Calvert Celebrates Independence Day

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The skies over Calvert County will be brightly lit over the July 4th holiday. And because fireworks events are planned on consecutive days, residents will have a chance to double dip on their celebrations. Chesapeake Beach's Independence Day celebration will be on Monday July 3 and Solomons will hold theirs on July 4.

The Chesapeake Beach Town Council at their June 15 meeting was excited to hear about their plans from Town Administrator Holly Wahl.

She reported, "Every year the Town of Chesapeake Beach sponsors a fireworks display at the center of the town. The display is viewable along the Fishing Creek bridge, Kellam's Field, Veteran's Memorial Park, or at one of our waterfront restaurants or resort. The fireworks are held at dusk. Bring a blanket and a picnic for a family fun evening at Kellam's Field (glass containers and alcoholic beverages are prohibited)."

Fireworks will be set off from two barges in the Bay. For security, members of the Twin Beaches patrol of the Calvert County Sheriff's Office will be in full force with some on bicycles.

The rain date for the Chesapeake Beach celebration will be July 8.

The traffic plan for Twin Beaches on the night of fireworks is as follows: "The traffic plan is set up to eliminate all left-hand turns on a portion of Route 261 going through the Twin Beaches, eliminating the need to stop traffic randomly and enabling traffic to flow with minimal stopping. The centerline of Route 261 will be blocked with delineation devices that will prohibit vehicles from making U-turns. Traffic north of Route 260 along Route 261 on the east side of Route 261 must make right turns and exit left on 5th Street to Boyd's Turn Road to Route 260. Traffic on the west side of Route 261 must make a right turn and exit on 27th Street to G Street to Route 260. Traffic south of Route 260 along Route 261 on the east side of Route 261 must make a right turn and must turn left onto Route

260. Traffic on the west side of Route 261 must turn right and continue along Route 261 to Summer City Blvd or continue south to Ponds Wood Road and proceed to Maryland Route 4."

Solomons Island continues on July 4th with a noon boat parade and fireworks that are launched from a barge in the Patuxent. Games, crafts, and the Chesapeake Biological campus entertain the crowds before the pyrotechnic show. The fireworks begin at approximately 9:15 p.m.

According to the sponsor, Solomons Business Association, the following is the day's schedule:

- Flag Raising Ceremony / 10:00 a.m. / Watermen's Memorial near the entrance to Solomons Island
- Youth Bid Parade / 11:00 a.m. / Begins and concludes at Our Lady Star of the Sea (in the rear parking lot)
- Boat Parade / 12 p.m. / Begins in Back Creek and proceeds to the Patuxent River past the Riverside Boardwalk
- Free Historical Adventure Quest for Kids with Revolutionary War Reenactors / 12 – 3 p.m. / Begins at the Corbin Pavilion at the Calvert Marine Museum
- Visit an Award Winner Restaurant / All day / Across the island
- Free Live Concert / 7 – 9 p.m. / At the boardwalk gazebo
- Fireworks / 9:15 p.m. / Visible from nearly all points on Solomons Island

The Traffic & Parking Plan is as follows: "Vehicular traffic on the island will be restricted. Parking will be available in the grassy area of Glascock Field; proceeds go to Boy Scout Troop 451 and SBA Fireworks. Thanks to the Glascock Family for the generous use of the field. Please park in designated areas only; please respect private property. Cost of Parking in Glascock field $5. Arrangements are being made to ensure that ample parking is available for all visitors to Solomons Island Fireworks! Early in the day, visitors may park on the island, but parking spots are very limited."

Private Company Pitches Toll Bridge

County to Assist in Public Outreach

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

A private company that wants to build and operate a toll bridge replacement for the Gov. Thomas Johnson Bridge made their first presentation June 27 to the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC). The BOCC was told a $500 million replacement four-lane bridge could be built in as little as three years, with tolls of about $3 for each trip, although some local resident discounts could be possible. At the end of the presentation by officials from United Bridge Partners, Commissioner President Buddy Hance said they would work with the company to arrange meetings to explain the proposal to the public.

Hance said, "I believe the board here isn't opposed to community outreach to get a feel from the community. Because, as you recognize, we're not going to do it without their support."

The company, however, did not propose to construct the access roads, particularly on the St. Mary's County side. So that is one of the unanswered questions – whether the state or federal government would pay for that portion of what is needed.

Commissioner Vice President Mike Hart said, "You're just going to bottleneck right there. You're fine on the Calvert side. On St. Mary's side you go to one (lane)."

United Bridge Partners President/CEO Doug Witt said they have done six bridges, of which they own three and three they lease. The total value for the six bridges is $750 million. The Solomons bridge would be their costliest.

Witt agreed with Hance, "Unless the community is behind it, we're not going to be behind it. We're not going to do that. Everybody needs to be aligned."

Witt said, "Two things are always at play in the communities in which we're in. One, there is a need to replace, and two, there's insufficient funds and neither of those tend to move. So, we tend to be an option that's available."

Witt noted, "We will commit upfront the entire amount of money to rebuild and replace the bridge." He said the $500 million was a placeholder estimate. "If it were six, that's fine. If it were 250, that's fine. But we can go ahead and commit it upfront."

He said, "It's all equity. There's no debt here," adding, "It's like buying a house with cash. And one of the reasons is it helps us move quickly because obviously a short cycle time's important."

The projected toll amount was the subject of much discussion. "We absolutely want the lowest tolls to do this. And we're trying to contain cost on a number of fronts," Witt said.

Hart observed, "That area there is so dependent on that bridge. There's no other option. Really, going to Benedict is not a feasible option if you're working there all the time."

Hart added, "If I'm working a minimum wage job, that's a big hit. If I'm making $300,000 a year, maybe not so much, but you have everybody in that equation."

Witt said, "We have been able to, in certain instances, implement resident friendly kind of toll rates that may be differentiated from the standard, call it $3. And we've done that in a couple of examples."

Hart said, "I've heard about this bridge almost every day of my life. Sure. I can tell you if you're dependent on that bridge, some people make multiple trips. Doesn't sound like a lot, $6, but if you're somebody that's on fixed income, what's to prohibit you to go to $5 each way, $10 each way?"

"We have ways to go ahead and manage that for the community," Witt responded. "And we've done it. We've made offers where there are monthly passes for multiple trips."

Witt said perhaps the state would be willing to apply the money they spend on maintenance on the current bridge to help subsidize the toll costs.

The realist in Hart said, "That bridge, waiting on the state and federal government, will not be replaced unless the darn thing falls in the ground, basically. So that's a fact. Everybody knows that. So, the only option to truly replace it would be a toll bridge. Problem is, is it financially cohesive to do?"

Hance said, "In all honesty, people have said they've realized that that bridge isn't getting replaced anytime soon. And this is an option. And people have said if the toll's only $2 or $3, I'll pay it to get a new bridge," adding, "This board is open to the discussion, but as you know and have said, we need to do community outreach, you need the community to buy in. Because we're not going to do it if the community doesn't buy in."

Zoning Ordinance Changes Explained

New Update Schedule Announced

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The staff of the Calvert County Department of Planning and Zoning had their first public presentation last week on the first draft of the update of the county's zoning ordinance. Commissioner President Buddy Hance assured the public that the effort was only the beginning of the process. And Planning and Zoning Director Mary Beth Cook extended the deadline for public comment on the first draft until July 21.

Cook and Planner III/Zoning Wil Hager made presentation June 21 to the planning commission and June 22 at a public workshop. Cook told the planners, "This is the staff draft. This is our starting point based on the adopted comprehensive plan for which we are expecting changes to be made based on future work sessions with the commissioners, comments from the planning commission, and also from public comments. Zoning staff took the adopted comprehensive plan and put together a draft, which we feel meets the comprehensive plan, which is a requirement by state law. This by no means is the final draft. This is our working copy. So, this is just the beginning."

Cook noted, "We've mirrored the process that was used for 2006 zoning ordinance update process but received a lot of comments that this seemed rushed. So, we've paused, we've regrouped, and we will be presenting a new schedule tonight. We've reformatted it so the public forums will be held before comments are due."

She noted the two information sessions were continued because there were a lot of changes being presented. She added they would be "reviewing the documents throughout the summer. After receiving and reviewing comments, the draft will be revised before scheduling the public hearing. Comments can be made up to the public hearing and any time from now until then. That won't occur until sometime mid-2024. The schedule is fluid. Adjustments will be made as needed."

The first draft includes some zoning category changes. The one that has drawn the most public interest so far is the area surrounding the Prince Frederick Town Center. Hager explained, "Under the current ordinance, higher residential densities are permitted with the purchase of TDRs (development rights) within a one-mile radius or one mile perimeter at the town centers.

"The comprehensive plan exchanged the one-mile radius/perimeter policy for the town centers of Prince Frederick, Solomons, Lusby, Chesapeake Beach, and North Beach with a more clearly defined residential growth area. While the comprehensive plan retained the policy of permitting a higher residential density with the use of TDRs within a one-mile radius from the town centers of Dunkirk, Owings, Huntingtown and St. Leonard, it also stated that this policy will be reviewed during the update of zoning ordinance regulations. During this update process, we reviewed this policy and decided with the draft zoning ordinance to introduce a new zoning district that is meant to replace the one-mile radius policy for these town centers. And we're calling this district the Rural Neighborhood District (RND)."

Hager went on to say, "There exists a district known as the Rural Community District (RCD) under the current ordinance, but there have been some changes to the RCD in this draft in terms of permitted residential density, specifically transfer zone density. The RCD in the draft is comparable to the density that can be achieved in the RCD under the current ordinance outside of the mile radius. There's a slight difference, however, under the current ordinance. Outside the mile radius in the RCD, you can achieve a density of one unit per four acres with the purchase of TDRs; in the draft the transfer zone density in the RCD is one dwelling per five acres with the purchase TDRs."

Hager told the public workshop attendees that other factors come in to play in addition to the zoning category that determine density. For instance, he said along German Chapel Road, land is included in the state's Tier 3 category which means that no public water and sewer service is anticipated and thus they have to revert to a lower density.

Hager said, "The RCD is intended to maintain a mix of farms, forests, and residential uses, retain historic and scenic areas, and protect watersheds. These goals are to be achieved in part with the mandatory clustering of subdivisions and parcels 30 acres or greater in size with a minimum of 60 percent of the subdivision to be permanently preserved as open space and lots and roads to be clustered onto the remainder site."

He added that the new RND is "equivalent to the current permitted density in the RCD within one mile radius with the purchase of TDRs, which is one dwelling unit per acre. And there is no required clustering. Residential subdivisions and smaller minimum lot size are permitted as compared to the RCD."

Hager explained, "The decision on which parcels to include within the RND was based largely on proximity to the one-mile radius around town centers. However, other factors were considered. So for example, the parcels on Yellow Bank Road northwest of Dunkirk Town Center were not included in the RND despite mostly being located within the one mile radius because those parcels were FFD (Farm and Forrest District) under current zoning and the parcels to the east of Maryland 4 and to the north of Ward Road were also not included in the RND because of either their direct proximity to Maryland 4 or distinct road patterns that direct traffic away rather than towards the town center."

Hager also explained, "The WCD (Waterfront Conservation District) is intended to recognize existing long established residential waterfront communities along the Patuxent River, the Chesapeake Bay, and the tributaries. This district is predominantly located within areas recognized as rural villages by the Maryland Department of Planning. The primarily small lot residential development and water dependent uses, the characteristic of these communities, is recognized as distinct within Calvert County's rural landscape. So, think of areas like Cove Point, Broome's Island, White Sands, Long Beach.

The long-established nature of these communities limits future development within this district. The comprehensive plan states that waterfront communities are not planned for expansion or additional growth, and that TDRs may not be used to permit additional dwelling units in these areas. And that is reflected in the permitted residential densities for this district, which mean subdivisions resulting in the creation of additional lots are not permitted. However, a preexisting parcel can still pull a building permit if the parcel is buildable and preexisting lots can be combined in order to create a new lot. And the setbacks for this district are comparable to the current setbacks for previously platted residential lots, 20,000 square feet or less in size."

Before the June 21 planning commission meeting, after a joint public hearing with the county commissioners, an ordinance was passed pausing approval of new zoning map and text amendments. Those requests will be considered as part of the zoning ordinance update and not on a case-by-case basis.

County to Purchase Another Building in Prince Frederick

Image capture: Dec 2021 © 2023 Google

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Although Calvert County just let a bid for $38,759,888 for the construction of a new county office building in Prince Frederick, the county appears to also be moving ahead with the purchase of another building in Prince Frederick for more than $2 million.

The Calvert County Planning Commission at their June 21 meeting was told by Public Works Deputy Director Tom Jones, “The Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) directed the Department of Public Works – General Services to pursue the property located at 110 Main Street, Prince Frederick, Maryland, after Armory Road LLC, the property owners, approached the County Administrator’s office of their intention to sell their property. Several departments will not be moving to the new County Administration Building. This facility offers space to relocate specific departmental staff.”

Jones said the proposal was being presented to the planning commission because Maryland state law says that certain types of projects “... may not be authorized or constructed in the local jurisdiction or in a geographic section of the local jurisdiction until the planning commission has approved the location, character, and extent of the development as consistent with the plan” (e.g., comprehensive plan or a town center master plan). Types of projects include ‘publicly or privately-owned street, square, park, or other public way, ground, or open space, a public building or structure, or a public utility....’”

Jones said the property, which contains an office building, is approximately 1.34 acres. He said the county had made an option deposit of $100,000 towards a purchase price of $2,050,000. He said the property was appraised at $1.8 million. He said the cost to renovate it for county use was to be determined.

Jones said the building will allow county government to vacate the courthouse, but he said the county commissioners would be moving to the new administration building. He said that most likely public works would move into the 110 Main Street location.

The planning commission unanimously voted that the use for the purchase location was consistent with the county’s comprehensive plan.

Wanderings

of an Aimless Mind

by Shelby Oppermann

A Little Bit of This...

The words, “A Little bit of This a Little Bit of That” from the song The Game of Love by Santana has been going through my head for a few days, not sure why. Maybe my sub-conscious mind was telling me that it would probably be a good name for an article when a little bit of this and a little bit of that is what comes to mind for what to write. I wish it wasn’t so hard to focus on one train of thought, but sometimes that’s the way it is.

While driving through our neighborhood Monday I noticed many lawns had loads of happy yellow dandelions swaying in the light breeze. I swear I felt like they were smiling at me on their tall, slender stalks. Weird, right? I was just grateful that collectively so many people had decided not to cut their lawns on Sunday and take this beauty away. My husband looked at our yard Sunday and said, “It’s almost ready to cut, but not quite. I inwardly sighed in relief that maybe we would have lots of dandelions too. I hope I am not the only person that sees the dandelions, and buttercups too, as a happy reminder of childhood days spent sitting under trees reading with a transistor radio up to my ear, and not just as nuisance weeds.

We did have quite another nuisance in our yard last week when we had men who came to cut down some old fallen trees in the woods in our backyard. The fallen trees, mainly pines, have been a problem for us and many neighbors when they fall on the fences between everyone’s yards. In our neighborhood the tree guys must feel like they have hit the lottery with our Country Lakes development so full of trees...either fallen or needing to be cut down.

So, the tree guys are in the back yard happily cutting with their chainsaws and I’m doing things in the house when I hear a frantic knocking on the front door. I look out to find the head guy pointing at his arms and saying, “Bees, Bees!”. I was caught a little off guard, and not realizing what he was saying at first. “Oh, bees!” I said, and then realized he and his guys were getting stung. He said the rotten trees were filled with bees and asked if I had spray, so I went hunting and found some wasp spray. I was hoping that would do the trick. A few minutes later my husband returned to check on how they were doing out back and he got stung a bunch of times too. So much for wasp spray.

At least this time when the angry bees were on the warpath I answered the front door. Last time we had an incident like this I didn’t answer the door. I thought some crazy salesperson was out there. I couldn’t believe someone would knock that hard and loud even with my husband mowing the lawn out front. Turned out the crazy person was my husband and previous dog Tidbit. My husband had mowed over a large patch of those bloodthirsty, angry ground bees and riled them up. They latched onto him and Tidbit with their stingers and wouldn’t let go, following them all the way to the front door. I believe an even angrier husband and dog had to make their way around to the basement door. It was not a good night to say the least with each of them getting stung many, many times.

When I went out back a little while ago to get a picture of the beautiful flowers that my husband calls weeds, I thought maybe I could just walk in the backyard woods to peek at how it looks without the Jenga-like tangle of fallen trees. But, for some reason Mindy was keeping her distance from that area which must be a doggie instinct. My husband however, had mentioned a day or so ago that it might not be a bad idea if I checked the area out...with a sly smile on his face, saying that he heard bee stings were good for arthritis. I don’t know though, for some reason his eyes held just the slightest hint of, or hope of, revenge. He wouldn’t do that would he?? Well I’m not taking any chances, I’m just going to take the photo today of my happy flowers and run like heck back inside.

To each new day’s adventure, Shelby

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Take steps to prepare for a long retirement

How long will you live? Of course, your longevity is somewhat unpredictable. But it may be a good idea to plan for a long life — and the financial issues that go along with it.

It’s reasonable to think you’ve got a long way to go. In fact, 72% of retirees now think they will live longer than their parents, according to a recent survey from Age Wave and Edward Jones. Their optimism may be justified: A 65-year-old woman can expect to live almost 20 more years, while a 65-year-old man can anticipate about 17 more years, according to the Centers for Disease Control. And these figures are just averages — if you’re healthy at 65, you could spend two or even three more decades as a retiree.

To help maintain the resources necessary to pay for these years, you may need to take several steps, such as the following:

- Seek income and growth from your investments. Once you’re retired, you’ll probably need to rely more heavily on your investment portfolio to help pay for your cost of living. That means you will need a mix of investments that provide income — to supplement your Social Security and any pensions you might have — and growth — to help keep you ahead of inflation. You might also consider specific investments designed for longevity, such as a fixed annuity, which can provide you with a regular income stream you can’t outlive.
- Establish a reasonable withdrawal rate. You’ll need to establish and maintain a reasonable withdrawal rate — the percentage of your portfolio you take out each year. As a general rule, many people start out in retirement by designating a 4% annual withdrawal rate, but your individual figure will depend on a variety of factors, such as your age, the size of your portfolio, other sources of income and so on. And keeping an emergency fund on the side can help you with unforeseen costs that could otherwise cause you to withdraw more than you’d like. Unsurprisingly, the goal with choosing the appropriate withdrawal rate and monitoring it throughout retirement is so you don’t outlive your portfolio.
- Consider adding some earned income. Once you’ve formally retired from your career, you might consider working part time or doing some consulting. The added income can improve your cash flow and take some of the pressure off your investment portfolio. Keep in mind that your income level in retirement will determine what tax rate you pay on your Social Security benefits. If you take Social Security early and are earning above a certain amount, your benefits could be temporarily reduced.
- Don’t underestimate health care costs. Even with Medicare or Medicare Advantage, your out-of-pocket health care costs can be considerable. Upon first retiring, it’s often a good idea to budget between $4,500 to $6,500 per person annually, though depending on your health, prescriptions and supplemental insurance, your costs could certainly be higher or lower than this range. And these figures don’t include the costs of long-term care, which can be enormous and aren’t typically covered by Medicare. To help protect yourself — and your family — from long-term care expenses, you may want to work with a financial professional, who could recommend insurance strategies or other techniques.

A long life can certainly be rewarding — and even more so when you’re prepared for it.

Corrections Officer's Job Is More Than Just Working in a Jail

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Looking at Corrections Officer First Class Jordan Wagner, he looks exactly like a sheriff's office deputy in terms of uniform, gear, sidearm, and body armor.

"The only way you can tell are the panels on my vest and on my back," Wagner said.

They say "Corrections" but Wagner's job takes him outside the jail and into the community checking on those under house arrest awaiting trial; this puts him in close contact with offenders and residents at large.

One of the key differences between corrections officers and deputies is that corrections officers do not have arrest powers and do not answer 911 calls.

But Wagner has the training to respond to emergencies should they happen close to him.

"If I'm out doing house checks and there's an active shooter [at a nearby school] I'm going to respond," Wagner said.

More than a corrections officer who guards prisoners and checks on those under house arrest for compliance with the law,

Wagner is a firearms instructor, a defensive tactics instructor and an academic instructor for new corrections officers.

He's worked inside the county detention center and now does much of his duties from the Community Corrections Center, which deals with those on house arrest.

The program helps those awaiting trial and those who have been convicted but sentenced to house arrest stay within the law and rehabilitate.

"I think it's effective to a degree," Wagner said. "The defendants can only help themselves as much as they want."

He's worked for the corrections department, which is under the sheriff's office, since 2018 but continues serving as a military police officer in the Army National Guard.

He started out in the Army going for police training and found that was his calling, he continues that in corrections.

He said, as a career, it offers many opportunities for personal and professional growth.

"I'm very passionate for it," Wagner said. "Working in the jail builds your communications skills but being a corrections officer is not just being locked up in jail.

"It's just all about how hard you want it."

Career EMS Chief Rises to the Challenge

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Since he was 16 years old lifelong county resident Tom Raley has been volunteering as an emergency medical technician (EMT), firefighter and eventually rising to the level of paramedic in 2006.

Just a few years ago he took a job being a paid paramedic here in St. Mary's when the Commissioners of St. Mary's County pushed for paid emergency medical staff to operate in the volunteer stations during the most needful daytime hours.

Since January he has been the acting chief of paid medical personnel employed by the county. He never expected he'd be at that position but he's carrying on.

"It's a lot of work," Raley, 38, said. "But we're slowly getting things to where they need to be."

The introduction of paid EMTs and medics to St. Mary's was a difficult one, including a tough transition into paid ambulance services.

When he graduated from St. Mary's Ryken High School, he went to Duquesne University in Pittsburgh; he soon returned.

"I went to college; I didn't like it," Raley said. "I came back and got my associates degree in emergency medical services from College of Southern Maryland.

"I didn't like leaving St. Mary's County."

When he got his education, there was no doubt in his mind what he wanted to do; he could look back to his first-time volunteering with the Leonardtown rescue squad.

"I remember running my first call and I was hooked," Raley said. "It was just the rush of going on that call."

He remembers watching a paramedic who he admired work; he knew he wanted to be just like them.

"I wanted to be the one everyone looked up to when they needed help," Raley said. "And I wanted to be there to help them."

He laments the recent supplanting of volunteer rescue workers for paid ones, but said the dwindling numbers of volunteers — even before the COVID-19 pandemic — necessitated it.

But he doesn't believe volunteers will ever be completely replaced. "I don't foresee that happening," Raley said. "I don't think we can afford it."

Raley works mostly in an office setting now, but loves running calls so much he works on weekends as a paramedic in Calvert County.

"I'm very fortunate to work in something I love doing," said Raley.

FIRE

Bay District Volunteer Has Firefighting in His Blood

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Like many others, the U.S. Navy brought James Driscoll, a Long Island, New York native, to St. Mary's County where, after mustering out of the service as an aviation maintenance specialist, he continues to work at Patuxent River Naval Air Station.

But Driscoll's real passion is firefighting and he has the heritage to back it up.

Both his father and his grandfather were veterans of the New York City Fire Department with 75 years of experience between them.

"They were both in the Navy, too," Driscoll, 33, told The County Times. "I grew up around New York City firefighters my whole life."

Driscoll said he looked up to his father his whole life and wanted to follow in his footsteps.

"I saw him so happy going to work," Driscoll said. "He never complained.

"They aged him out; he didn't want to leave."

Driscoll carries on that family tradition here has a volunteer with the Bay District Volunteer Fire Department where he and other volunteers are kept busy running calls of all kinds from fires, to car crashes to overdoses and even shootings.

"It's the only thing I ever really wanted to do," Driscoll said. "I've met lifelong friends here.

"The camaraderie, the friendship; I like the area, you get a little bit of everything."

He's spent the last eight years with the Bay District fire company and loves the excitement of the volunteer job no matter what it throws his way.

"We run the most fires but Mechanicsville probably has us beat for motor vehicle crashes," he said. "I like the teamwork and helping others.

"We don't show it all the time but every guy here wants to help people."

There's a dichotomy, though, in the fire service he said, which adds to the attraction of the place.

"Everyone here is a type 'A' personality, they're here to work," Driscoll said.

"Firemen are like kids that never grow up; were all adults but with 10 guys in a fire station it can be like a frat house."

Driscoll said that whatever his vocation may be, firefighting will continue to be his passion and true profession.

"I love being a fireman," Driscoll said. "It takes up 90 percent of my free time."

St. Mary's County Lottery Player Takes Home $100,000

A 31-year-old St. Mary's County resident who doesn't normally play crossword-themed scratch-offs tried the sixth edition of the $100,000 Crossword game, winning the game's last top prize.

The father of three was leaving a cookout in May when nature and Lady Luck came calling. He stopped at Cook Liquors in St. Mary's County, where he wound up buying six instant tickets. "I figured, since I was there, I would pick up some scratch-off games, too."

Two of the scratch-offs were the sixth edition of the $100,000 Crossword game. He chose the $10 game because of its extended-play feature. However, the busy dad never got around to scratching off the instant tickets until the next day, when he was playing his Pick 3, 4 and 5 games and remembered the scratch-offs. He began to scan the instant tickets, finding a few small wins until he came to the last $100,000

Crossword game. He won $100,000!

The calm winner didn't show any outward reaction, he recalled. "I just put the ticket away and went home."

About two weeks later, the lucky guy shared the news with his girlfriend.

"I didn't believe him," she told Lottery officials. "He just told me he won, not showing me the ticket or anything."

The lucky player, when claiming the prize with his girlfriend at Lottery headquarters in Baltimore, said he'll share some of his winnings with his family so they can take a vacation. He also plans to help his girlfriend get a new car and then will put the rest of the prize into the bank.

Also celebrating is the Lottery retailer that sold the top-prize winning scratch-off. Cook Liquors located at 25765 Three Notch Road in Hollywood will receive a $1,000 bonus from the Lottery for its lucky sale.

The Tackle Box Fishing Report

By Ken Lamb
Contributing Writer

We have spot, trout, rockfish, perch and the vanguard of cobia coming up from the mouth of the Bay.

I saw a photo of a 55-pound cobia caught just below the Target Ship last Sunday. The fish took a live eel in a chum line set up by lucky angler. The cobia are still hanging out below Windmill Point for the most part, waiting for the bay to warm up to 72 degrees and make them comfortable. The heat we have now will get them up in some numbers soon. There have been a handful caught in our area so far.

The big news is the spot run which is in high gear. These tasty Norfolk Spot are in the bay, rivers, and creeks hitting at anything edible. Catches are made with bloodworms (their favorite), Fishbites, lug worms, squid, shrimp, night crawlers, and bits of razor clam. The spot are so numerous they are pesky, eating bits of bait off spinner baits meant for white perch. The spot are small, but gaining size fast.

Rockfish are playing hide and seek. Good catches are made by casting bucktails, jigs with plastics, swimming plugs, etc. in the creeks and rivers around structure on running tides. Trollers up the Potomac in the vicinity of the 301 Bridge are doing well.

We have a spectacular speckled sea trout run developing. Lure casters are scoring on big trout daily in the mouth of the Potomac. Bluefish and rockfish are mixed in with the trout. Trout and rock are on the Cedar Point rock pile and on the rip. Little bluefish are schooled up there also.

White perch fishing is good now when the tides are moving for bottom fishermen and Beetle Spin casters.

There are plenty of catfish up the Potomac and Patuxent for those with strong arms and fresh alewife for bait.

Crabs are running strong. Fresh alewife for bait is good, and razor clams will bring them in swimming from miles around.

Largemouth bass are very active.
Let's go fishing!

Navy to Field New Hearing Protection for Extreme Noise

The Naval Aircrew Systems program office (PMA-202) is using data collected during recent fleet assessments to refine the HGU-99/P Hearing Protection Helmet (HPH) which is intended for flight deck crew exposed to extreme noise environments.

Depending on where they work on the flight deck, many flight deck crew operate under extreme noise conditions which has the potential to challenge their communication, effectiveness, and flight operations tempo. The new HPH provides three layers of hearing protection, impact head protection, and electronic “hear-through” to restore auditory situational awareness. The refined helmet is designed to improve crew communication, personal protection, and reduce hearing loss from prolonged exposure to extreme noise, one of the Navy’s top safety concerns.

“The HPH provides improved impact protection and increased hearing protection for flight deck crew working on the areas of the deck that are the loudest. Based on the data collected from our fleet assessments, we have been able to further refine the communication capabilities, which will enhance operations tempo on the deck,” said Capt. Carey Castelein, PMA-202 program manager.

The program office utilized fleet assessments to incorporate the data collected from verification and qualification tests such as equipment compatibility, speech intelligibility, and face-to-face communication in proximity to jet noise to select the new HPH solution.

The HPH is compatible with external communication systems and all variants include the face-to-face “hear through” electronic communication system and use the same battery, improving compatibility. The communication system for each variant is based on noise level and communication need in proximity to jet noise, with a sound-powered phone system for the highest noise areas, boom or cup microphone for medium noise attenuation, and face-to-face only for lowest of the extreme noise areas.

“Thorough research, test and fleet assessments allowed our team to determine the best possible solution for improved extreme noise hearing protection, communication capability and head protection, taking into account performance and user feedback,” said Kimberly Gould, PMA-202 HPH team lead.

The program office started fleet assessments of the HPH in 2020 and anticipates production in limited quantities to support operational test and evaluation will begin June 2023.

Update on Shooting in Lexington Park

On June 23, 2023, at around 11:38 a.m., Deputies with the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office responded to the area of Gloucester Court for the report of shots fired. Deputies arrived on scene and located a 17-year-old male with multiple gunshot wounds. The victim was transported by ambulance to regional Trauma Center in stable condition.

A lookout was placed, and Deputies set up a perimeter around the area. Ultimately the suspect was located and placed under arrest. The 16-year-old suspect was charged as an adult with Attempted First and Second-

Degree Murder, Assault first and second degree, Use of a Firearm in a Violent Crime and Possession of a Firearm by a Minor.

Due to a recent change in Maryland law, the juvenile will not be identified by the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office and no booking photo will be released until a waiver hearing is conducted to determine the jurisdiction of this case.

Anyone with additional information about this incident is asked to contact Detective Warren Forinash at 301-475-4200, ext. 8072, or email Warren.Forinash@stmaryscountymd.gov.

Sheriff's Office Warns Of Increased Car Thefts, Car Burglaries

Numerous vehicle thefts and stealing items from within vehicles have recently been reported throughout St. Mary's County. Sheriff Steve Hall urges drivers to be vigilant by locking your vehicles and never leave your vehicle running while unattended.

Per Maryland Traffic Article § 21-1101 (a), a person driving or otherwise in charge of a motor vehicle may not leave it unattended until the engine is stopped, the ignition locked, the key removed, and the brake effectively set. This does not apply to a motor vehicle that has had the engine started using a remote keyless ignition system and has been operating unattended for up to 5 consecutive minutes or a motor vehicle that is locked and is on private property not open to the public (such as the driveway of your residence), up to 5 consecutive minutes.

Keep your vehicle's doors locked at all times, especially overnight. Thieves have easy access to steal your property or your vehicle if they only have to open the door.

This month, the rash of recent vehicle burglaries and thefts have been a direct result of unlocked doors and several with spare keys left inside.

In addition, keep valuables out of plain view inside of a vehicle, or better yet, do not store any valuables in a vehicle.

When possible, keep your vehicle parked in a well-lit area with video camera surveillance.

Call the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office at 301-475-8008 to report a vehicle theft or breaking and entering, or make a report online at <https://www.firstsheriff.com/citizenreport/>

School Employee Arrested on Child Sex Abuse Charge

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office arrested Davon Natrell Stewart, a school system employee, on a Circuit Court arrest warrant this week. Stewart had been indicted through the St. Mary's County Circuit Court with one count of sexual abuse of a minor.

The sheriff's office criminal investigation division in cooperation with the St. Mary's County Public Schools, revealed Stewart, who was employed as a member of the school safety and security team at Chopticon High School, had formed a relationship with a 15-year-old student there while working in the school.

Stewart, who is 22 years old, later met with the victim outside of school where sexual contact between the two allegedly occurred.

Stewart was transported to the St. Mary's County Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown and remains incarcerated on a no-bond status.

Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith issued a statement on Stewart's arrest.

"St. Mary's County Public Schools has been notified by the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office of the arrest of employee Davon N. Stewart, a safety and security assistant at Chopticon High School, for allegations of inappropriate contact with a CHS student.

"Mr. Stewart has been placed on administrative leave."

St. Mary's County Public Schools is fully cooperating with the authorities during the investigation of this matter, Smith said.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office, Sgt. Christopher Beyer, 301-475-4200, ext. 8004.

Smith said the school system would issue no further comment on the matter as it was an ongoing investigation.

Golden Beach to Hold Fireworks Show

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

This 4th of July many county residents — along with their counterparts in neighboring Calvert — will have their eyes fixed on Solomons Island for their fireworks display.

But the Golden Beach/Patuxent Knolls Civic Association is ensuring that citizens in North County get the same, fiery, colorful Independence Day celebration.

The fireworks start at 9 p.m. and run for 30 minutes, according to an announcement from the civic association, and will take place July 1; if rain occurs the celebration, which includes a fire and emergency medical services parade, will be held the following day on July 2.

The parade will take place during the day, starting at 11 a.m. and will proceed down from the intersection of Golden Beach Road and Beach Drive with a right turn on Adam Drive and then a left turn down Beach Drive and down to the community pavilion.

Dale Antosh, president of the Golden Beach/Patuxent Knolls Civic Association, said the parade and fireworks show has been going on for years.

"It goes as far back as I can remember," Antosh told The County Times. "Maybe about 30 years."

The civic association is a band of volunteers, Antosh said, not a home owners association, and engage in many different efforts to raise money for activities such as the parade and fireworks show.

Mulch sales, Christmas craft bazaars, quarter auctions are all on the table when it comes to fundraisers, Antosh said.

"We put it all back into the community," he said.

Putting on a fireworks show is a complex and expensive task, he said and planning must start in February or March at the latest to ensure it goes off without too many hitches.

Moreover, fireworks aren't getting any less expensive; they have to hire a contractor in Pennsylvania to perform and manage the show.

The state fire marshal also oversees the show for safety and the Coast Guard cordons off a 350-foot perimeter around Long Point Beach to ensure water traffic won't be struck by fireworks, flying, falling or otherwise.

"Anybody can attend," Antosh said. "Even though we're a private community we have lots of extra people who come to see the show."

The parade and show site is blocked off for a three-block distance, said Antosh, so visitors will have to walk in.

Despite the work and the expense, the civic association looks to keep holding the event going forward.

"There's never enough volunteers," Antosh said. "But, we somehow get it done."

Navy Sued For Alleged Pollution of Potomac River

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Naval Surface Warfare Center in Dahlgren, Va. has polluted the Potomac River for decades with its constant testing of munitions and other weapons systems, a lawsuit filed in federal court alleges.

Two environmental activist groups, the Potomac Riverkeeper, Inc. and the Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc., filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Baltimore, pressing for injunctive relief against the U.S. Navy's operations at the weapons station.

St. Mary's County shares the Potomac River with Virginia and is one of its prime ecological and fisheries resources.

The court action states that the Navy fires munitions and other weapons directly into the river along a 51-mile front known as the Potomac River Test Range.

"In total, the Navy has discharged more than 33 million pounds of munitions into the Potomac River," the lawsuit claims. "These munitions contain toxic metals, solvents, explosives, and other potentially harmful constituents."

The suit continues: "The objective of the Clean Water Act is to restore and maintain the chemical, physical, and biological integrity of the Nation's waters," the lawsuit states. "In support of this objective, the act prohibits the discharge of any pollutant from a point source into a navigable water unless pursuant to a lawful permit."

The Navy discharges those pollutants, the lawsuit claims but without a lawful permit from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"The Navy's ongoing, unpermitted discharges of pollutants into the Potomac River violate the Clean Water Act," the lawsuit states.

The lawsuit claims that the operations at Dahlgren are in violation of the Clean Water Act; their claim for injunctive relief centers around the claim the Navy must get a permit to continue their operations so the pollutants could be measured and regulated.

The lawsuit states that the plaintiffs are bringing the suit, in part, because no other federal or state agent has sought redress from the Navy.

"Neither the EPA Administrator nor any state has commenced and diligently prosecuted an action in court to compel the Navy's compliance with the Clean Water Act," the lawsuit states.

According to the lawsuit, the Clean Water Act allows any citizen to sue the alleged violator of the act, given that they inform the violator of their intent to sue 60 days prior.

The plaintiffs gave that notice in January, the suit states.

Pax River Firefighter Dies Fighting House Fire

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

A firefighter with the Naval District of Washington and assigned to Patuxent River Naval Air Station perished while responding to a house fire in Leonardtown early Tuesday morning.

The firefighter is Brice Trossbach, 27, said base spokesman Patrick Gordon.

“It’s very sad,” Gordon said. “We’re all mourning the loss of one of our own and a member of the community.”

Brice was a member of the Leonardtown Volunteer Fire Department from youth, a statement from the company relayed.

“Being a firefighter is not just a job but a calling; Brice Trossbach answered the call, and we will forever be grateful,” said Co. 1 Chief Chris Bell. “Right now, words cannot convey the loss we are feeling, nor can they convey the pain we feel for his family.

“So, we will stand with them, extend our arms to support them, and lift our prayers for their peace and comfort. Our deepest sympathies to the Trossbach family.”

According to the statement Trossbach “had been a part of the [Leonardtown volunteer fire] family since he was in diapers, crawling around the firehouse when his father, Warren Trossbach, would bring him to the station.”

At 16, Trossbach joined the Leonardtown fire house as a probationary member, working up to be a junior member, and finally became a full member at 18 years old.

“Firefighting was in Brice’s blood, his father is a life member of LVFD, and he served alongside his uncles and brother,” the statement read.

“Brice was the kind of guy who, when you gave him a task, you knew it was going to get done the right way the first time, and it was going to get done fast,” continued Chief Bell, “He was always there to support his fire family, whether that was with help around the station, mentoring younger firefighters, or continuing his education to ensure he was the best he could be.”

Trossbach’s commitment to St. Mary’s County is further evidenced by his Bay District Volunteer Fire Department membership the statement said.

“He has served St. Mary’s County faithfully for 10 years,” the fire company stated.

The fire on Deerwood Park Drive in the early morning hours Tuesday drew a heavy response from firefighters and emergency medical personnel from all over Southern Maryland and even resulted in the partial activation of St. Mary’s County’s Emergency Operations Center to deal with the blaze.

Initial reports state that Trossbach fell through to the basement of the home after the floor caved in and had to be pulled out of the wreckage.

The county mourned Trossbach’s loss.

“We lost a true hero this morning who went in without hesitation to save others and lost his life in the process,” said station commanding officer Capt. Derrick Kingsley during a press conference June 27.

Local elected officials lamented the loss of a brave member of the community.

“There’s nothing that can take the hurt or devastation away from that loss...,” said Commissioner Mike Hewitt. “We’ve lost a volunteer fire fighter who put his life out there to protect somebody’s property.

“My condolences to the family.”

Commissioner Eric Colvin said the fire also showed the importance of fire sprinkler systems being installed in homes; older homes built without them can still be retrofitted to have them included.

He said he was in awe of the response from regional fire and rescue companies willing to step in and support their sister organizations here in St. Mary’s.

“This may be our first line of duty death for a fire fighter in St. Mary’s County,” Colvin said. “The mutual aid... shows me just how [amazingly] our community can come together during a tragedy.”

Oliver Alkire, spokesman for the Maryland State Fire Marshal’s Office, said the federal Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms was assisting in the death investigation with a strong presence at the scene.

“That is standard operating procedure anytime a fire fatality happens,” Alkire said. “Right now, we have about 15 of our personnel — that’s about one quarter of the fire marshal’s office — here.

“That shows the intensity of this investigation and that we want to provide answers to our firefighters and the family of the fallen.”

Investigators are now sifting through the debris of the house, which he called a “complete loss” — in an effort to determine how the fire started.

“The family heard a large boom before they recognized the fire,” Alkire said. “We’re investigating what that was.”

Alkire said investigators were looking into whether thunderstorms in the area just before the fire were a possible cause.

“Is there a possibility it was a lightning strike?” Alkire said. “We just don’t know at this point.”

The two-alarm fire brought about 75 firefighters to the scene to knock down the blaze.

The investigation could take days, he said.

Calvert and Charles county fire and EMS companies took over Tuesday as St. Mary’s companies stood down for the day after Trossbach’s death.
