New School Board Members Attend First Meeting

New Calvert County Board of Education members Lisa Grenis and Jana Post were sworn in by Clerk of the Circuit Court Kathy Smith before the board's Jan. 12 meeting.

At the close of the meeting, the new members made comments. Grenis said, "I'd like to thank everyone for coming out today, especially the parents who are either here personally or listening virtually. I want you to know that you're an integral part of your child's education, and it's important that you are actively involved and aware of the decisions that this board makes."

Grenis added, "We don't have data showing the performance of Calvert County specifically, but I can tell you statewide, Maryland is in an academic crisis. Sixty-nine percent of 4th graders and 75 percent of 8th graders are at or below basic achievement in reading and math. Those are state levels. Our children are within that."

Grenis said, "We need to discuss any issues that interfere with their education. We need our teachers and support staff to be fully supported, and we need these positions filled. Our schools need to address any issues that interfere with academic achievement. It requires our schools to teach the core subjects, maintain high academic standards, train, retain, and properly compensate our teachers and support staff. And we need to support them with discipline."

"I'm honored to have a voice and a vote in the future of Calvert County Public Schools," she concluded.

Post said, "I want to thank everyone for coming out and supporting all of us today. It would be amazing if we could have this kind of turnout every Thursday."

She said she attended the recent Tri-County Band Concert. "It was amazing to see the middle schoolers and then to see the high schoolers and how wonderful a progression it is. And it's amazing to see so many children involved. I was astounded at the number of teachers and volunteers that it took to pull that event off, much like it does every single day, when we go to school, we come home from school and every single extracurricular activity. So, while I applaud the children for all of their hard work today, I'm going to applaud all of the adults that are continuously working to make these children better people and to educate them. And I look forward to serving you guys."

During the public comment, a spokesperson for a parents group that supported Grenis and Post, Melissa Goshorn, reminded the newcomers of why they were elected.

Goshorn said, "I just want to welcome both Lisa and Jana. I obviously am so excited to have you here and I think that I speak on behalf of a lot of parents in this community. We are blessed, we are excited, we are happy, and we just wish you all of our blessings as you start this process."

"At the same time, I think that it would be important for me to maybe state a couple of the things that I've addressed in the past when you were not on the board. They remain unhandled and you'll probably hear me speak about them again in the future until they are. So, a few of the things that I think we need to focus on as you guys kind of get your feet wet is the library policy with both the books and our libraries.

"I think that the policy to get a book in the library is one that requires a single librarian to make a decision. But to get a book out of the library, we need to involve a large number of people, a large amount of time, and in some cases additional investment to read the books."

Goshorn added, "I also think that we need to really look at our sexual health curriculum. It seems to be getting worse. I don't know that it's been created with sexual therapists involved or other sexual health professionals to ensure that the way in which we are teaching our children is not doing them harm."

Goshorn brought up an issue that has been raised repeatedly over the past four years by parents, teachers and students. "We have a major behavioral problem in our schools. Our teachers are not getting the training that they need to keep themselves and the other students safe. So, I think we need to prioritize that training. And I also think that we need to really step it up on enforcing our code of conduct as it relates to drugs in our schools."

During the meeting, Inez Claggett was elected board president and Antoine White the new vice president. Post and Grenis abstained in the vote. The board officers are elected yearly.

Commissioners Meet with County Delegation

Seven Bills Presented for Introduction

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

With the 2023 Maryland General Assembly session already underway, the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) met with the county's legislative delegation on Jan. 13. The purpose of the meeting was to present the county's seven-item legislative package to the delegation. The meeting was later than normal because of the November election, which produced three new commissioners and two new legislators.

Senators Michael Jackson (D: 27) and Jack Bailey (R:29) and Delegates Jeffrie Long (D: 27B) and Todd Morgan (R: 29C) appeared in person. Delegate Mark Fisher's aide, who said the delegate was running late, appeared on Zoom. The commissioners presented the newcomers, Dels. Long and Morgan, a county seal to hang in their Annapolis offices.

None of the seven proposed pieces of legislation drew any controversy during the half-hour meeting. Earlier in the week the BOCC had rejected a proposal by Planning and Zoning and Finance and Budget departments to remove the requirement that legal notices be published in a newspaper and instead to allow posting on the county website. Several of the commissioners said some citizens did not have access to the internet.

Long, whose district includes North and Chesapeake Beach, Dunkirk, Owings and a portion of Sunderland, said he had "extensive experience working in the General Assembly. And so I'm here to work in partnership with this delegation to serve the needs of our community."

Long worked for the late Senator Mike Miller.

Morgan, who represents lower Calvert and middle St. Mary's said he has spent the last 12 years as a St. Mary's County commissioner. He said, "I get to be your delegate and am happy to be here."

Both Jackson and Bailey said they had been assigned to the important Senate Budget and Taxation Committee, which can be instrumental in directing state funding towards Calvert's way.

The legislative package, as presented by County Attorney John Norris, is:

#1: Public Safety is requesting the following LOSAP (for volunteer first responders) Amendments:

- Change LOSAP burial benefit to death benefit and increase benefit from $6,000 to $10,000;
- Increase LOSAP line of duty death benefit from $6,000 to $10,000;
- Authorize the Board of County Commissioners to approve an increase in payment of benefit amount received by qualified volunteers that corresponds to the percentage of cost-of-living increase afforded to County employees.

#2: Public Safety/Animal Control Division is requesting changes be made to the current rabies reporting requirements.

#3: Parks and Recreation is requesting an amendment to Md. Ann. Code, Tax – General Art., § 2-202, modifying language pertaining to Gaming Revenue.

#4: Finance & Budget is requesting authority to create a Local Preference.

#5: The County Attorney is requesting authority for the State's Attorney to appoint the County Attorney to enforce civil citations.

#6: The County Attorney is requesting legislation that authorizes the Vice-President of the Board of County Commissioners to act on behalf of the President upon written delegation of authority from the President, or the removal, death, resignation, or disability of the President.

#7: The County Commissioners seek legislation authorizing the County to regulate the solicitation of money within public rights-of-way by adding Calvert to the existing law within the Transportation Article applicable in Allegany and Cecil counties.

Regarding the length-of-service awards program, Norris explained, "They are entitled to a burial benefit today, though that may be covered by other sources. So, they're converting from a burial benefit to a death benefit."

Regarding gaming revenue, Norris said, "It was brought to our attention by Delegate Fisher last session that there is money left on the table that the county could qualify for an additional two percent of the state admissions and amusement tax from electronic bingo. This request is to renew last session's what would've been an amendment at that time so that the county would, instead of getting the four-percent receives today through the Calvert Youth and Opportunities Fund, we would bring it up to six percent total amusement tax collected in electronic bingo in Calvert County for the beaches. And the county totals 35 percent, which is equal to what is collected in the Anne Arundel County."

Sen. Jackson said, "We did have this in last year. It got tangled up at the end and didn't quite make it through. We thought we had an agreement, but as you know things get jumbled sometimes. So we've reintroduced the bill to make sure we'll work with you all to see that it gets through this year."

The local preference bill would be enabling legislation to allow the BOCC to work with the business community to develop the details.

Expanded Veteran's Property Tax Credit Proposed

Public Hearing to be Scheduled

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) is moving ahead with a public hearing to consider implementing an expanded property tax credit for veterans.

Based on a recommendation from the county's Veteran's Affairs Committee, the tax credit would cover four groups that could be eligible for property tax relief:

- Group 1 -- Gold Star and Surviving Spouses (not remarried);
- Group 2 -- 75-99 percent disabled;
- Group 3 -- 50-74 percent disabled; and
- Group 4 -- 1-49 percent disabled.

The county currently has a tax credit for veterans who are 100 percent disabled.

After hearing from Veterans Affairs Committee Chairman Brandon Temple at the Jan. 10 BOCC meeting, the commissioners decided to take to public hearing only tax credits for veterans in groups 2 and 3 for only those with adjusted gross income of less than $100,000.

Temple explained for levels 2 and 3, "As state law is applied right now, there is no need for enabling legislation for those who make an adjusted gross income (AGI) in the previous tax year of less than $100,000. So, the estimated 55 percent, what we think is estimated participation, is based on the fact that we have Maryland State data that shows that about 45 percent of our veterans make over $100,000 a year. So if we apply these tax credits to a level two and three, keeping what the state has at a less than AGI and the previous tax year of $100,000, we wouldn't have to go for enabling legislation on those two items."

Temple added, "That's the recommendation that I would give to the board because this is what other counties are doing and it is something we can do here without having to go back to Annapolis ask for their help and new legislation. Two, as you know, we live in one of the most progressively political states in the country and I do not believe that they're going to be in for the General Assembly giving tax credits to those who make six figures or more a year. And this can be bogged down in legislation and in the General Assembly for years and years when we can do it the way the state has already laid it out and do it now. And that'll also reduce that overall funding level that was discussed earlier."

Director of Finance and Budget Sharon Strand told the BOCC, "The Veteran's tax credit could average $1.95 million with a 10-year cost of $19.54 million using 100-percent participation rate. If authorized, the Veteran's tax credit would reduce General Fund Revenues in addition to the tax credits already provided. Estimates would be refined during a public hearing on any option selected to go forward."

After the commissioners decided to limit the credit to those making less than $100,000, Stand revised her annual estimate down to $800,000.

Black Teachers Still Lag Behind Student Percentages

Recent Improvements Reported to School Board

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

While some progress has been made in recent years, the percentage of African American teachers in Calvert County Public Schools (CCPS) still lags way behind the percentage of African American students.

During a staff update of the CCPS Strategic Plan's priority area on "workforce," Director of Human Resources Zach Seawell said, "Workforce focuses on the recruitment, hiring, support, and retention of high-quality staff. Calvert County Public Schools prides itself on having the best teachers and the best staff in the state of Maryland in order to deliver the highest quality instruction to all of our students. We recognize the importance of a diverse and high-quality staff and the impact that both of these have on the achievement of our students."

Seawell added, "When looking at the diversity of our workforce, our goal is for our workforce to be reflective of the students that we serve. As we have shared in the past, research shows that having a diverse teacher workforce benefits all students and minority students specifically are more successful, and the performance increases in classes that are taught by minority teachers."

Seawell reported that the percentage of African American support staff and administrators closely mirrors the student population. But there is only seven percent of the teacher workforce who are black, compared to almost twice as many, or 13.8 percent of the students.

"It is our responsibility and our obligation to our students to recognize this research and make efforts to increase our minority teacher workforce to match our student demographics," Seawell said.

The teacher category includes mostly classroom teachers, but also includes other certificated employees such as school counselors, speech language pathologists, school psychologists, and other certificated staff.

Seawell reported, "Over the past three years, we have shown improvements in our minority teacher hiring, going from a minority teacher hiring percentage of nine percent in fiscal year 2021 to 11.7 percent in fiscal year 2022 and to 13.9 in fiscal year 2023. So, we are showing improvement and we are optimistic that we'll continue to see this growth with the implementation of our action plan. Last year, we worked with an outside agency, WestEd, to develop a detailed plan to assist us in our minority teacher hiring efforts."

Cecilia Lewis, supervisor of Human Resources, said the school systems data collection efforts are hampered by "the number of candidates who chose not to respond to the ethnicity, race, or gender options on their applications as these designations are voluntary per the Equal Employment Opportunity Act." Of 916 applicants in the last year, 99 were African American but 201 elected not to respond.

Of those 99, 60 position interviews took place with 24 hiring offers and 19 were eventually hired, Lewis said.

Lewis reported, "For the 2022-23 school year, CCPS offered 51 contingent contracts from February through May, and we started the school year with only 13 certificated openings system-wide with 7.5 of those in special education. This translates to a 1.1 percent vacancy, which is far below what many surrounding school systems experience to start a school year."

During the presentation, new board member Jana Post asked, "Of all the applications that are submitted, do we interview every qualified individual that submits an application or are we only interviewing the minority candidates because those are targeted?"

Lewis said, "We do not interview everyone that's qualified, in general just because of the numbers. Depending on the position there's not the possibility to do so. So, we identify the most qualified and then we rank them."

The full presentation is available for viewing under the board's Jan. 13 agenda in Board Docs and a video of the meeting is available for viewing.

School Support Staff Seek 'Blueprint' Parity

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Calvert's educational support staff say they would like to be treated equally in the implementation of the state's education reform, known as the "Blueprint."

Stacy Tayman, president of the Calvert Association of Educational Support Staff (CAESS), stated at the school board's Jan. 12 meeting, "The Blueprint for Maryland's Future is here. The implementation plan is due in a matter of weeks, and it requires a lot of compliance. A recent press release detailed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) between CCPS (Calvert County Public Schools) and the Calvert Education Association (CEA). That detailed upcoming pay increases that keeps CCPS in compliance with the Blueprint. CCPS has stated that they will not do the same for support staff because there is no requirement to do so. However, in the MOU that was signed with CEA, there are staff who will be receiving the increases who are not required to do so. The press release went out several days before the winter break and went over like a lead balloon with our ESP (education support professionals)."

Tayman added, "Where I think CCPS is missing the mark is that the Blueprint is less about compliance and more about a vision where we want our school system to be. We cannot view the Blueprint superficially. There's much more to it than just what appears in the ink. Only working to ensure compliance blurs the vision of the bigger picture. It is narrow sighted to even begin implementation when we have not ensured the foundation of this school system. Our education support professionals are secure and strong enough to handle it."

"For example, the very department that is going to be processing a lot of the new requirements and the salary implementation for the teachers through the Blueprint, is currently reducing the hours of their support staff one position at a time through vacancy postings. They're already understaffed and they're now taking away staff hours."

Tayman observed, "We have instructional assistants who barely have worked in their assigned roles due to having to cover classes. Instructional assistants are to support the delivered instruction so that all students have equitable access to learning. When they're removed, the service is halted. Student success is directly impacted by the instructional assistants who support them."

She also noted that in December safety advocates called for one for every middle school instead of having one staffer share two schools.

Tayman said, "We also had bus assistants who had their hours reduced because for midday runs, they trained IA's (instructional assistants) to do their duties. We have building service workers who take leave and don't have it covered, so their co-workers are not only doing their own assignment, they're doing the assignments of their co-workers. What are we doing? We're manipulating job descriptions and duties to patch the cracks in our foundation, and it's not going to hold."

Michelle LeClair, a 16-year ESP with the school system, and now the administrative secretary for Dowell Elementary School, also spoke. She said, "Based on my experiences in my current position, CCPs secretaries are struggling, and we need your help. Our duties have evolved over the years, and we have assumed many new responsibilities, all without comparable pay increases or workload considerations. There is little to no professional training provided. We rely on one another or the occasional video tutorial to learn the multitude of software required to do our jobs. We are required to understand and enforce legal requirements as they pertain to highly sensitive information that we safeguard. However, there is no continuous professional development to ensure compliance or consistency. Other duties as assigned seem to have no boundaries."

"School-based secretaries create master schedules. We ensure classroom coverage. We monitor students who are fulfilling behavior consequences without behavior specific training. We orchestrate dismissals, which includes the safe and lawful release of students to properly identified adults, all while juggling the ever-changing demands of our daily responsibilities."

"We work longer than our contracted hours without compensation. Our buildings are settled, and the students are safe before we depart. We are not wired to walk out when the clock announces the end of our day. However, this commitment to the students and staff is taken advantage of."

Tayman urged the board to include the support staff in the MOU along with the teachers. She said, "We have proven time and again that the school day does not happen without us. We're the first in and the last out. We are here. We are always here, and we were the ones in the buildings when nobody else was during the pandemic. We are doing the work. Without us, the Blueprint implementation will be difficult if not unattainable. To only say that salary increases will be proposed and similar is not enough. We deserve the investment, and we deserve a memorandum of understanding."

Newly elected board President Inez Claggett said she for one supports the CAESS position.

How to Handle Inherited IRAs

from the Law Office of Lynda J. Striegel

Mistakes are common when handling IRAs and one wrong move and the entire IRA will be taxed rather than tax-deferred.

An IRA provides you with a long-term tax shelter. The money you contribute to the IRA is invested in mutual funds and the earnings on the money, dividends, interest and capital gains grow tax-deferred. With traditional IRAs, your heirs will owe income taxes when they take money out of the account. With Roth IRAs, you have already paid taxes on the money you contribute so your heirs will not owe income taxes when they take money out of the account.

There are two ages that you need to keep in mind about IRAs-59 ½ and 73. Anyone who holds an IRA and is under age 59 ½, has to pay a 10% penalty if they take the money out the IRA. And, anyone who is at and over age 73 must take a "minimum required distribution" of assets in the IRA account and pay tax on the amount distributed. This is an increase in the age produced by the SECURE ACT 2.0.

The best strategy for you and your heirs is to leave the money in the IRA and allow it to grow tax-deferred. But, what happens when someone dies and leaves you an IRA account?

Spouses have an advantage with IRA accounts. John and Mary Doe are married and John has a traditional IRA account that he leaves to Mary as his beneficiary when he dies. John dies and Mary inherits the IRA. What should she do? Mary can cash out the IRA and pay income tax. She can choose to put John's IRA in her own name, she can keep the IRA in John's name and then re-title the IRA into her own name when she is over 59 ½, or she can disclaim the IRA entirely.

- Mary needs the money from the IRA and is willing to pay the income tax to access it. Mary can cash out John's IRA and pay incomes taxes on the entire amount (OR, OVER A TEN-YEAR LIQUIDATION PERIOD).
- If Mary doesn't need to access the money and she wants to keep the assets tax deferred for as long as possible, Mary should put the assets into her own name. By doing so, the age restrictions will apply to Mary, not John. This makes sense especially if John was over 73 and had already started to take the minimum required distributions. If Mary is under 73 and rolls the IRA into another IRA in her sole name, she will not have to take the minimum required distributions that John was taking until she reaches age 73.
- If Mary is under age 59 ½ and needs to access the money from John's IRA, Mary should transfer the assets into an inherited IRA. This means John is still counted as the owner of the IRA and the age3 restrictions apply to him, not Mary. The inherited IRA account should be re-titled as follows: "John Doe IRA (deceased April 1, 2015) for the benefit of Mary Doe, beneficiary." Mary will still control the IRA assets but they will not be in her sole name. They will remain in John's name as an inherited IRA. Because of that, Mary can withdraw assets from the IRA without penalty even when she is under age 59 ½ (because John was older than 59 ½ and the IRA is still in John's name). However, to take maximum advantage of the age rules, when Mary reaches 59 ½, she should again re-title the IRA again, this time to put it into her own name so that she doesn't have to take a minimum distribution until she reaches age 73.
- Suppose Mary doesn't need to rely on the minimum distributions from John's IRA to pay her living expenses. She can roll John's IRA into an IRA in her own name and then roll her own IRA into a ROTH IRA.

What if you are a child inheriting an IRA from a parent? You do not have the choice of rolling the money into an IRA in your own name. That benefit is just for spouses.

David Doe's choices are to cash out the IRA or to create an inherited IRA. He can cash out the IRA, in which case he must pay income tax on the entire IRA account and he will lose the ability of an IRA to accumulate assets tax-deferred. Or, he can choose to re-title the account as an inherited IRA, as follows: "Mary Doe IRA (deceased April 1, 2015) for the benefit of David Doe, beneficiary." Every year, David will be required to make a minimum withdrawal, but can take more if he wants. Withdrawals are taxed, the rest accumulates tax-deferred.

A 401(k) can be inherited and re-titled as an inherited IRA. If a parent leaves his or her IRA or 401(k) to multiple children, each child must re-title his or her portion as an inherited IRA.

The moral of this story is that dealing with IRA, ROTH IRA, 401(k) and other retirement accounts after a person dies, is tricky and you need to educate yourself on your choices so that you make a decision that is wise for yourself and your loved ones. In this case especially, you should check with a financial advisor as soon as possible after a death to ensure you are following the correct procedures no matter what you choose.

North Beach Vandalism Under Investigation

The Town of North Beach and Calvert County Sheriff's Office are seeking information regarding cases of recent vandalism.

The Calvert County Sheriff's Office is investigating a case of vandalism and property destruction at Wetlands Overlook Park. The vandalism occurred sometime between late October and November of 2022.

Last week, spray paintings similar to those at Wetlands Overlook Park were found behind the Bayside History Museum.

Anyone with information about either case or possible suspects is asked to please contact Det. T. Buckler at Thomas.Buckler@calvertcountymd.gov. Citizens may remain anonymous through the 'Submit a Tip' feature on the Calvert County Sheriff's Office mobile app. To download, visit <https://apps.myocv.com/share/a39520678>. Tipsters may also email ccsotips@calvertcountymd.gov.

Poppie the Possum Makes Museum Debut

The Calvert Marine Museum (CMM) welcomes a new species to its Estuarine Biology Department! Poppie, the Virginia Opossum (Didelphis virginiana), came from a wildlife rehabilitation facility after being separated from her mother and siblings as a tiny juvenile. When she arrived at the museum at approximately three months old, she was only half a pound and is now a healthy 6.28 lbs.

Poppie will live behind the scenes at the museum but will be making appearances during educational programs throughout the year. On Friday, January 27, we invite the public to a 'creature feature' starring Poppie at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. This 15-minute demonstration will be held in the Harms Gallery and is included with museum admission. Guests will have the opportunity to observe Poppie while learning fun facts about her habitat, diet, and adaptations. There will also be an opportunity for questions.

You may be wondering, "Why does the Estuarine Biology Department have an opossum... when they aren't aquatic?" While that is true, opossums aren't aquatic, they are still important animals around the bay's estuarine environment. In CMM's basin, you can see animal tracks when the tide is low. Many animals like opossums, herons, and raccoons, come through searching for animals or carrion left behind when the tide goes out.

January is Radon Gas Awareness Month

January is recognized as Radon Gas Awareness Month in Calvert County. The Board of County Commissioners, Department of Planning & Zoning and Environmental Commission are encouraging county residents to check levels of radon gas in their homes and teach others how to test for radon.

Radon is a colorless, odorless, naturally occurring radioactive gas that builds up in homes over time. According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, an estimated 1 in 15 homes in the United States have high levels of radon. Radon is the second-leading cause of lung cancer and is estimated to cause about 21,000 deaths each year in the United States. Some areas of Maryland have soil that makes radon exposure more likely. Basements and first floors are at the highest risk because they are closest to the ground.

Testing is the only way to detect and measure levels of radon in a home. Home radon test kits are simple, inexpensive and can help save lives. Maryland residents may order discounted radon test kits online from the Maryland Department of Health and Department of the Environment. If elevated radon levels are found, please seek gas reduction guidance from a certified radon mitigation professional.

For more information, visit the Environmental Commission website for frequently asked questions and Maryland radon facts.

Traffic Alert: MD 2/4 Guardrail Work

MDOT SHA Beginning Traffic Barrier Replacement Project- Drivers Should Remain Alert for Daytime Shoulder & Single Lane Closures

The Maryland Department of Transportation State Highway Administration (MDOT SHA) is installing new, upgraded traffic barriers along two sections of MD 2/4 (Solomons Island Road) in Calvert County. Starting next week, crews will work at locations along MD 2/4 between Old Field Lane and north of MD 765 (St. Leonard Road), as well as on MD 2/4 between Mountain Trail and Parran Road. Motorists can expect shoulder and occasional off-peak single-lane closures between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays.

Crews will begin along the outside shoulders of southbound MD 2/4, then move to northbound MD 2/4. The contractor will then begin work within the median of the two segments. The project is expected to be completed in summer 2023, weather permitting. Portable variable message signs, temporary traffic signs, cones and barrels will guide motorists through the work zone.

MDOT SHA contractor Long Fence Company of Ijamsville will perform the work. Customers who have questions about this work may contact the MDOT SHA District 5 Office at 410-841-1000 or toll-free at 1-800-331-5603.

Maryland's Move Over Law requires motorists to make a lane change or slow down when approaching any stopped, standing, or parked vehicle displaying hazard warning lights, road flares, or other caution signals. The expanded law is in place to protect emergency responders and motorists who encounter a roadside emergency.

For a list of all major MDOT SHA projects, go to Project Portal. Visit our homepage at <http://ow.ly/Xtj650MpkHV>. For a look at real-time traffic conditions, go to <http://ow.ly/9AAZ50MpkHW>. #MDtraffic

A View From The BLEACHERS

20/20 IN 2023?

By Ronald N. Guy Jr.
Contributing Writer

Father Andrew White School, circa early-to-mid 1980s. I was an average student; no academic records were threatened during my navigation of grade school. But there was no reason for my parents to worry that they'd be supporting my lost soul well into adulthood (they might disagree and may have supporting evidence).

Reading was...an effort. Books were overwhelming. Short adventure stories were fine, but if not for required book reports, not a word of those would have been read. What played to my strengths? Sports Illustrated. The Washington Post's sports page. The Sporting News. Sport magazine.

Notice a trend?

Our class visited the school library weekly. Books were stacked floor-to-ceiling wrapping around the room's perimeter. Encyclopedias, classics, biographies, adventures, history – everything imaginable was available to our absorbent minds. To my young eyes, it was a room of knowledge waiting to be consumed. The problem was almost none of it interested me - not in an organic, I'm reading this by choice and not obligation kind of way.

There was one alluring spot. It occupied only a few shelves of a single section in this literary labyrinth. Here resided non-fiction sports books – the greatest quarterbacks and running backs, toughest boxers, tennis champions, NFL and MLB history, biographies and historical statistics. It had it all. Angels would sing and the books would glow as I and a few similarly wired buddies approached it. I devoured every selection during my FAW tour, some more than once.

The recent death of soccer icon Pelé brought back memories of these childhood library visits. It was there that I discovered the Brazilian soccer great after checking out a book featuring the game's best players. With three World Cup titles to his credit and a short but impactful stint with the New York Cosmos late in his career, my young mind quickly concluded that Pelé was the greatest to roam the pitch.

Barbara Walters's passing last week cued more memories. The news didn't interest me much as a young lad, but I knew that if Walters was interviewing a person, it mattered. Walters was an absolute giant of journalism for decades and the long-running evening show 20/20 that she co-hosted with Hugh Downs was must-see television in the 1980s.

Pelé, Walters, and Franco Harris and Dave Butz recently – I have reached the bend in life where final farewells to childhood icons, many of whom first appeared in those dusty library books, are too common.

The world acquires information quite differently now. Books are available on-demand. Library trips are optional. Printed sports pages and magazines are virtually obsolete. And getting news via a weekly primetime show seems hopelessly antiquated. But are we better informed? Is our understanding of the past more developed? Is our vision into the future any closer to 20/20?

Three years ago, the answer could have been a defensible "maybe". Remember New Year's 2020? There were just whispers about unique virus detected in China. Most earthlings had never experienced a pandemic. Health systems hadn't been stressed to the breaking point. America had never been shuddered. It was all beyond imagination. Not anymore. Reality has a way of exposing our blind spots or, as George Will noted, "The future has a way of arriving unannounced."

So, what awaits in 2023? Sports will be dynamic, as always. Locally, the Nats and (if there is a merciful God) the Commanders will have new owners. Lamar Jackson and the Ravens face a contract standoff. Will the Orioles continue to improve? Do the aging and fragile Caps have another Stanley Cup run in them? Tom Brady is set for another free agency tour. The transfer portal will wreak havoc on college sports. The only certainties: there will be magic, incredible feats, and inexplicable endings that produce profound disappointment and unrestrained joy. The details are far from clear, a truth that holds for all aspects of life. And that's okay. If COVID left us with anything, it is the wisdom to know that the future is something to be encountered and experienced more than predicted with anything approaching 20/20 foresight.

All the best to you and yours in 2023.

Marie Rowe, 88

Marie Vallandingham Rowe, 88, of Clements MD peacefully passed away on January 10, 2023 at her home surrounded by her loving family. Born on November 16, 1934 in Clements, MD, she was the daughter of Stephen Lawrence Vallandingham, Sr. and Julia Marie Bowles Vallandingham.

She was a loving wife to John Imirie Rowe, who preceded her in death June 24, 2015. They were married at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Morganza, MD on September 17, 1955. Together they celebrated 59 wonderful years before his passing. They are now reunited together in heaven to spend eternity together.

Marie was a woman of grace. She was known by many and loved by all. Her words were sincere and genuine, and she always had a special way of making someone feel accepted and loved for who they were. Marie was dedicated to her faith, and was selfless, caring and loyal to her family and friends whom some affectionately knew her as Nanny or Aunt Sissie. She was the church organist at St. Francis Xavier Church for many decades. A testament to her loyal and caring nature proved true when she returned home from Chevy Chase, MD in 1968 to care for her parents. After the passing of her parents she took on the role of running the family farm.

Marie is survived by her two children Lawrence Imirie Rowe (Janet), and Stephanie Rowe; four grandchildren: Kelly Trossbach (John), Elizabeth Rowe (Josh), Heather Welch (Alex) and Megan Gardiner (John); and five great-grandchildren: Madison Trossbach, Layla Alley, Cheyenne Trossbach, Elena Alley, and Ryleigh Trossbach.

The family will receive friends for Marie's visitation on Monday, January 16, 2023 from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., with prayers recited at 7 p.m. at Mattingly-Gardiner Funeral Home 41590 Fenwick Street, Leonardtown MD 20650. A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated by Fr. Andrew Royals on Tuesday, January 17, 2023 at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph's Catholic Church 29119 Point Lookout Rd. Morganza, MD 20660. A private interment will follow at the Vallandingham Family Cemetery in Clements, MD.

Serving as pallbearers will be John Trossbach, John Gardiner, Lawrence Rowe, Tommy Bowles, John Bailey, and Jack Johnson. Serving as honorary pallbearers will be her five great-granddaughters affectingly known as her GG's.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions can be made to the Mary Lou Gough Food Pantry, 37575 Chaptico Rd. Chaptico MD; St. Joseph's Catholic Church 29119 Point Lookout Rd. Morganza MD; and Hospice of St. Mary's P.O. Box 625, Leonardtown MD.

Condolences may be made to the family at www.mgfh.com. Arrangements provided by the Mattingly-Gardiner Funeral Home and Cremation Services, P.A., Leonardtown, MD.

Alice McDowell, 77

Alice Kay McDowell, 77, of California, Maryland passed away, going home to her Savior, on January 10, 2023, at St. Mary's Nursing Center, Leonardtown, Maryland, after a long illness from Parkinson's Disease.

She was born in Steubenville, Ohio to Paul and Blanche Martin.

I Peter 3:4 states, "but let your adorning be the hidden person of the heart with the imperishable beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit," and epitomizes the life and character of Alice McDowell.

After graduating from Wintersville High School, Alice moved to Columbus, Ohio, attending and graduating from Columbus Business University. She worked several secretarial positions in Columbus and Dayton during her lifetime. While living in Columbus, she married William McDowell after meeting through InterVarsity Fellowship. They married and celebrated over 54 faithful years together—mostly in Huber Heights, Ohio.

She served for many years as an accompanist on piano, organ, and keyboard at her children's grade school and at the churches to which she belonged, most memorably at Grace Bible Church. Her love of sewing led to her working at JoAnn Fabrics. Following that, she was employed in the insurance industry by Schneider, Meixner, & Company of Dayton and retired as a Benefits Specialist from Brady Ware in 2012. In her free time and retirement, she will be remembered for volunteering at her children's schools, for her love of her dog, Biscuit, and for line dancing. Alice and Bill became members of Cornerstone Presbyterian Church of Lexington Park after their move to Maryland.

She was a beloved wife, a wonderful mother, and a treasured friend.

In addition to her husband, Alice is survived by her daughters, Christy (Christopher) Lardner of California, Maryland, and Kara (Nathan) Kennedy of Fairbanks, Alaska; her son, Paul (Melanie) McDowell of Jupiter, Florida; her step-sisters, Barb Walters of Dover, Ohio, and Nanci (Robert) Dickens of Gahanna, Ohio; Cousin Becky Goleno of Wintersville, Ohio; two grandchildren, Eileen and Josiah Lardner; and many other extended family members. She was preceded in death by her parents and her stepmother, Dorothy Blickensderfer.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, January 21, 2023, at 3:00 PM at Cornerstone Presbyterian Church, 23101 Town Creek Drive, Lexington Park, Maryland 20653. Interment will be held at a later date at Fort Steuben Burial Estates, Wintersville, Ohio.

1978 Dove Hauled Out for the Final Time

After 44 years of service, the 1978 Dove was hauled out of the St. Mary's River for the final time on February 17, 2023. Designed by William Avery Baker (deceased) and built in Cambridge, Maryland by James B. Richardson (deceased), the ship was based on the small merchant vessel that sailed to the Maryland colony in the 1600s. 1978 Dove is owned by the state of Maryland and operated and maintained by the Historic St. Mary's City Commission.

1978 Dove served as the floating ambassador for Historic St. Mary's City (HSMC), occasionally traveling to different ports of call in Maryland. When not on outreach trips, the ship was an outdoor exhibit at the living history museum. The age and natural deterioration of 1978 Dove necessitated HSMC to commission the design, construction and launch of a new Maryland Dove. Built in full view of the public at the Chesapeake Bay Maritime Museum in St. Michael's, Maryland, the new ship was launched in the summer of 2022.

After careful consideration and examination of the ship in winter 2022, HSMC staff determined 1978 Dove should be taken out of the St. Mary's River one final time. Historic St. Mary's City Commission is actively pursuing alternatives to make the best use of 1978 Dove.

Winter Turkey Season Opens Jan. 19

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources announces the opening of the winter turkey season, which runs statewide from Jan. 19-21 for hunters who did not harvest a turkey during the 2022 fall season.

Hunting hours are from one half-hour before sunrise to one half-hour after sunset. The bag limit is one turkey of either sex.

“Although wild turkeys are common throughout much of the state, populations have greatly increased in certain areas,” Wildlife and Heritage Service Director Paul Peditto said. “The population growth over the last decade in the central region has been remarkable. The winter season can provide an exciting opportunity to get outdoors during a time of year when other hunting seasons are coming to a close.”

During the winter turkey season, hunters may only use shotguns loaded with No. 4 shot or smaller, crossbows, vertical bows, or air guns that shoot arrows or bolts.

Hunters are reminded that it is illegal to hunt turkeys with the aid of bait. Hunters are required to check in their harvest via phone at 888-800-0121, online, or via the department’s mobile app.

The Maryland Guide to Hunting and Trapping provides information about winter turkey hunting, including season open dates and regulations.

V-22 Program Office Recognizes 40 Years of Collaboration

Forty years ago this month, the Department of Navy (DoN) took control of what is now known as the V-22 Joint Program Office (PMA-275), responsible for the cradle-to-grave acquisition, sustainment, development and production of the venerable tiltrotor aircraft.

With more than 700,000 flight hours under its articulating halos, the V-22 Osprey is a military marvel, providing unmatched capabilities to the U.S. Marines, Navy, Air Force and the Japan Ground Self-Defense Force.

“Not a single flight hour, from the first to most recent, would have been possible without the leadership, innovation and partnerships developed in this joint program office,” said Col. Brian Taylor, PMA-275 program manager. “As the thirteenth leader in this role, I walked through the door to a well-established and exceptional team, cross collaborating to ensure the V-22 remains ready, reliable, relevant and safe through the 2050s.”

Following the failure of Operation Eagle Claw in 1980 – the attempted and then aborted mission to rescue 53 U.S. embassy staff members in Tehran – the Defense Department saw the need for an aircraft that could support long-range, high-speed missions utilizing vertical take-offs and landings. As a result, the department initiated the establishment of the advanced vertical lift program.

In December 1982, executive leaders transferred the newly formed program, originally led by the Army, to the DoN and established the Joint Services Advanced Vertical Lift (JVX) program. A few years later, it would become the V-22 Osprey program.

As a first of its kind, the V-22 came with a complex development and testing program, integrating unprecedented technology and propulsion elements. Following first flight in 1989, the development program continued to refine the design with the Marine Corps variant, MV-22, beginning operation in 2000 and fielding in 2007. Not long after, in 2009, the Air Force declared Initial Operating Capability for its variant, the CV-22.

Over the last 10 years, the V-22’s aperture widened, welcoming the U.S. Navy (CMV-22B) and Japan Ground Self-Defense Force to its portfolio, increasing the aircraft’s global impact. Today, the Osprey’s mission has grown and includes medium-lift assault support, long-range infiltration / exfiltration, at-sea cargo resupply, combat logistics, medical evacuation and more.

By acknowledging the operational success of the V-22, the program also recognizes the challenges and adversity faced throughout its development, all providing the lessons and experience required to build and maintain the aircraft’s relevance for decades to come.

“The warfighters who fly, maintain and rely on the aircraft, deserve nothing less,” said Taylor. “As a program, we keep those lost during mishaps in our memory; their sacrifice to this nation cannot be overstated.”

As a joint program office, PMA-275 works with representatives from all service branches and its international partner, Japan, that fly and maintain the aircraft. In addition, it works closely with its industry partners, from original equipment manufacturers Bell-Boeing, Rolls-Royce, and Raytheon to the hundreds of suppliers keeping the aircraft flying. Keeping these partnerships strong, both within the Defense Department and industry, ensures that all V-22 stakeholders are informed and ready to work together on all aspects of the program, from emergent to day-to-day tasks.

“For example, during the recent CV-22 safety standdown as a result of hard clutch engagement [HCE] events, the joint program and industry quickly came together and partnered with AFSOC [Air Force Special Operations Command] to establish a way forward,” said Taylor. “Within a matter of days, an action plan was established, resulting in execution of advanced training and adjusted flying parameters across the customer base, contributing to AFSOC’s decision to put the CV-22 back into flight.”

The V-22 user community, from all branches of service, continue to work closely together with the common goal of finding the root cause of HCE incidents and options to mitigate the phenomenon.

“The V-22 is one of the most complex aircraft in the world; the joint team, both government and industry, responsible for its development and sustainment, is committed to ensuring our aircrews have the safest, most reliable platform possible,” Taylor explains. “We will always challenge ourselves to make the Osprey better, every day.”

With a service life through the 2050s, PMA-275 will continue its mission for decades to come.

PATUXENT RIVER NAVAL AIR STATION News

Pax River Prepares for Citadel Shield-Solid Curtain 2023

Citadel Shield-Solid Curtain (CSSC), the Navy's annual anti-terrorism, force protection (ATFP) exercise, will be underway Navywide – and at NAS Patuxent River – Feb. 6-17, 2023.

Conducted by U.S. Northern Command (NORTHCOM), Commander, U.S. Fleet Forces Command, and Commander, Navy Installations Command (CNIC), CSSC uses realistic drills and scenarios to enhance the readiness of Navy security forces and ensure seamless interoperability among the commands, other services, and agency partners.

"The exercise, which plays out over a two-week period, tests our Emergency Training Plan and pre-planned responses (PPR), and it's a continuation of training for our security forces," explained Matt Nalley, Pax River's installation training officer. "It allows us to evaluate whether we have the correct procedures in place in the event of an emergency situation; and any drills involving an integrated response will show how well departments such as security, fire, emergency management, and public works communicate and work with each other."

Week one's Citadel Shield focuses on installation-level training, and all scenarios will occur entirely within the Pax River fence line. In the past, those scenarios have included active shooter, hostage situation, gate runner, unmanned aerial surveillance, mass shooting, protesters at the gate, suspicious package, and release of a biological weapon, among others.

In addition to hearing sirens or seeing emergency vehicles on the road responding to drills in progress, Pax personnel can expect to receive advance emergency response notifications multiple times over a number of days and might, at times, be inconvenienced.

"We do our best to minimize disruption, but personnel might experience gate delays or temporary changes in traffic or parking patterns as the different scenarios play out," Nalley noted.

The Solid Curtain portion, occurring during the second week, is a national-level exercise centered on command, control, and communications between all echelons Navy wide where everything that happens at one installation affects every other installation, even if only in a minor way.

For instance, if leadership – NORTHCOM, U.S. Fleet Forces Command, or CNIC – sees trends or incidents going on in one or more areas that they feel may also impact a different area, they can selectively put installations, regions or the entire NORTHCOM area of responsibility into a heightened force protection condition.

"That might again prompt further delays, closures, and emergency notifications at Pax," Nalley said. "We ask people for their patience and remind them that the ultimate purpose of these training exercises is to ensure the protection of those who work and live onboard the installation."

NAS Patuxent River leadership is especially aware of base impacts after last year's CS/SC exercise.

"While there were inconveniences, we learned some valuable lessons during last year's exercise, particularly about traffic flow off base in an emergency," added Nalley. "We are committed to the philosophy of 'train like you fight,' so we'll be exercising that scenario again with additional information regarding base evacuation zones to ease the flow of traffic off base."

With any increase in FPCON, gates will close to protect the base and our occupants. If Pax elevates the FPCON during the workday, the base intends to conduct an ordered departure, offering the workforce an opportunity to evacuate in an orderly fashion. While Pax River can utilize a "training time out" to pause the scenario locally for emergencies and unforeseen circumstances- real world events will not afford that opportunity. Personnel on base during these exercises are asked to be prepared for major delays as a precaution.

"We want to be as upfront as possible to our mission partners and residents; anticipate the intersection of Taxiway Alpha and Cedar Point road will be closed at some point during the second week of the exercise – the week of Feb. 13 – as driven by U.S. Fleet Forces' direction to elevate the Force Protection Condition to Charlie. Telework during these days is highly encouraged to avoid major traffic issues," said NAS Patuxent River Commanding Officer Capt. Derrick Kingsley.

Personnel are also encouraged to check notifications posted on the NAS Facebook page at www.facebook.com/NASPaxRiver and Twitter @NASPaxRiverPAO.

Soldier at the Helm: Navy Test Pilot School Gets Army Commander

The U.S. Naval Test Pilot School (USNTPS) changed command during a ceremony at Naval Air Station Patuxent River, Jan. 12.

U.S. Army Lt. Col. Aaron Kia relieved U.S. Navy Cmdr. Jeremy DeBons during an airborne change of command ceremony officiated by Naval Test Wing Atlantic Commodore, Capt. Elizabeth Somerville. Kia is the third Army commander in the school's history.

"Kia is unquestionably the right person to take the reins," Somerville said. "I have every bit of confidence in Aaron to lead this team and continue to evolve this schoolhouse – to deliver that incredibly crucial asset – the critically thinking tester – to our test commands within the Navy, Army, Air Force, and partner nations."

During the ceremony, DeBons flew a

U6-A Beaver with Somerville while Kia flew a UH-72 Lakota. The aircraft conducted a pass as Kia relieved DeBons of command.

Kia is the school's 51st headmaster and rated in several helicopters including the UH-60 Blackhawk, UH-72, and the AH-64 Apache. Before spending the last 18 months as the school's executive officer, he tested aircraft at the Redstone Test Center, the Army's dedicated test and evaluation command. The Class 145 alum now commands more than 300 personnel, including members from the U.S. Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, Department of Defense civilians, contractors, and foreign service members.

"To the USNTPS staff and students, it has been an incredible 18 months serving as your executive officer," Kia said. "There is no other command in all the military services as diverse, competent, and committed as you. I am confident in your ability to propel the aviation enterprise into the future and I look forward to serving as your commanding officer."

DeBons, an F/A-18 Hornet pilot, took command of the school in 2021 and is credited with implementing an abbreviated course designed for civilian flight engineers among other achievements.

"To the USNTPS staff and students: I admit it is strange standing before you now that I am no longer your commanding officer," said DeBons. "It has been an incredible tour for me as you've far exceeded expectations at every turn. You - meaning admin, ops, maintenance, safety, simulator lab, instrumentation, facilities, support staff, academic and flight instructors, short course, military, civilian, and contractors. You have made this the most rewarding job and you made this the best squadron in the Navy... and the Army. Your professionalism, dedication, and enthusiasm are unmatched. It shows in all that you do."

Kia inherits a schoolhouse designed to train pilots and engineers to develop, test, and evaluate aircraft. The school is the only domestic source of rotary test pilots and serves as the Army's dedicated test pilot school. It's graduated nearly 100 American and European astronauts to date. USNTPS is a component of Naval Test Wing Atlantic, test wing under Naval Air Warfare Center Aircraft Division in Patuxent River, Maryland. NAWCAD advances capability and operational readiness for naval aviation.

Public Health Advisory: Rising Rates of COVID-19

Due to the recent rise in local cases of COVID-19 as well as sustained rates of influenza and respiratory syncytial virus (RSV), the St. Mary's County Health Department (SMCHD) is recommending community members take measures to prevent the spread of illness. Symptoms of all three respiratory illnesses can include sore throat, headache, stuffy nose and fever.

Ongoing surveillance of local COVID-19 data by SMCHD has shown a recent increase in several key indicators including an increase in COVID-19 rates across all age groups, an increase in Community Transmission to High, and an increase in Community Level to Medium.

Community members are encouraged to take the following preventive measures to avoid contracting and spreading these illnesses:

Wear a more effective mask (such as N95 or KN95) in indoor public spaces or with large groups indoors. Free KN95 masks for both adults and children are available through SMCHD Health Hub and the St. Mary's County public libraries.

Stay up-to-date with vaccines, including this year's seasonal flu vaccine and updated bivalent version of the COVID-19 booster. SMCHD encourages annual flu vaccine for all persons age 6 months and older. Updated bivalent COVID-19 boosters have better coverage of circulating variants of COVID-19, and are currently approved for those age 6 months and older.

For more information or to make a COVID-19 vaccination appointment, please visit smchd.org/covid-19-vaccine or call (301) 475-4330.

Get tested if you have symptoms of RSV, flu, or COVID-19. Testing allows community members to predict days they are most contagious, notify contacts who may have been exposed, and start appropriate treatment to prevent severe illness and spread of infection.

SMCHD offers a rapid test that checks for flu, COVID-19, and RSV in one nasal swab and uses the gold standard PCR technology. See smchd.org/covid-19-testing for current available hours and locations of rapid PCR testing.

"Preventive measures like more effective masking when in indoor public spaces and getting the new bivalent COVID-19 booster can help decrease the risk of severe illness and post-COVID conditions during this time of high community transmission," said Dr. Meena Brewster, St. Mary's County Health Officer. "As other respiratory illnesses such as flu and RSV combine with COVID to strain our regional healthcare systems, we ask our residents to better protect themselves and others, including those community members who may be more vulnerable to severe illness."

For more information about COVID-19 symptoms, prevention, testing, and vaccines, visit: smchd.org/coronavirus.

For more information about the flu, including symptoms and prevention, visit: smchd.org/flu

For more information on RSV, visit: cdc.gov/rsv/index.html

Health Department Now Offering Rapid PCR Testing for STIs

The St. Mary's County Health Department (SMCHD) is now offering rapid PCR testing to detect sexually transmitted infections (STIs) in women. This new service allows detection of chlamydia, gonorrhea, and trichomoniasis with 97% or greater accuracy. These infections are three of the most common and curable STIs. Receiving results within 30 minutes allows for patients and their partners to receive proper treatment during the same visit, eliminating the typical wait time of 7-14 days.

This advanced technology could significantly impact a woman's future health. STI testing and treatment is critical to resolving infections that can cause long term damage to women's reproductive system when left unaddressed.

Confidential testing and treatment of STIs is available at the SMCHD Health Clinic to individuals of any age. STI services are provided free of charge to those age 19 and under. Services for those 20 years of age and older are billed to health insurance; for those without insurance, services are available on a sliding fee scale based on income and eligibility criteria.

"Sexually transmitted infections can have serious consequences if left undiagnosed or if treatment is delayed," said Dr. Meena Brewster, St. Mary's County Health Officer. "This new testing resource will allow women to get diagnosed and treated more quickly, and give us a chance to get expedited treatment started for their partners, too."

For more information about STI testing or to make an appointment at the SMCHD Health Clinic, please visit smchd.org/health-clinic or call 301-475-4330.

Crisis Counseling Now Available at Health Hub

The St. Mary's County Health Department announces the launch of crisis evaluation and counseling services at the St. Mary's County Health Hub, located at 21625 Great Mills Road in Lexington Park. Services are available Monday - Friday between 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

The Health Hub provides the following crisis services to help individuals with substance use disorder and/or mental health needs move into stabilization and, ultimately, into recovery:

- Professional assessment of mental health and substance use recovery needs
- Crisis stabilization counseling
- Assistance in coordinating ongoing treatment with behavioral health professionals in the community
- Linkage to other needed community resources and supports
- Supportive connections to peers who have lived experiences with substance use and mental health recovery

Individuals who are in need of immediate assessment and counseling are able to walk in for assistance. Behavioral health professionals will focus on resolving the crisis the person is experiencing in a less intensive setting than a hospital and make connections to long term behavioral health counseling, medication management and community resources. At this time, persons who are actively suicidal, homicidal, experiencing extreme psychosis, incapacitated or those who may need medical care and/or immediate medications should use medical emergency mechanisms such as hospital emergency departments. 9-1-1 can be utilized for those experiencing a medical emergency. 9-8-8 is the national suicide and crisis lifeline for 24/7 support.

"With these services, we are starting to address a major gap in our local behavioral health care system. This is especially important as community demand for treatment of mental health and substance use disorders outpaces local capacity," said Dr. Meena Brewster, St. Mary's County Health Officer. "As we continue to build clinical services at the Health Hub, we anticipate expanding the types of mental health and substance use crises appropriate for the Hub setting. We will also work towards increasing the hours the facility is open."

Through a variety of community partners, the St. Mary's County Health Hub also offers additional services, including a harm reduction program, conflict mediation, and primary care clinic. To learn more about the Health Hub, currently available services and future plans, please visit smchd.org/hub.

Schools Looking For Additional $25 Million in New Budget

Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The St. Mary's County Public School System is proposing a $278.7 million budget for fiscal 2024 that would be comprised of local and state funds, or $25.9 more than the current fiscal 2023 budget.

The local share, which is now $121.5 million would climb to $130 million, according to the latest budget proposal from Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith for a local increase of about $8.4 million.

The rest of the money for the budget would include a proposed $141.7 million from the state and $2.5 million from the federal government along with other sources to round out the final tally.

Smith told the St. Mary's County Board of Education at a Jan. 12 budget work session that the local increase was one of about 7 percent over the current year, which was commensurate with the economic reality of the day.

"That's an important number, we are seeking a 7 percent increase... that does align with what we have been seeing inflationary-wise," Smith said.

"It's not out of the norm."

When it comes to what the state would actually provide, the situation was different.

"We don't have state numbers yet," Smith said. "Nor do we have a way to appeal what the state will see fit to give us."

"This is a formula driven calculation."

Calling the state's formula under the relatively new "Blueprint for Education" funding "challenging, Smith said, it was based on enrollment but also the types of students who were enrolled, particularly economically disadvantaged students or those who were speaking a primary language other than English.

The school system was expecting an increase of about 13 percent in funding from the state.

"That may happen, that may not happen," Smith said. "Hopefully we'll know by the end of next Friday [Jan. 20]."

Smith said the tenor of the budget work session held the same day by the Commissioners of St. Mary's County was concerning, as their allocations for the school system were barely over the maintenance of effort (MOE) requirement.

The county's preliminary budget documents show that they had planned to give just $122.5 million for county schools or only about $1 million more than the current fiscal year.

It was just a fraction of the local increase the school system was hoping for.

"The county commissioners are not required to provide any funding over maintenance of effort," Smith said. "[That] is basically flat funding."

Under the current county plan, Smith said, county departments would increase their budgets by 4 percent per year with the school system getting less than 1 percent in fiscal 2024 and no increase in fiscal 2025.

"It's not on them [commissioners]," Smith said. "They are putting in place the numbers the state gave them to fund public schools."

"I cannot stress enough that the Blueprint funding does not make sense."

At this rate of funding, said Smith, there was no way the schools could fund higher teacher salaries and other education services demanded in the state plan "without more money."

"It puts us in a really challenging position," said Smith.

Town Looks To Borrow Millions From The State

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Town of Leonardtown's project to expand and upgrade its waste water treatment plant on Van Wert Lane is estimated to cost $19 million.

To that end the town council is seeking to borrow $9 million from the state; Town Administrator Laschelle McKay brought an ordinance before the town at the Jan. 9 council meeting for their eventual approval of the bonding action.

The money would come from bonds sold by the Community Development Administration at the state level, Laschelle told council members while introducing Ordinance No. 214 for their consideration.

The ordinance must still go before a public hearing to be held in February before the council can vote on to approve or reject it.

"This money borrowed will be paid back through impact fees," said Mayor Dan Burris. "So, this does not affect the current residents."

Impact fees are monies collected on new construction in town to mitigate the increased use of public facilities such as water and sewage by more incoming town residents and businesses.

The project would increase the treatment plant's capacity to one million gallons treated per day; the town council voted in October to raise the impact fees associated with new development to $18,000 per unit built.

Before that increase, the town's impact fees had rested at $13,000 per unit since 2007, when the town needed to pay for an enhanced nutrient removal system to be installed at the plant.

That project, despite its significant cost, did not provide any increased treatment capacity.

The current plant can handle just 680,000 gallons of waste water a day.

The town has already exceeded 80 percent of the allowable capacity at the plant with the development currently in town.

Dairy Queen Project Gets Final Approval

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

A restaurant project that had raised initial opposition last year in Leonardtown received its final approval from the town's planning and zoning board this week with no one coming out to speak against it.

The planning and zoning board gave approval to the final site plan for a Dairy Queen to be built near the intersection of Washington Street and Route 5 through town immediately behind the Birdies convenience store once owned by the local Burch family.

The Burch family, still trading as Burchcoil, continues to own the carwash that stands behind the convenience store and plans to demolish it to make way for the new Dairy Queen.

The land upon which the restaurant would be built is 1.8 acres in size and is zoned in the commercial business category.

The restaurant would be 2,662 square feet in size, smaller than the more than 3,000-square-foot-in-size carwash facility, according to town planning documents.

The parking spaces allotted by the original plan totaled 42 but have been reduced to 39 by engineers working on the project to address concerns over access and exit lanes around the proposed business Town Planner Mike Bailey told board members.

The owners plan to provide an additional seven overflow parking spaces in cooperation with the Community Bank located in the same block by sharing a common connecting driveway.

The new business would also have a driveway.

The planning and zoning board also gave concept site approval for a new orthopedic medical facility and doctors office to be located at Leonard's Grant Parkway and Hollywood Road entering town.

The facility would be 69,172 square feet in size with two stories to act as office space for physicians.

MLK Speaker: Doing What Is Right Comes With a Cost

Chris Haley

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Martin Luther King, Jr., and his legacy of battling for civil rights, are much loved today 55 years after his assassination but his reputation was far worse in his day when he was carrying on the fight.

So said Chris Haley, historian and nephew of Roots author Alex Haley, to attendees of the MLK Day Prayer Breakfast at St. Mary's College of Maryland Jan. 16.

"We love his message, we love his story, now," Haley said. "But he was not universally liked.

"He was hated by many in this country."

King and his message of equality, both social and economic, which included the concept of basic, guaranteed income for all, were often maligned in the press.

King's 1967 speech against the Vietnam War was castigated by Life Magazine as a "demagogic slander that sounded like a script for Radio Hanoi," Haley said.

This was after King had won the Nobel Peace Prize for his non-violent protests against racism and discrimination in the United States.

But King proceeded with his movement, Haley said, despite the vitriol pointed at him; he would be satisfied with nothing less than "radical change."

The Civil Rights Act, signed into law in 1964, was one such example but an additional act with the same name would be passed in 1968 further prohibiting discriminatory practices in public life.

It would become law as riots broke out immediately after King's shooting death in Memphis, Tenn. on April 4, 1968.

"How many claim to love Dr. King now, yet they despise current social justice programs?" Haley asked his audience. "Would they love him then?"

Following the example of King meant risking being rejected and even hated as he was, said Haley.

"Those who are against change... hate that you are doing it at all," Haley said. "You may have to risk being hated a little to be respected a lot."

King wanted to press for change through the vote, Haley said, and King encouraged those seeking change to run for office despite the odds against them.

The candidacy alone meant that a long-repressed message would be made public.

"You may not win but at least you'll be heard," Haley said.

Defendant in Fiery, Fatal Crash On Trial

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Aleksandar Ivanchev

Aleksandar Ivanchev, the man accused of killing a young couple by crashing his vehicle into theirs at the Golden Beach Road intersection with Route 5 as he sped at upwards of 100 miles an hour north is facing second-degree murder charges as well as negligent manslaughter charges in a trial that is expected to conclude Friday.

Ivanchev's trial began late in the afternoon on Jan. 17 after almost two years since the crash occurred that killed Melody Russell, 29, and Shawn Bailey, 27, a young pair who were engaged to be married.

The crash occurred on July 30, 2021 when Ivanchev's vehicle collided with the one Bailey and Russell were in and their vehicle burst into flames.

Ivanchev was badly injured in the crash and was eventually released from confinement to await trial.

Ivanchev's passport was confiscated;

he is originally from Bulgaria.

The trial has been postponed several times and Ivanchev has been in and out of incarceration since his initial confinement when he was arrested in March of 2021 for driving a vehicle — a tractor — near his St. Mary's City home to move firewood, according to police reports.

Ivanchev had been prohibited by court order from driving as a condition of his release.

Ivanchev's defense counsel has argued in court filings that he had suffered a head injury before the crash and that the injury contributed to or likely was the cause of the crash.

Speaker Draws Criticism After LHS Talk

Jeff Yalden

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

A well-known motivational speaker who specializes in talking to teenaged students about mental health and suicide prevention drew criticism from parents and students alike after a speech he gave at Leonardtown High School last week.

Several parents speaking out on social media regarding the event said their children reported the speaker — Jeff Yalden — told them that “self harm was OK, at least they were feeling something,” one parent wrote.

Another said their child had reported that Yalden had used the time to speak to them as a “trauma dump” about his own past relationship problems and only contributed to the students' anxiety.

Yalden was hired to speak there using money from a student-led fundraiser, according to Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith.

The honorarium Yalden received was $6,700, Smith said.

“No public funds were used to support this event,” Smith told The County Times. “As with any program or presentation, have mixed responses.

“Many teachers, parents and students reported it was a valuable presentation and generated positive discussions with students about mental health while others have expressed concern.”

One parent said their child had reported Yalden told those assembled that “drug abuse is fine because it means you care.”

Yalden said he was being unfairly criticized and that what he said in some cases was either misheard or misinterpreted, especially the remarks he made about children harming themselves.

“Self-harm to me is a child asking for help and that's a good thing,” Yalden told The County Times. “What I say to them is that when a child comes to me and they are harming themselves I don't react [excitedly].

“That means they're feeling, they're asking for help but they don't know how.”

When children and teens can't talk about their problems or won't talk about them, Yalden said, they tend to act them out.

Yalden said he gave two talks at separate assemblies and was at Leonardtown High School the entire day.

“Would they have even let me stay after the first assembly if it was that bad?” Yalden asked. “Kids are going to hear what they want to hear.

“This is ridiculous and unfortunate; this is kids acting out and parents acting out.”

Yalden said he had been approached by several other schools in St. Mary's to speak to their students but the recent controversy over his Leonardtown High School visit meant he would likely not pursue other engagements here.

“I'm probably just going to stay out of the community,” Yalden said.

Residents, Businesses Facing Higher Property Taxes

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The state's announcement just before the New Year that property value assessments had increased across Maryland by an average of 20.6 percent over the last three years has some worried about their increased property tax bill as a result.

The increased assessments will mean increased property tax bills for both residential and commercial properties.

In St. Mary's County residential properties rose in value by 18.3 percent and commercial properties rose 12.9 percent, the report stated.

In neighboring Calvert County, property values rose by 19.8 percent while commercial properties rose in value by 8.1 percent.

The increases were for the 2023 projected report compared to the report released in 2020.

"It's vitally important that everyone apply for the homestead tax credit," said County Commissioner Eric Colvin. "If they haven't applied for it they won't get it." The county's homestead tax credit applies to property owners and their primary residence and prevents the amount of property tax they pay each year from increasing more than 3 percent per year.

"Not everyone knows about it," Colvin said. "People are concerned about their property taxes increasing and their assessments going up."

With inflation increasing the prices of most household goods and gas prices still high, Colvin said he hoped to find some way to provide tax relief in the county government budgeting process this year given that property taxes are rising.

"But there are a lot of increases in costs that we have to deal with," Colvin said. "We're looking at an increased bill for education costs and an increase from our newly elected State's Attorney [Jaymi Sterling]."

"We don't know what the sheriff's office request will be."

The county commissioner board is also waiting to hear from all other county departments and agencies as to their budget requests, which will likely also be increased.

Despite this, the commissioners have already committed to spending $3.4 million of the $10.4 million increase in tax revenues over last year's budget to give county employees a 4.5 percent cost of living adjustment pay increase.

Colvin was the sole vote in opposition to that vote taken at the Jan. 10 operating budget work session.

Matt Burgan, owner of a regional real estate brokerage, said the rise in assessments and tax rates will have negative effects here.

"Mortgages will go up..." Burgan said. "Essentially the cost of home ownership will increase."

Burgan said that about 20 percent of the homes he sells in St. Mary's County are owned by people who are looking to go somewhere else where the tax burden is not so great.

"For the community, though the impact is much greater," Burgan said. "When we disincentivize people to stay in communities by raising taxes and rates you can eventually lose tax payers," Burgan said. "When I talk to people in St. Mary's County who want to sell their home and I ask why they want to leave they tell me it's because of the taxes."

"They're selling to move to another state where the negative impacts of taxes aren't so profound."

The county's operation budget revenues this year are nearly $290 million between property and income tax revenues according to the latest budget projections.

It is here that Colvin said there could be some hope of property tax relief, which could be achieved through going to a constant yield tax rate in which the rate would be adjusted to ensure the county collected the same amount in property tax receipts in fiscal 2024 as it did in fiscal 2023.

But this is something that the county commissioners have not done in at least the last decade.

"We get slightly more in revenue from income taxes than property taxes," Colvin said. "And that's mostly because of [the high-paying jobs] on the base."

County Treasurer Christine Kelly said the COVID-19 pandemic was one of the main drivers behind the rise in property tax assessments as the real estate market saw significant activity during lockdowns.

"The real estate markets had been stagnant for years," Kelly explained. "There was a massive amount of changing deeds during COVID."

"People were bored, they were buying houses like crazy and taking the time to move."

Kelly said a sizeable number of people buying property and moving to St. Mary's came all the way from New England but kept their jobs there to continue to telecommute.

"We could barely keep up," Kelly said. "A lot of people were coming from outside the area and moving to St. Mary's."

"They wanted to get out of the cities."

Many of those residents in New England states often paid three to four times the level of property taxes that they now pay in St. Mary's, she said.

The rapid increase in sales of real estate across Maryland drove prices up, hence the increase in assessments by state authorities. "It's not driven by the state but by the markets," Kelly said.
