities; business and information systems; education and public service; health; science, technology, engineering and math; and, trades, transportation and energy.

Learn more about CSM's Pharmacy Technician Program, the Health Pathway or any of CSM's other five Guided Pathways, by visiting online at https://www.csmd.edu/programs-courses/pathways/.

Traffic: Prince Frederick's Biggest Concern

500 Respond to On-Line Survey

By Dick Myers Editor

Attendees at the third public meeting on the update of the Prince Frederick Town Center Master Plan heard results of a survey and then had an opportunity to share their ideas and concerns during four breakout sessions.

The workshop on March 2 at the College of Southern Maryland, unlike the previous one, was less raucous and more well-mannered. Afterwards, Planning Commission member, Dr. Richard Holler and County Commissioner Buddy Hance commended planning staff for the outcome. Hance noted that a lot of the same issues were raised in each of the four breakout sessions.

The survey handed out at the Jan, 31 meeting and then available online elicited almost 500 responses and traffic concerns bubbled to the top as the town center's biggest challenge and also the biggest change in the town center in the last 10 years.

Only 28 percent of the survey respondents lived in Prince Frederick, underscoring the town's importance as a place to shop, work, go to school, and yes, travel through.

So, traffic was also an issue that repeated itself again and again in the breakout sessions. But attendees also wanted a more walkable town, with communities connected internally and externally with sidewalks and more hiker/biker trails, including a connection to the Chesapeake Bay in addition to the existing American Chestnut Land Trust trail.

An idea that repeated itself in the breakout sessions was a pedestrian bridge over Routes 2/4 to connect the parts of the town center that are now hopelessly divided by a six-lane highway.

There was also considerable discussion on the need for a more diverse mix of housing, including affordable workforce housing. And there was support for mixed uses within developments of commercial and residential.

Strong support occurred in all the breakout sessions for reviving the old town as a vibrant center. It was noted the old town near the courthouse was a ghost town after 5 p.m. weekdays and on weekends.

Attendees also wanted to see more small, homegrown businesses instead of chains and big boxes, and a better mix of retail. They also wanted more cultural activities, such as museums and art galleries. The idea of a county museum of the quality of Calvert Marine Museum had support.

The ideas gathered will be used to develop additional workshops. Two sessions focusing on key needs areas are scheduled, the next being in May.

Long-range Planner Jenny Plummer-Welker said several trips are planned for the spring: a walking and/or hiking tour, a bicycling jaunt and a bus tour for those less-athletically inclined.

He quickly moved up the ranks becoming a battalion operations officer in June 2003, battalion executive officer in 2004 and material management and logistics officer in October 2006.

In November 2007, Dull joined the National Guard Bureau Joint Staff where he served as a strategic analyst/counter-narcotics program manager. There, he served as lead strategist for the joint staff, identifying and bridging gaps between policies while providing reports and analysis on key information and objectives to senior leaders. Dull later became commander for the 29th Combat Aviation Brigade and ended his career with the Army National Guard as the chief of staff for the 29th Infantry Division. In this role, he was responsible for leading organization activities and operational planning by successfully supporting and implementing a strategic framework with more than 500 executive-level staff and three chief executives. He identified necessary resources and managed budget constraints to meet established priorities and goals.

Dull holds a bachelor's degree in marketing and management and a master's degree in business administration, with a concentration in finance.

"Kerry has a diverse background and has held several key leadership positions that make him an outstanding fit as general services director," said Commissioner President Kelly McConkey. "We are excited to have his level of expertise contributing to the important decisions made to benefit our community."

Simplifying Density Requirements

Staff Propose Nine Changes

By: Dick Myers Editor

As the staff of Calvert County Department of Planning and Zoning work on revising the county's zoning ordinance to conform to the new comprehensive plan, they have suggested some changes to make the regulations on density more consistent and understandable. Density requirements determine how many houses can go on a piece of property.

Nine proposed changes were presented to the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) at their March 3 meeting.

Regarding density, Director of Planning and Zoning Mary Beth Cook said, "That calculation is very confusing." She added, "We really want to simplify that calculation."

Sone of the proposals seemed to benefit landowners and developers and others appeared to work against them. The one that drew the most discussion would allow developers to use gross area instead of net area to calculate units available for development. Currently any wetlands area has to be removed before determining density. For instance, if there were 100 acres but 25 acres were wetlands, then the area used to calculate density would be 75 acres. The proposal would eliminate that requirement and density would be based on 100 acres. Commissioner Buddy Hance asked if that would allow more homes, and he was told it would. He asked why the proposed change.

Acting Deputy Planning Director Carolyn Sunderland said it would eliminate the developer having to pay for a wetland delineation report. Hance said they had to do that anyway. Sunderland said the requirement can sometimes be lessened.

Sunderland noted that the landowner pays taxes on the wetlands. Hance said those taxation requirements could be eliminated for wetlands.

Another existing requirement allows developers to be exempted from preserving existing environmental, cultural and historic resources." The proposed change would make those requirements mandatory.

Another change would reinstitute mandatory clustering for all residential development outside Agricultural Preservation Districts and town centers.

While some of the current regulations may be confusing, judging from the comments of the BOCC, some of the proposals may also be confusing.

County Administrator Mark Willis, former planning and zoning director, said, "This work session shows the complexity of it." He said staff hope to simplify the issue by presenting more information including maps showing the various density requirements.

Health Care Community Prepared for Coronavirus

By Dick Myers Editor

"Be Prepared!" It's the Boy Scout motto but it also seems an entirely appropriate description of how Calvert County's health care community is dealing with the prospect of coronavirus here

CalvertHealth's Executive Director of Quality and Safety Nicole Heddrich said, "We're confident in our capability to care for our community and also not just our community but our health care workers."

Calvert County Health Officer Dr. Larry Polsky said, "The health department has been in regular contact multiple times a week with our partners at state level and federal level. So, we're part of teleconferences with the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and with the infectious disease specialists at the Maryland Department of Health, getting all the latest information as far as what's been happening in other parts of the world. And in terms of preparation in the U.S. and then more locally in Maryland, we also communicate regularly with our county partners and that would include the hospital and with individual medical practices."

Polsky noted that Nancy Pope, a registered nurse with the disease surveillance and response unit within the health departments community health division, had just the day before (Feb. 27) met with the urgent care providers here.

Polsky said, "We want to make sure that the urgent cares are prepared if they should need to evaluate and screen what the proper protocols, procedures are." He added, "We work with our EMS crews. Anyone who potentially could be a point of contact for someone who could have coronavirus infection."

Polsky said the communication includes regular weekly county commissioner staff meetings and regular contact with all health department employees.

Polsky noted there have been a series of viruses over the years. "So, the actual disease shifts from time to time, but many of the responses are fundamental. And so, there's no panic because we've been through this drill before. The way that we communicate with the public, the specific types of precautions taken will change. But that's why you have public health professionals so that when something like coronavirus comes up, it's not reinventing the wheel. We're just modifying our preexisting plans."

Heddrich said, "We've actually been in preparation for over three weeks now. We've taken a very proactive approach to handling the situation. We've already had emergency plans in place for any infectious disease outbreak and that's something that we already had. We are taking a look at those and just making sure that what we have in place already is up-to-date and matches the requirements for this particular event. We've been meeting with key stakeholders on a routine basis."

Coronavirus of varying types have long existed and have been known to health care professionals, but this iteration is new, leading it to be called novel coronavirus, or COVID 19.

It causes respiratory illness that can become severe, even lethal, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC)

Symptoms of COVID 19 infection include fever, cough, shortness of breath; these symptoms usually become apparent within two to 14 days after infection, according to the CDC.

The virus is believed to have started in Wuhan, China in December and has since spread internationally; it is spread through person to person contact, according to the CDC, either by people who are standing about six feet apart or by droplets from coughing or sneezing.

The CDC also reports the virus may be able to spread via contact with surfaces that have been contaminated by the virus.

No vaccine currently exists for coronavirus, the CDC reports, and health professionals caution the public to avoid people who are sick, avoid touching their eyes, nose and mouth and to stay home if they are sick.

They also encourage frequent washing and cleaning of hands and surfaces to help stop the infection from spreading.

They advise anyone who believes they have coronavirus, or are exhibiting similar symptoms, to contact a health care professional first and explain their symptoms as well as their recent contacts and travel history; the professional would then advise whether they needed to be tested for COVID 19.

There are more than 100 cases of coronavirus known in the United States and six people have died so far, all in Washington state.

Coronavirus has spread to at least 15 states; in Maryland six people have undergone COVID 19 testing, five of them have tested negative, according to the state's Department of Health.

No cases in Maryland have been confirmed.

The CDC reports that between October of last year to the present that between 35 to 45 million people have been infected with influenza with 310,000 to 560,000 hospitalizations and between 18,000 to 46,000 deaths.

Janette Bowling, CalvertHealth's infectious disease practitioner, said of current admission protocol, "We've actually expanded our screenings to not just the emergency room and to the hospital itself, but also to our primary care offices and our outpatient areas."

Bowling said of coronavirus, "It's a new bar. It's a new virus, but we still follow the same surveillance and precautions and procedures and processes that we do for anything like with the flu or any type of illness."

Everyone is now being asked if they've traveled abroad or had contact with someone who has. Bowling explained, "If they've answered yes to those questions, we're going to take it a step further and do some screening as far as symptom management."

The hospital has taken visitor restrictions one step further, Bowling said, "Not just with the coronavirus, but also with the flu because that's a concern as well this time that we've restricted our visitors. So, we would like for children and anyone who's ill and not requiring hospital services to stay at home and that will help reduce their risk."

If they do test positive, she said, "We would implement all of our isolation practices that we currently have in place. We would be in direct collaboration with the local and the state health department." They would be isolated with CalvertHealth Medical Center unless the state health department requests a move.

Bowling said, "Because it's an emerging disease, our recommendations are coming directly from the CDC and the health department. Those recommendations are standard contact and airborne isolation. And we already have protocols in place to be able to implement that for any patient coming in who would need those levels of isolation."

Heddrich noted, "We do have sufficient supplies. Obviously with any outbreak we always look to our materials management vendors and we have already been in contact with them and we already have plans in place. We would work directly with the health department when we should need more supplies."

Workers at main entry points have masks available

Calvert County Health Officer Dr. Larry Polsky with Nancy Pope, an RN with the disease surveillance and response unit within the health departments community health division

"for individuals who come in who are experiencing respiratory symptoms," Heddrich said.

There have been some cases in the United States of people who haven't traveled overseas or had direct contact with someone who has. Heddrich explained, "With any patient, the thorough background that we do when they come in and the clinical judgment that our providers apply to any case is what is helping lead us to make those decisions. They may not have traveled, but based off of presentation and clinical symptoms, the providers would use their judgment to notify us to be able to notify the health department and then they would make the decision at that point as to whether or not they felt someone would be appropriate to be investigated."

Polsky said, "We've been in contact on a regular basis with the schools who understandably would be concerned that once infectious disease comes into a community that in school settings, we know that things can spread rapidly."

Polsky observed, "While it is a new virus, it is spread essentially the same as the regular flu. So, people do need to know that they need to protect themselves by washing their hands; if they're sick, staying home. Kind of the same measures that we recommend during flu season, which of course it's still going on."

Of course. the big difference is the still lack of a vaccine for coronavirus. Polsky noted, "Unfortunately, the majority of adults in our country don't take advantage of getting flu vaccines, which is a large part of the reason that we still see so many flu deaths. People who otherwise would protect themselves with vaccination don't have that option."

Some viruses play out at the end of the flu season. But Polsky said, "There's a family of viruses called adeno virus that tend to be year-round. Polio, which fortunately has not been a problem in this country, for decades was typically a summer, warm weather virus. And so, each virus family has its characteristics."

Heddrich's message to the community: "Remember to practice good infection control mitigation. That would be excellent hand hygiene. Practicing respiratory etiquette -- cover your cough and any sneezes. If you're sick to stay at home. And to just be cognizant of what's going on."

Chief Mills Receives National Hero Award

North Beach Volunteer Fire Department Chief Thomas C. Mills has received the Firefighter Hero Award from the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation (NFFF) and MAGLITE®. The award was prresenfred Feb. 27 at a firehouse ceremony.

Chief Mills was honored for his leadership in response to a tragic fire that took the lives of two civilians and nearly killed several firefighters. Chief Mills personally led the effort to ensure the incident and the lessons learned were shared with local response partners as well as the fire service at large and worked alongside local government leaders to assist the community in its recovery.

On April 3, 2019, a fast-moving fire erupted in a row of townhouses, quickly trapping two occupants in their home. Firefighters arrived on the scene and encountered "heavy fire conditions in multiple townhouses and occupants trapped." They immediately initiated a search for the occupants and summoned backup from nearby fire departments, reaching out to units as far away as Prince George's and Anne Arundel counties. During the first few minutes, one townhouse collapsed, killing the two occupants, and a second townhouse collapsed, nearly killing two firefighters conducting a search for the trapped occupants. The blaze was under control approximately two hours later. The fire tragically took the lives of the civilians, destroyed five townhouses and damaged several others. In addition, several firefighters were injured, including the two caught in the collapse.

"It's always a good day when we can take the time to acknowledge the great work being done by firefighters and fire departments around the country," said Chief Ronald Siarnicki, Executive Director of the NFFF. "Thanks to MAGLITE, more people will now know about the great efforts by the fire service to keep us all safe."

"Chief Mills is a highly motivated leader of our department and on a daily basis he is a strong supportive presence within the community", Said Deputy Chief Stephen Stanton. "Mills' leads through innovative actions, constant dedication, and a genuine care for the personnel of our department and the fire service as a whole."

"We are forever grateful for the leadership of Chief Mills, and the dedication he has for sharing our lessons learned". "We appreciate MAGLITE and the NFFF for the honor and recognition of our Chief"- Stanton said.

The National Firefighter Hero program is a joint effort between MAGLITE® and the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation. The program periodically honors single firefighters, groups or whole departments for extraordinary commitment to upholding excellence in firefighting and related activities.

"Although it is always tragic when people are injured or killed in a horrific fire like this it is important to recognize the heroism of those who battled the blaze and have used it to learn from and prepare for future incidents like Chief Mills," said Anthony Maglica, Founder and CEO of Mag Instrument Inc. "This is why we are committed to supporting this program and the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation. I am very happy to honor these true heroes with this award and a donation to the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation in their name which will be permanently displayed on a brick at the National Fallen Firefighters Walk of Honor."

Bette was an esthetician and makeup artist for over thirty years and she loved animals.

Bette is survived by her children, Jessica Buchanan (Eric) of Lusby, MD and Christopher Middendorf (Destiny) of Lewes, DE; grandchildren, Kaylee Sandoval, Alivia Middendorf, Chase Buchanan and Kennedy Yoder; and her significant other of fourteen years, David Scott.

A Celebration of Life will be held on Saturday, April 11, 2020 from 2:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. at the Northeast Community Center, 4075 Gordon Stinnett Avenue, Chesapeake Beach, MD 20732.

Funeral arrangements were made by Rausch Funeral Home.

Jeffrey Alan Klapper

Jeffrey Alan Klapper, age 76, of Prince Frederick, MD, passed away in his home due to complications of cancer on Monday, February 24, 2020.

Born in Lower Merion Township, PA, on September 10, 1943, he was the son of the late Gerhardt Elmer and Dorothy Patricia (Cowie) Klapper. Jeff was the owner of L.J. Cowie Company, the printing and engraving business begun by his late grandfather. He retired in 2007 after 27 years to focus on his family and his community. He was an intense advocate for Calvert County and this world, looking to protect the roads, the history, and the land. His most valuable asset was the love of his family, especially his grandchildren whom he loved deeply and to whom he was eternally loyal.

Jeff had a love of history, conservation and gardening. He combined these loves and his gifts of knowledge and horticulture to be a fierce advocate for the American Chestnut Land Trust (ACLT) and to preserve the historic Old WallVille One-Room Schoolhouse. In 2004, Jeff began working at the ACLT to clear trails, build trails, a barn and a raft to safely cross Parker's Creek. In 2011, Jeff was the recipient of Ralph Dwan Memorial Conservation Award for the launching of the Double Oak Farm CSA in 2010. The CSA is his most significant contribution to the ACLT, a flourishing organic one-acre community garden plot which he started from dry earth and still thrives today.

Jeff's love of all things nature took him on many cross-country camping adventures. He saw National Parks from the Northeast to the Northwest. His most remembered trip was to Bryce Canyon, UT. With a voracious appetite for knowledge, he was always reading and learning about trees, flowers, science, poets, authors and music. If you needed to know a fact about something in history, Jeff would have the answer. If you needed to know a line from a song, Jeff would sing it and tell you the history of what it was about and, thankfully, his own memory of why that song had meaning to him. If your house or car or tractor needed a repair, he'd know how to fix it and would have built or found the parts to make it right. He was an endlessly devoted man who believed that preserving his community was worth the fight and was a tireless supporter to anyone who shared his commitment to that goal. He was strong, strong-willed, bright, loving, selfless and brave. Jeff focused his life in retirement on building protections for nature and his community and, through that, created a family much larger than those who loved him at home.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his brother, David Windwalker; his sister, Linda Gubbine; and his son, Christopher Klapper. Jeff is survived by his wife of 32 years, Nancy Klapper; son, Matthew Klapper of Lusby, MD; daughter-in-law, Belinda Klapper; daughter, Elizabeth (Klapper) Deutch of South Lyon, MI; son-in-law Steven Deutch; step-daughter, Parran Collery of Broomes Island, MD; step-son, Alexander Collery of Upper Marlboro, MD; daughter-in-law Mary Chamberlain; grandchildren, Calvin and Connor Klapper, Owen and Ethan Col-lery, Margaret Klapper, and Sophie Deutch; and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

A service and celebration for family and friends will be held from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Sunday, April 5, 2020, at the Prince Frederick Volunteer Rescue Squad, 755 Solomons Island Road S, Prince Frederick, MD 20678, where we will honor Jeff and share our stories of his amazing life. Interment will be held privately.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made in Jeff's memory to the American Chestnut Land Trust, 676 Double Oak Road, Prince Frederick, MD 20678.

Funeral arrangements were by Rausch Funeral Home.

St. Mary's College Adds New Varsity Sport

On February 1, 2020, the Board of Trustees of St. Mary's College of Maryland approved a proposal to develop and implement new varsity men's and women's track and field programs. The decision was made after a review of recommendations from a Board of Trustees Task Force, formed in 2019 at the request of President Tuajuanda C. Jordan. The proposal was submitted in response to a request for new academic and co-curricular programs that would attract students to the College.

"Adding this athletic program will help enhance the diversity of our student body and increase the competitiveness of the College's cross-country program, attracting between 20 and 40 students per year who may not have previously considered attending St. Mary's College," said President Jordan. "Additionally, the upgrade to the track would provide a resource to the community."

Beginning this summer, renovations to the current track in order to prepare the surface to be compliant with NCAA regulations will begin and are expected to be completed fall 2020.

A $400,000 gift to the College's Foundation for the track renovations is courtesy of a benefactor-- William Seale. Seale is currently a member of the St. Mary's College of Maryland Board of Trustees and a former member of the SMCM Foundation Board of Directors. He is a partner in the ProFunds Group and professor emeritus of finance at The George Washington University, Washington, D.C., where he served as chairman of the department of finance and senior associate dean of the business school.

"This is an exciting time for Seahawks Athletics with the announcement that men's and women's track and field will be added as varsity sports here at St. Mary's College. These two programs will be great enhancements to our menu of athletic teams," said Scott Devine, director of athletics and recreation. "We look forward to hiring a coach this coming fall, and phasing in the track portion in fall of 2021."

President Jordan remarked, "The College is in the midst of running a marathon as we learn to fully embrace our position as The National Public Honors College. What a perfect time to initiate a track and field program!"

Strong Second Half Pushes Men's Lacrosse to Victory

The St. Mary's College of Maryland men's lacrosse team (3-1) traveled to Catholic University on Saturday (Feb. 29) afternoon to take on the Cardinals (2-4) in non-conference action. The Seahawks used a strong second half, outscoring the Cardinals 7-2 to push themselves to an 11-7 victory.

St. Mary's College - 11, Catholic - 7

How It Happened

- The Seahawks struck first and took a 1-0 advantage at the 4:42 mark of the opening quarter with a goal from Jeremiah Clemmer. Catholic answered to tie the game, but a goal from Erich Wuesthoff put the Seahawks back on top 2-1. Next, Catholic captured the momentum with three-straight goals to end the opening frame with a 4-2 lead.
- The second quarter of action was a defensive battle that only witnessed three total scores. The Cardinals found the back of the net to extend their lead, but the Seahawks answered with back-to-back goals to end the second stanza. Ben Claffee and Clemmer scored to trim the Catholic lead to one.

Credit: Bill Wood

- As mentioned, the second half was dominated by the Seahawks as they outscored the Cardinals 7-2. St. Mary's College grabbed the lead with back-to-back goals to start the third quarter with scores from Dominic Venanzi and Wuesthoff. Catholic responded once again with two-straight goals to take a 7-6 lead. However, this would be the last time the Cardinals would score as the Seahawk defense shut down the Catholic offense for the remainder of the game. Four unanswered goals to end the third frame of play gave St. Mary's College a slim 10-7 advantage heading into the final quarter of action. Clemmer, Jack Brocato, Wuesthoff, and Jude Brown found the back of the cage in the run.
- •Much like the second, the fourth quarter was a defensive battle as the Seahawks scored the lone goal of the stanza. Claffee scored his second goal of the afternoon to lock up the Seahawk victory.

Inside the Box Score

- •Brown led the Seahawks on the offensive end with five points, netting one goal and dishing out four assists. Venanzi (1g, 2a), Clemmer (3g), and Wuesthoff (3g) followed with three points each. Kyrle Preis, Brocato, Anthony Sparacino, Brock Daniel, Alex Pfaff, Mason Hoffman, Tommy Rinder, and Cristian Quiroa caused one turnover each. Sparacino hustled for a team-high six ground balls and Luke McWright collected five. In goal, Preis gathered 14 saves and earned his third victory of the season.
 - Sean Baudo led the Cardinals with two goals and two assists

CSM Foundation Golf Classic Surpasses Goals

Event Honors Danny Williams with New Scholarship

The 2019 CSM Foundation's Annual Golf Classic kicked off with the surprise announcement of the Danny Williams Scholarship. Initially raising $1,000 to honor the beloved CSM Professor Emeritus and coach, more than $2,500 was raised by the end of the event.

The 28th annual College of Southern Maryland (CSM) Foundation Golf Classic presented by Marrick Homes and popular Sip and Swing raised more than $80,000 for CSM scholarships and programs. Through the years, the annual signature event, held at the Swan Point Yacht and Country Club, has raised more than $1 million for student success and athletic programs.

This year, the golf classic tee-offed with the surprise announcement by CSM President Dr. Maureen Murphy about the establishment of the Danny Williams Scholarship – in honor of the longtime, beloved CSM Professor Emeritus and coach, who spent 41 years leading a variety of CSM sports through more than 65 seasons.

"I am delighted to announce right now that family and friends have established the Danny Williams Scholarship at CSM in honor of the impact you have made at our college," Murphy told Williams at the start of the event. Williams' supporters raised more than $2,500 to mark his service to the college and the Southern Maryland community. Williams is also a 1986 CSM graduate.

"I was completely surprised," shared Williams after the golf classic. "No one had a better job than I did for 41 years."

For the 18th consecutive year, Marrick Homes served as the Grand Tournament Sponsor and CSM Foundation Director Gary Simpson was the chair for his third year. This year's Golf Classic was again paired with the popular Sip and Swing sponsored by Southern Maryland Women's League and Zonta Club of Charles County.

"The generosity of local businesses, corporations and friends makes it possible for CSM to make a difference in the Southern Maryland community," said CSM Director of Development Chelsea Clute. "Under the leadership of Gary Simpson, this was the most successful tournament to date."

Among the many students who have benefited from the Golf Classic, and specifically the Marrick scholarships, are Lexington Park resident Rachel Polk and Lusby resident Marshall Lanning.

"I don't have to pour as much time into working a job because I am able to have this money to lean on for tuition," said Polk about her scholarship. "It allows me to be more involved in the classroom and with the other students in the classroom and have more time for my school work."

"My career goal is to one day become a physical therapist and own a private practice," shared Lanning. "CSM has influenced me by guiding me down the right path in my journey whether that be by my professors aiding me in my classes, or my coaches by making me a better person all around. Ultimately this scholarship helps me with getting where I need to be in my school and for that, I am forever grateful."

This year's Golf Classic also debuted a unique CSM Alumni Row featured a flag with the graduate's name and year of completion. The flag will be featured at CSM Foundation events throughout the year with the flag proceeds supporting the CSM Alumni scholarship.

THE SECURE ACT AND 5 CHANGES IN THE NEW RETIREMENT LAW

Contributing Writer: Lynda J. Striegel

The SECURE Act, the "Setting Every Community Up for Retirement Enhancement Act" was passed into law effective January 1, 2020. This new retirement law has five significant changes, as follows:

- 1. The new law increases the age for Required Minimum Distribution (the "RMD") from 70 ½ to 72. The RMD is the amount you are required to withdraw from your retirement account. Anyone turning 70 ½ in 2020 is not required to take RMD. If you have been taking RMDs prior to 2020, you will need to continue taking them. Starting in 2020, you are required to withdraw retirement funds at age 72 (as opposed to 70 ½ prior to 2020). Those born on or before June 30, 1949 must take RMDs at age 70 ½. Those born in July through December 1949 take RMDs in 2021; those born in 1950 take RMDs in 2022 and those born in 1951 take RMDs in 2023.
- 2. The new law eliminates the IRA "stretch" option. This is potentially the most significant law change. When you withdraw money from a traditional IRA in RMDs, you must pay income tax on the money. Inherited IRAs with death dates prior to 2020 were able to "stretch" the RMDs over the beneficiary's lifetime. For younger beneficiaries, this meant the amounts of RMD could be much smaller and therefore result in a smaller income tax. Beginning in 2020, the new law requires, for non-spouse beneficiaries, that an inherited IRA has to be distributed over 10 years after the individual's death. The new provisions make it clear that IRAs must be liquidated, and income taxes paid, over a ten year period, potentially resulting in income tax on much larger amounts required to be withdrawn. For deaths in 2020 and later, all IRAs must be distributed in full by the tenth calendar year following death.
- 3. The new law repeals the maximum age for traditional IRA contributions. Prior to 2020, no one over age 70 $\frac{1}{2}$ was permitted to make IRA contributions. The new law allows anyone over 70 $\frac{1}{2}$ who has U.S. earned income to make contributions to a traditional IRA. With our population aging, this is a good benefit for saving.
- 4. The new law expands Section 529 plans. Parents can now use their 529 accounts to cover costs associated with registered apprenticeships and for up to $10,000 of qualified student loan repayments. This should be a help to those paying student loans.
- 5. The new law increases the maximum credit for startup business retirement plans from $500 to $5,000. A new tax credit of $500 is also available for some smaller employers who set up automatic enrollment in their plans.

Everyone with a traditional IRA or similar retirement plan should consult their financial advisors or accountants about how to cope with the changes in the new law.
